COL. M'CORMICK TELLS ENGLAND HIS WAR VIEWS

Says He'd Fight to Save Britain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19 [Wednesday].—In a requested article printed today in the London Daily Sketch, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, asserted he believed many Americans would volunteer their armed aid, if necessary, to prevent the British being conquered by invasion. He added: "I am one of them."

He said, however, that there was little American support for a military expedition to keep the British in possession of colonial territory. He declared that "whoever invented the idea that there is a mother country of the United States had an imagination that dwarfed Shakespeare's."

Of the military situation Col. McCormick said it was much like our war of 1812 when neither side, because of distance, could do anything decisive, with the result that a peace unsatisfactory to statesmen but acceptable to both peoples was made.

Requested by Lord Kemsley.

The article, requested thru the British Press service by Lord Kemsley, chairman of the Sketch, was cabled to him in London in the form of a letter.

The letter follows:

"Dear Lord Kemsley: In reply to your request I am glad to send you my views on America's place in world affairs, which in my opinion are the views of the vast majority of the American people.

"In the summer of 1917, while serving on the staff of our army, it was my pleasure to meet Col. Lord Esher. Esher was much impressed with American officers. Over and over he would say: 'Just look at their faces—what character and what force! This entirely reverses my impression of Americans. I had always thought of American men as only trying to make enough money for wives to spend and of American women trying to spend all the money husbands could make.

"It was not an inapt description of Americans as they were seen in Paris—being not a tenth of 1 per cent of our people.

"In order to give you a picture of the American people, allow me to describe the circumstances under which they came to this continent.

How Colonies Were Founded.

"Virginia was frankly a commercial venture, but every other colony was founded as a refuge from oppression! Pilgrims and Puritans went to New England to escape the persecution of Archbishop Laud, which was one of the chief contributing causes of what we call the English revolution and you call the Great Rebellion. The first settlers in New Amsterdam, afterward New York, were refugee Walloons, perhaps the first Belgian refugees. Maryland was founded by the Irish peer, Lord Baltimore, as a refuge for English and Irish Catholics; west Jersey was settled as a refuge for Quakers, and east Jersey for Scotch Covenanters fearfully persecuted by Charles II.

"When Penn founded Pennsylvania his first act was to free politically Swedes who had been conquered by the duke of York. The Dutch in New York had to await the American Revolution to secure rights. Penn introduced into Pennsylvania English Quakers, Germans from the Palatinate who became Pennsylvania Dutch, Swiss, Waldenses, Piedmontese, and French Huguenots. The race sometimes termed Ulster Scotch, sometimes Scotch-Irish, escaping from the political economic domination imposed by King William II. and Queen Anne, went principally to Pennsylvania and Charleston, S. C. To the latter place came many Huguenot French.

Freedom of Religion Granted.

"The Carolinas were intended to be feudal properties, but to attract colonists freedom of religion had to be granted and the new population would not accept old world institutions. Georgia was established as a refuge for English debtors. The his-

Senate Acts—and None Too Soon

(An Editorial)

The senate did an extraordinary thing on Monday. It adopted a resolution calling upon the OPM to make a full report of its administration of the priorities act, and its plans for relieving the hardships priorities have caused to little business all over the country. The resolution was adopted following receipt of reports from two senate committees. One committee, headed by Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), had found that there is no serious shortage of strategic materials in this country with the exception of tin and nickel. The other committee, headed by Sen. Harry S. Truman (D., Mo.), had found that but 2 per cent of the strategic materials would save the 130,000 small manufacturers who are being crushed by priorities.

These committee reports prove beyond a doubt what has been repeatedly asserted in these columns, that all of the materials produced and procurable are by no means needed for the manufacture of war implements, and that there is not now, there has not been, and there is not likely to be in the future any such shortage of materials as would justify the government in creating a priorities depression by shutting off the flow of materials to civilian goods industries. A review of some of these alleged shortages is in point.

It was asserted a while ago that there was not enough aluminum available to meet the requirements of warplane construction. For some time after these assertions were made the government continued to award contracts for aluminum pots, pans, pitchers, and hat stretchers. This practice was stopped about the time the public was called upon to contribute its old aluminum ware to save the nation. The aluminum collection was made in July, and here is November and piles of the old stuff are lying in county courtyards.

Just a week ago, Vice President Wallace, in a speech addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Average American Family, declared that "our country needs her copper, her aluminum, and her steel to fight the battle of freedom on the seven seas, and in all the continents of the world. Our country cannot permit the use of these precious critical materials to enable the well-to-do to enjoy their customary luxuries. Even those families in more moderate circumstances will be asked to deny themselves. All of us must economize in using metals."

How does he get that way? The facts about the steel supply were set forth in an editorial on the front page of the Tribune on Aug. 22, and it was there shown that there was an ample supply of steel for every possible defense need without handicapping the civilian industries in the slightest. Subsequently J. H. Van Deventer, editor of the magazine Iron Age, declared that "our steel producing capacity is great enough to satisfy every conceivable demand for defense, including aid to Great Britain," and leave enough for nondefense industries to do business on the 1939 basis. Thereafter the steel manufacturers declared that there was plenty of steel for all purposes, but that there might be some temporary tie ups when the government failed to indicate the kinds of steel wanted a sufficient time in advance. Now a senate committee has looked for the shortage and failed to find it.

The Vice President can hardly be in earnest when he talks about copper shortage. We set forth the essential facts about copper from official sources in an editorial in these columns on Nov. 2. A half million tons of copper is all that can possibly be used for defense in a year, and the available current supply is at least 3 times as much, leaving enough to meet every civilian need, with plenty to spare. If more copper is needed, as Sen. O'Mahoney observes in his report, there are great quantities which can be produced here with an advance in price.

The oil shortage was so patent a fake that the officials responsible for perpetrating it have had to take it all back.

The shortages are not real, with the possible exception of nickel and tin. The public has been pushed around for psychological reasons. The attempt was to give people a feeling that they are sacrificing for the common good. The Vice President in his speech, from which we quoted above, almost admitted as much when he said: "There is something clean and pure about sacrifice, when we know what we are doing. Millions of American families have been asking during the last two years 'What can I do?'."

The government by declaring that there are shortages when none exist is trying to supply psychological satisfaction to those who are looking for sacrifices to make. To create the illusion hundreds of thousands are thrown out of jobs. Any one who thinks there are shortages should examine the data of the department of commerce. The inventories of manufacturers are the largest of all times—substantially larger than in 1937 just before the inventory crisis which started off a severe decline in business and stock prices.

Now that the senate has been told by two of its committees that the shortages are phonies, it should follow thru to see that the 108 industries which have been denied copper and the other industries affected by priorities are quickly given relief. Sen. O'Mahoney stated the situation well when he said "The fundamental wrong, stated in its simplest terms, is that congress is not functioning. Congress has delegated the whole problem of administering raw materials to the executive officials in the OPM, who are changed from week to week, and whose responsibilities are not the same today as they were yesterday."

TWO FROM CITY SHOOT SELVES IN HUNTING MISHAP

Ralph Hungerford, 51 years old, 6146 Kenwood avenue, is recovering in the Copley hospital, Aurora, from a shotgun wound received in a freak hunting accident yesterday near Plano, Ill.

Hungerford and a friend, C. E. Foutz, 10925 Vernon avenue, had paused to rest. Foutz dropped his shotgun to the ground, butt first, with his hand over the muzzle. The jar discharged the gun, and the charge mangled Foutz's hand and then struck Hungerford, standing near by, in the back of the neck.

HALT DRAFTEES IN PROTEST OVER LEWIS DICTATION

Fort Myers, Fla., Nov. 18 (AP).—The three man Lee county draft board tonight telegraphed President Roosevelt that no more induction papers for conscripts would be signed "as long as John L. Lewis dictates the labor policy of the United States."

Draft Board Chairman Guy M. Strayhorn, representative in the legislature, objected to Lewis' domination which "deprives these $21 a month soldiers of the full benefit of industrial production in their preparation to wipe out the scourge across the sea."

BOMB SUSPECTS TALK IN A CELL; HERE IS RECORD

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 18.—What two ex-convicts talk about as they sit in jail, supposedly in private, while awaiting trial on charges that may return them to prison for long terms, was disclosed here tonight in connection with the oil pipeline bombing case.

The conversations were picked up thru a microphone hidden in the defendants' cell, and stenographers on the floor below transcribed the comments of the prisoners as they alternately boasted of their chances of acquittal and expressed fears that they would be convicted.

A transcript of the statements was offered in evidence by State's Attorney Ivan J. Hutchens and his assistant, Joseph Rosenberg. Circuit Judge Charles Y. Miller said he will rule tomorrow on whether it may be read to the jury. If it is read, some of the words will be expurgated because of their lurid nature.

Prison Records Revealed.

The two men who unwittingly made the statements are George Bruns, who was in prison from 1932 to 1934 as a rapist and habitual criminal, and George Diehl, former East St. Louis policeman who has been arrested 22 times since 1927 and once served a federal prison sentence for taking protection money from a bootleg ring.

Bruns and Diehl are on trial with nine unionists on charges of conspiracy in the dynamiting of an oil pipeline south of here on Feb. 9, 1940. The state has charged that Bruns and Diehl were hired for the bombing by the unionists, who had failed the year before to obtain a closed shop while the line was being constructed by a contracting firm for the Texas Empire Pipeline company.

July 16:

DIEHL—I wouldn't be surprised if they took us to the federal pen tomorrow—if they do, it's 10 years. . . . You don't know where you was or anything else at the time the thing come up or happened. If we get a jury—a set jury—we're goners. I can beat this thing nine different ways. If necessary we can come up with a couple of G's, I guess. . . . Don't talk, don't talk to nobody.

BRUNS—I ain't afraid.

July 19:

DIEHL—We ain't big ones in organized labor and I'm only a small potato. We live in East St. Louis, see? We don't live in Decatur. Somebody had to want that done. You don't want it done; I don't want it done. Somebody did, tho. The thing is, they can't do much unless they pin a motive on us. . . . Go ahead and admit it was talked over and this and that, but somebody has almost got to lay that bomb in your hands; you know what I mean. If the jury gets made up of farmers and their wives, we are lost.

July 20:

DIEHL—I don't guess that parole board can take action against me now, can they?

BRUNS—I don't think so.

DIEHL—It wasn't done while I was on parole. If that guy will give us a year and a thousand fine [a possible

THEY HATE AMERICA

Stamp Cancellation Expose Perils Value of Rare Hoards

The value of rare stamp collections thruout the country was jeopardized last night by the exposure of the trade practices of Rudolph [Greasy Dick] Thomas, aged recluse stamp dealer, who died last August.

An investigation begun by agents of the federal secret service indicates that hundreds of rare stamps sold by Thomas bore fraudulent cancellation marks which increased the value of the stamps from as little as 1 cent to as much as $1,400. Thomas conducted his business from his home at 1418 Mohawk street, but he was recognized as one of the biggest dealers in the country and his catalogs were widely distributed.

Inquiry Into Will.

The discovery was made as the result of an inquiry into his will, which bequeathed all his fortune, estimated at between $200,000 and $250,000, to his housekeeper. Investigators for the attorney general making a routine search for taxable assets discovered that all of Thomas' valuables formerly kept in safety deposit boxes in the Continental Illinois National bank and in the First National bank had been withdrawn before his death on Aug. 16.

This unusual circumstance led to further inquiry by Jack Rubens, investigator for the public administrator, at Thomas' home. There he discovered 179 woodcut cancellation stamping outfits, a machine for perforating stamps, and an enormous hoard of stamps, both domestic and foreign, in a safe.

Since it appeared that Thomas had been canceling stamps himself—a violation of federal law—Rubens notified Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, supervising agent of the secret service here, to make a further investigation.

Capt. Callaghan said last night that his work with the collection remaining in Thomas' house has not yet been completed, but he already has discovered the 179 woodcut reproductions of cancellation markings.

Difficult to Detect.

Stamp collectors said this type of forgery is extremely difficult to detect. How it enhances the value of the stamps was explained by Richard M. Cabeen, stamp editor of THE TRIBUNE.

"Three cent letter rate stamps of the Civil war period sell now for 50 cents a 100," he said. "It is possible to buy these stamps, erase the original cancellations with ink eradicators and cancel them again with unusual and rare marks which may increase their value to as much as $1,400."

"Another instance of an easily forged cancellation," said Cabeen, "is the running pony express cancellation on the ordinary letter rate stamps and covers of 1861 and 1857. Such covers, worth about 20 cents without the pony express mark, would be valued at $400 to $500 with it."

Relatives in Austria.

Efforts to learn more details concerning the shadowy business of Thomas so far have been unsuccessful. The woman to whom he left his fortune, Mrs. Josephine Haeusler, had been his housekeeper for about five years, but she said she knew nothing of his business.

Thomas' only relatives known to be in communication with him before he died were a niece and a nephew living in Vienna, Austria. They were not mentioned in the will, which has been admitted to probate by Judge John F. O'Connell.

Judge O'Connell said last night he had conferred with Capt. Callaghan about the stamps to learn whether those remaining in the hoard should be distributed thru routine court channels or confiscated by the federal government.

Entire Stock Impounded.

Besides the stamps in the hoard, there is a considerable quantity of gold and silver coin along with other collectors' items of precious metal. The entire stock has been impounded.

J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, said he had not yet received any report on the case. He said that if Thomas had accomplices there is a possibility they could be indicted either for mutilating postage stamps or for mail fraud, since the business of buying and selling the stamps was largely a mail order business.

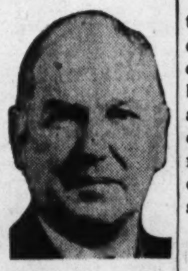
PLAN ARCHANGEL MISSION, REPORT

Expect Gen. Greely to Visit Russia.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 [Special].—Maj. Gen. John N. Greely, until recently in command at Fort Sam Houston, one of the country's largest army posts, is scheduled to leave soon for Archangel, as the head of a large United States military mission now in process of formation, responsible quarters reported today. Greely is a son of the Arctic explorer, Adolphus Greely.



Maj. Gen. Greely.

Plans regarding the mission have been kept secret and war department officials questioned today answered all queries with the stock reply, "No comment."

Will Coöperate with Soviet.

However, it was understood that the objective of the special military mission would be to consult with the soviet general staff about military problems in which there is mutual interest; supervise disposal of lease-lend supplies and provide expert advice where this might be desired.

One of the criticisms among interventionists regarding the American program of aiding Russia has been that lack of contact between the staffs of the United States and soviet armies has hampered coöperation in the sphere of supply and in other fields.

Details of Plans Withheld.

It also was understood that the mission would be composed of experts in the various fields of modern warfare, including tank and aerial combat, engineering and communications. Because of the secretive attitude of the war department, it was impossible to ascertain whether plans called for the mission to make its headquarters in Archangel or merely enter Russia at that point.

There is precedent for sending such a mission to Russia. On Aug. 26 the White House announced the dispatch to China of a similar mission charged with arranging increased lend-lease aid and advising the Chinese army.

Little doubt was expressed in informed quarters that the sending of a military mission to Russia implied still closer active coöperation on the part of the United States, which recently loaned Russia a billion dollars.

PREDICT MANY THOUSANDS TO WALK OUT TODAY

Roosevelt Disputes Lewis' Letter.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—A walkout by many thousands of commercial coal miners in sympathy with the strike of their fellow unionists in the captive pits became imminent tonight. President Roosevelt again rebuked John L. Lewis during the day, but there was no specific government action.

Most of the 53,000 miners in the captive mines are on strike. A survey showed more than 20,000 miners in commercial pits, which have already granted the union shop — the point at issue in the captive mine strike—had walked out.

Predicts 105,000 to Walk Out.

William Blizzard, district vice president of the CIO-United Mine Workers union in West Virginia, predicted that all the 550 mines in that state, employing 105,000 men, would be closed within 48 hours. Already 4,000 miners in one county have been out two days on a sympathy strike, and tonight three mines in another county, employing 1,500 men, were reported idle. Thursday will be a holiday in the mines and many of them often remain shut down over the Thanksgiving week-end.

Reports from Kentucky coal fields indicated 21,000 miners would be idle tomorrow morning. Approximately 6,800 already had stopped work at two captive mines and union and company representatives said 14,200 employed at commercial mines were expected to remain away from the workings in a sympathy walkout. UMW representatives said there had been no strike call and action would be up to the local unions.

Sympathy walkouts closed 13 additional commercial mines in Pennsylvania. More than 9,000 miners in western Pennsylvania are out on a sympathy strike.

President Disputes Lewis.

Mr. Roosevelt challenged the validity of Lewis' position in demanding a union shop for the captive mines, but said he had no news as to what steps he might be planning to take to get the mines back in production.

Lewis declared yesterday in a letter to Mr. Roosevelt that the rights of other miners covered by the so-called Appalachian agreement would be endangered by failure to obtain a union shop agreement with steel companies operating the captive mines. He has called the strike in captive pits and violence, including shooting, occurred today.

President Permits Quotation.

Referring to Lewis' reasoning in calling the strike and permitting commercial miners to walk out, the President at his press conference this afternoon permitted newsmen to quote him directly as follows:

"The Appalachian agreement in all the commercial mines stands just as it has ever since it went into operation, and no question involved in the captive mines strike would affect the pay or the hours or the collective bargaining recognition of the United Mine Workers in any of the Appalachian agreement mines. Therefore, I do not think that point A in Mr. Lewis' letter was a valid point."

In his letter to Roosevelt, Lewis had stated as point A that an open shop contract with the captive mine operators would invalidate the Appalachian agreement with commercial mines. Point B in the Lewis letter was that he and other UMWA officials had no authority to negotiate an open shop contract with the captive mine operators.

Lewis Replies to President.

After the President's press conference remarks, Lewis told reporters that "any suggestion that the mine workers should dishonor their own agreement by giving the great steel companies more favored conditions than other companies cannot be seriously considered."

"Obviously the open shop condition of a contract must be esteemed by the steel companies as a more favorable condition," Lewis said. "Otherwise they would not fight and disturb the tranquility of the nation by insisting upon the deletion of the union shop clause from the Appalachian agreement.

"Certainly the mine workers regard the union shop condition as a 'more favorable condition.'"

The President permitted the unusual practice of direct quotation only after persistent questioning on the strike situation to which he had been unyielding. Asked about government plans to take over the captive mines or enact anti-strike legislation if the strike continues, the President had declared he had no news on that.

Silent on Railroad Strike.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he had nothing to report on the railroad strike conference at the White House today, other than it will continue tomorrow.

Conferees representing management and the railroad brotherhoods, which have voted a strike for Dec. 7, said upon leaving the White House that no conclusions were reached. Alvaney Johnston, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said there has been no change in plan for the strike on demands for pay increases. The President spent 45 minutes with the conferees.

The coal strike, however, was producing one of the most serious labor situations facing the administration with the steel mills, all-important in armament manufacture, reporting only enough coal for another three weeks.

In Congress the house labor committee decided to begin consideration tomorrow of legislation to prevent such strikes. Chairman Mary T. Norton [D., N. J.] introduced a bill to set up a new mediation board with powers to enforce its decisions.

Two Miners Wounded.

At Gary, W. Va., two Negroes were shot while attempting to charge a picket line at No. 10 mine of the United States Coal and Coke company, a United States Steel corporation subsidiary. The pickets were attempting to dissuade miners from working.

Later almost 200 state policemen were dispatched to the Gary-Welch mining district in West Virginia today "to preserve order."

"We have been cut, stabbed, shot, maimed, bombed, and feloniously assaulted for no reason except we want to work," said the telegram signed by W. T. Nunally, president of the Independent Associated Miners' union. Nunally said he spoke for 4,000 members of the union employed in the six Gary hollow captive mines of the United States Coal and Coke company. He said the attacks were "not by local miners but by imported pickets from Harlan county [Ky.] and district counties in West Virginia, and we fear further bloodshed."

Others Ask Protection.

The Fayette county, Pa., sheriff tonight reported he had received a petition from employés of the Grindstone captive mine of the H. C. Frick Coke company [United States Steel] asking for "adequate protection" in their planned return to work tomorrow. The petition carried the names of 164 coal miners, he said.

Threat of a strike in the huge Fairfield Steel works [United States Steel] at Birmingham, Ala., was removed when a UMW officer urged the steel workers to stay on the job until the captive mine strike is settled.

Officials of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation announced at Pittsburgh that "it probably will be necessary to stop operations on six blast furnaces" within the next 48 hours because of impending coal shortages. "A shutdown of the blast furnaces would reduce the rate of ingot production by about 10 per cent," the statement said. Two of the furnaces are in Chicago.

The survey of other companies showed:

Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, enough coal for two or three weeks.

Republic Steel, enough coal for two or three weeks.

INDIA EXPRESSES DISCONTENT OVER CHURCHILL TALK

LONDON, Nov. 18.—India's discontent over Prime Minister Churchill's statement that the Atlantic charter did not apply to her was recorded today by the Indian council of state in New Delhi, according to a Reuters [British news service] dispatch received in London.

The council adopted by a vote of 30 to 6 a resolution recommending that the viceroy convey to the British government the "deep discontent" of the house; that, in the opinion of the house, it is likely to prejudice the war efforts of India at this critical juncture."

Churchill said in the house of commons on Sept. 9 that "problems arising out of the progressive evolution of self-governing institutions in regions the peoples of which owe allegiance to the British crown are a separate matter entirely to those of states and nations now under the Nazi yoke."

Charges He Paid Politician $330 but Still Got No Job

Patrick J. Burke, 2232 East 75th street, obtained a warrant in South State street court yesterday for the arrest of James McCahill, former minor Democratic politician in the 7th ward, charging that McCahill accepted $330 on a promise of getting Burke a job as senior clerk with the Chicago parks district. Burke said he had promised to pay another $200 when he got the job, but that the position failed to materialize.

DIEHL—We will say in court that he said—that he bragged—that he was going to pick a farmer jury because they were ignorant and all that. We can make them mad at him. We don't have to say that he said it was because they are honest and all that.

BRUNS—You will be under oath when you tell it. What about that?

DIEHL—You better try to cool off. If the government had prosecuted this case there would be no doubt in my mind but that we would have been convicted, because people are afraid of the government where they aren't afraid of the state. This is strictly carried on according to government tactics. They know what they are after. They indict as many people as possible. I know because I had it done to me before.

Federal Agents Back State.

Four agents of the federal bureau of investigation were on the stand today as the state neared the close of its case. They said that five of the defendants had confessed their parts in the crime in May, 1940, when the government was investigating the case from its Springfield office.

The defendants named as confessing are Edwin Roy, Cecil O. Wilson, Melvin Watkins, and Edwin Fox, members of the executive board of the Decatur Hod Carriers' union; and Mrs. Louise Chvatal, stenographer for the Decatur Building Trades Council.

The agents, Joseph C. Mulroy, G. C. Callan, Joseph Horn, and David Scruggs, said the five had told of a secret slush fund created by the hod carriers executive board, which concealed this information from other members. The state contends this fund was used to finance the bombings.

2 MEN IN TUSSLE WITH GOVERNOR; HE FREES THEM

A father, distracted by attempts to obtain a full investigation of the death in Chicago four years ago of his daughter, created a disturbance in the Kaskaskia hotel, La Salle, last night, when he and a companion attempted by force to obtain audience with Gov. Green.

Edward W. Whitney.

The father, Edward W. Whitney, 41 years old, Detroit, and his friend, Morris O'Leary, 40, also of Detroit, were dragged away from the governor after grabbing Green's arm, by T. P. Sullivan, state director of public safety, who shouted to John W. Chapman, Green's private secretary, to hurry the governor into the elevator and out of the way. Both men were then taken to the jail.

Green, unruffled by the incident, gave a scheduled speech before the Illinois Valley Manufacturers' club, then inquired what the two men had been after. Told of Whitney's statement that he wanted aid in an investigation of his daughter's death, Green went to the jail and ordered both men freed. He then told Whitney that if he would write out a statement concerning his daughter, a full investigation would be made.

"I am ready to see any person having legitimate business with me at any time," Green said. "Mr. Whitney failed to make clear what he wanted."

Rev. Benjamin Schlung, retired minister, 3838 Kenmore avenue—Thirty years ago I went back to my old farm home in Iowa and brought back a rusty old staple that I pulled from a white oak stump. My father had his anvil there and he'd loop his tools on this staple. It's been in my tool kit ever since.

Mrs. Andrew Gallik, housewife, 715 Dickens avenue—When I was a nurse I had a patient who was a stranger to me. When she was on the operating table she handed me a gold mesh pin and said that if she died I could keep it. She lived. When I offered to return the pin she told me to keep it as a good luck charm. And now I cherish it.

William A. Selman, clerk, 847 North Central Park avenue—I have a small framed picture of my mother that I'd hate to part with. And with it is an album of old photos that I keep because she cherished them. I rarely look at them, but always move them with me from place to place.

Charles Dugnolle, houseman, 785 Summit avenue, Lake Forest—There's a red and brown hand made wool yarn blanket that I think a great deal of. Brought it over from England in 1911. It gets pretty tough use, too, as a throw on the day bed and a robe in the car. Wouldn't part with it for anything.

Mrs. Jenny Johnson, housewife, 348 Dickens avenue—In somebody's dresser drawer in Sweden there's a little hand made rag doll that I cherish—rather hopelessly I'm afraid. My mother made it when she was very young and gave it to me when I was 10. When I left Sweden five years ago, I didn't know that I wouldn't be going back. I still hope to send for the doll.

Mrs. Roy Bloomquist, housewife, 1927 Sedgwick avenue—I have a hand made oak rocker that's been in the family for 50 years. Its sentimental value must really be something when I refuse what I've been offered for it. It's a keepsake that has a very prominent and active place in our living room.

3 ARMY FLYERS DIE IN CRASH OF BOMBING PLANE

Testing Crew Victims in Ohio Accident.

Springfield, O., Nov. 18 (AP).—Three members of the crew of an army B-26 bomber were killed today in the crash of the plane in a corn field at North Hampton, 12 miles northwest of here. They were:

First Lieut. T. P. Bacon, Radford, Va.

Staff Sergt. E. E. Johnson, Jackson, Miss.

All were members of the 71st bombardment squadron, Jackson, Miss.

Engaged in Testing.

Two bodies were thrown clear of the wreckage, one directly beside the ship, the other about 25 feet away. On the latter was found a partly opened parachute.

E. C. Davis, tenant on the farm which the ship struck, said he saw two men attempting to bail out as the plane roared to earth.

Killed in Glider Crash.

Dayton, O., Nov. 18 (AP).—A glider training plane crashed from low altitude at Patterson field today killing Second Lieut. Claude L. Luke, 37, of Mineola, N. Y., and injuring another army air corps officer.

Luke died of a fractured skull and Lieut. Floyd J. Sweet of the ordnance department, who was in the glider as an observer, suffered a slight brain concussion.

But Followers of Lewis Remain Silent.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 18.—The implacable spirit of John L. Lewis held sway even in his absence today as the national convention of the Congress of Industrial Organizations voted support of President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

Even when a convention message from Roosevelt and a speech by Philip Murray, Lewis' successor as president of the CIO, brought other delegates to their feet cheering, the Lewis followers remained silent in their seats.

An island of sullen faces was formed by Lewis' followers as Roosevelt's message extended "greetings and felicitations" to the CIO. The President expressed hope all groups will benefit from the convention.

Arms Needed, Parley Told.

"Only in a democracy could such a meeting be held," the message said. "Unless these freedoms are protected from this world scourge [of Hitlerism] free trade unions and all other free institutions will vanish.

"In order to protect them our defense program must be all out and at all times. We need guns, tanks, planes, and ships, and we must produce guns, tanks, planes, and ships without delay and without interruption, and the American people and their government are determined that we shall have them."

Murray said the resolution on Roosevelt's foreign policy was more important than any other matter before the convention.

"Repercussions of this resolution will be felt thruout the world," Murray said. "I never shall forfeit labor's right to the attainment of increased opportunities and to protection of its gains. I think we can justifiably do that in the face of a great national emergency.

Asks "Break" for Labor.

"Right now I'm asking the President to give labor a better break in this country, to give us more representation on the defense program. America needs the CIO! The President needs the CIO! I say to him, here we are—we're coming! Give us representation."

Here he referred to the Murray plan of councils composed of CIO officials, employers, and government representatives virtually to operate each industry. Later it was decided to send CIO representatives to Washington to urge this plan upon congressmen and to warn them against passing laws restricting unions.

A floor fight on foreign policy did not develop, altho when one delegate asked for adoption of the resolution indorsing Roosevelt's foreign policy, another shouted: "You're not going to railroad that thru this convention!" Van A. Bittner of Chicago, of the steel workers' organizing committee, who, was presiding, recessed the meeting to quell the outbreak.

Sanders Genis, vice president of the Textile Workers' union, gave the Lewis forces a jolt when he asserted every delegate felt that the war emergency was more important than any demand for a union shop—referring to Lewis' demands in the mine strike.

STATE ST. BRIDGE PLAN HELD UP BY LACK OF PRIORITY

Lack of a priority rating for the new $2,000,000 State street bridge has delayed completion of shop drawings for the fabricated steel to be used in the bridge superstructure, Stephen Michuda, city bridge engineer, said yesterday.

Michuda admitted the delay in drawings has not yet delayed the work because the substructure is still under construction. He said, however, that unless a rating is granted soon by OPM the project may be held up.

The city asked for a priority rating for the bridge in July, Michuda said, but that request was lost by OPM. Another aplication was made in October and indications are it will be approved.

In the address he is expected to discuss sending American troops to the European war and the fate of free enterprise in the United States. The overflow will listen to the address by loudspeakers from a room on the floor below.

WILLKIE ASSAILS F. D. R. WAVERING ON LABOR POLICY

Urges CIO Delay Fight for Closed Shop.

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie charged the Roosevelt administration tonight with failure to announce a clear and open policy for labor, and suggested that labor be given a share in the responsibility and policy making of the government.

Two immediate steps were advocated by the 1940 Republican Presidential nominee in a speech prepared for a dinner at which he was presented The Churchman award for 1941 "for the promotion of goodwill and better understanding among all peoples." They were:

1. The organization of a labor board "truly representative of those they are supposed to represent." Public representatives would be appointed by the President; industry's representatives by organizations representing industry, and labor's representatives by elections of both the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organizations.

2. Transformation of the department of labor "from a mere adjunct of government into a participant in government." He cited the British cabinet as an example.

Calls Policies Inconsistent.

Confusion of all parties has resulted from the government's "lack of a consistent and recognizable policy toward labor," Willkie said. As an example, Willkie cited the President's reply to President John L. Lewis of the CIO United Mine Workers that the government never would force the closed shop.

Coupled with this statement, the speaker continued, were two unofficial offers which Willkie said Philip Murray, CIO president, asserted the President made to him; to write personal letters to 2,500 nonunion miners asking them to join as "a patriotic duty" and the President's offer to obtain for the mine workers a maintenance of membership clause.

"Now I submit," Willkie went on, "that whichever side of the argument you may be on, those three statements taken in conjunction, show complete inconsistency and vacillation in the administration's policy toward labor and industry. This is no time for playing backdoor politics.

Urges Labor Delay Fight.

"This is no time for taking up each case on its merits and laying down different principles each time in the childish hope that all will come out right in the end."

He declared the closed shop issue was not a new one, but very old, and that it could not be solved overnight. He added that it "should not be settled during an emergency when Hitler is holding a pistol at our heads. Labor, I believe, would be wise to hold the solution in abeyance for the emergencies."

Two Pose as Customers, Rob Food Store Cashiers

Two young men entered a self service food store at 2631 West 63d street last night, took baskets, and made the rounds of the shelves. With the baskets full, they arrived at the store's twin cashier desks at the same moment. Here, their similarity to customers ended. They drew revolvers, ordered the cashiers away from the cash registers, and then fled with $25.

BRITISH SHAKE UP ARMY STAFF; PUT IN YOUNGER MEN

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 19 [Wednesday].—A shakeup in the British army high command was announced last night. Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, 58 year old commander in chief of the home forces will become chief of the imperial general staff in succession to Sir John Dill, who will relinquish that office on Dec. 25 when he reaches the age limit of 60 years. Dill will receive the rank of field marshal.

Sir Alan Brooke.

Of the six changes resulting from Dill's retirement, the most interesting is the appointment of Maj. Gen. Archibald E. Nye as vice chief of the imperial general staff. He is regarded in military circles as a complete antithesis of the "old school tie generals" and is not even mentioned in Who's Who.

Nye Wins Post on Merit.

Youngest of the generals involved in the shakeup, Nye has won his new post at 45 years purely on his merit as a soldier, it was stated. In the World war Nye served for nearly two years as a private before he was wounded and awarded the military cross and granted a commission. Lieut. Gen. Sir Henry R. Pownall, 54, whom he replaces on the imperial general staff, has been selected for "special appointment," details of which were not disclosed.

Lieut. Gen. B. C. T. Paget, 53, succeeds Brooke as commander in chief of the home forces and Paget's present post as commander in chief of the southeastern command goes to 54 year old Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery.

Dill, who will be given the civilian appointment as governor designate of Bombay, has held the office of chief of the imperial general staff since May 26, 1940, when he replaced Sir Edmund Ironside, during the battle of Flanders. Ironside had been chief of staff since the start of the war.

Approves of Younger Officers.

Despite the fact that Brooke is only 18 months younger than himself, Dill issued a statement declaring:

"I have always been anxious that young men in the army should get on. That can only happen if older men give way to them."

He praised Brooke's "fine record," expressing confidence in his ability to handle his new job.

Brooke, who shortly after his appointment as commander in chief of the home forces a year ago announced that he would "actually welcome an invasion" and "an opportunity to throw the Germans back into the sea," has had personal experience in modern German methods, since he commanded the 2d corps of the British expeditionary force in Flanders and spent several days on Dunkirk beach with his men during the retreat. He is noted as an artilleryman and is described here as the greatest expert in British army on mechanization and the employment of mechanized forces.

General Little Over a Year.

The appointment of "Ted" Nye to what is virtually second in command of the British army represents an achievement "surpassed only by the rise of the former ranker, Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, to commander in chief of the imperial general staff in the last war," the Daily Mail declared.

Nye has been a general only a little more than a year and is said to be the youngest vice chief the British army ever has had. He was born in Dublin, a soldier's son. As soon as he was old enough his father entered him in the duke of York's military school at Dover, where the sons of noncommissioned officers are trained for the services. He entered the army 27 years ago.

Since the World war Nye has studied army coöperation with the royal air force, both in England and India; held a staff appointment at the war office and the Hoff college, and has become one of the "brains" of the war office. Soon after this war began he was promoted to brigadier and last year became a major general. For some time he has been director of staff duties at the war office.

Nye's appointment was approved unanimously by the press, but the Daily Mirror and the Daily Herald injected a sour note into comments on Dill's retirement. The Mirror, asserting that Dill largely was responsible for the British strategy in the western desert [Libya], Greece, Syria, Crete, and for "what we have not done in western Europe," said that "his reaching the age limit will be accepted merely as a convenient excuse for making a change advisable for other reasons." It suggested, despite the fact that Premier Churchill will be 67 years old this month, that the same age limit be applied to the cabinet and ambassadors.

Urges Fuller Explanation.

The Daily Herald, in describing adherence to the age limit as "crazy," asked the government for a more detailed account of the reasons for Dill's retirement. Using the war office's own phraseology in appreciation of Dill's talents, the Daily Herald said:

"At midnight on Dec. 24 this outstanding strategist, compelling, indefatigable, sincere, charming personality, this really unique commander, will cease to be chief of the imperial general staff. . . . Now, what is behind all this?"

The Daily Mail and Daily Telegraph both insisted the 60 year limit is a "wise provision" in the stress and strain of modern war. The News Chronicle welcomed the shakeup, which, it said, may "introduce some much needed invigoration into the army high command." The Mail suggested that Nye was being "prepared for supreme command."

The Daily Sketch similarly hailed Nye's appointment as a "symbol," declaring that "what we want is more men in the high command who were no more than captains in the last war."

British Shakeup

(Story in adjoining column.)

Lieut. Gen. Sir Henry R. Pownall, 53, vice chief of the British general staff, who has been "selected for a special appointment" as yet undisclosed, and Gen. Sir John Dill, 60, who is to be replaced as chief of the general staff on Dec. 25 by Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, 58.

PEER CHARGES BRITISH CABINET MEMBER SETS UP HIS OWN 'GESTAPO'

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—An accusation that Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, was creating a "Gestapo" in Britain similar to the Nazi secret police was made in the house of lords today by Lord Ponsonby.

Herbert Morrison.

In an address Ponsonby defended the duke of Bedford, who has been under surveillance of the home security ministry because of pacifist utterances and alleged dealings with the Germans. Ponsonby said of the duke:

"I know him to be a high minded, disinterested and absolutely sincere man, jealous of the good name of his country and intent upon her future welfare."

U. S. Pilot Named Leader of Eagle Squadron in RAF

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—A 21 year old American flight lieutenant, Chesley Gordon Peterson of Santaquin, Utah, has been named commander leader of the Eagle squadron, American flying unit in the RAF, the Star, London evening newspaper, said today. Peterson would be the first American to lead the Eagles. The last leader, Thomas Meares, a Briton, was killed in a collision. Peterson has been in England for about 12 months. On Oct. 9 he was awarded the distinguished flying cross. He is credited with "probably destroying" two German planes.

WIDOW'S HEIRS ACCUSE RECTOR IN ESTATE FIGHT

Charge He Wooed Way Into Share of Million.

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 18 [Special].—The Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington, widely known rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, fashionable Episcopal church on New York's 5th avenue, was named in court proceedings here today as having been "the lover" of the late Mrs. Anna Hollingsworth Siter Paton, wealthy widow who was 77 years old when she died last Jan. 7.

The charge was made before Surrogate Charles D. Millard by Attorney Joseph Nickerson, counsel for relatives seeking to break the will in which Mrs. Paton left part of her estate of more than $1,000,000 to the clergyman.

The attorney said Dr. Darlington had known Mrs. Paton since 1926, when he preached the sermon at the funeral of her husband, Morton S. Paton, attorney.

Love Letters Copied.

"I have photostatic copies of love letters which Darlington wrote," Nickerson told the judge. "It is known that Darlington was a lover of this woman."

He made the statements in asking that the case be heard in open court rather than in the surrogate's chambers, as was requested by executors.

"They want to limit the examination to a couple of years," Nickerson said. "They know that Darlington met her in 1926 when he preached her husband's funeral service."

The surrogate, however, granted the request for a closed hearing after Raymond A. Carter, attorney for the executors, said his firm "had been served with papers disparaging to the decedent."

"Like a Mother to Him."

Judge Millard said he would hear further arguments in his chambers on Nov. 28.

"This is all bosh," said Charles A. Fay, counsel for Dr. Darlington. "I am certain we can disprove the charges when the case comes to trial. Dr. Darlington is 52. Mrs. Paton was 77. Dr. Darlington is happily married. Mrs. Paton was like a mother to him. His mother lived until her death in Mrs. Paton's apartment."

Relatives of Mrs. Paton contend that she was not of sound mind when her will was signed in April, 1940, and that the signature was obtained by fraud and undue influence.

Under terms of this will, Dr. Darlington was bequeathed the income during his lifetime from three-tenths of the residuary estate after some other bequests are made with contingent interests to two of his children, Peter and Henry Darlington Jr.

He receives as an outright gift of Mrs. Paton's country estate known as Nirvana at Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., as well as all its household furnishings.

Church to Get Memorial.

Dr. Darlington is to have the right of appointment in disposing of two-thirds of the principal of his share of the estate and the remaining third is to be paid by the executors to the endowment fund of his church as a memorial in his honor.

Objections to the will were filed by Mrs. Paton's sister-in-law, Mrs. Edith Collins Siter of Philadelphia, widow and executrix of a brother of Mrs. Paton, and two of Mrs. Siter's daughters, Mrs. Mary Siter Owen and Mrs. Elizabeth Siter Pemberton.

Dr. Darlington is the son of Bishop James Henry Darlington. His wife is the former Dorothy Stone-Smith of Llewellyn Park, N. J. He served with the AEF during the World war and has since served as chaplain of the New York and New Jersey National Guards. He is a 32d degree Mason and has been rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, one of New York's important parishes, since 1922.

PROTEST ARMY'S MOVE TO OUST 3 PLANT OFFICIALS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Rep. J. Parnell Thomas [R., N. J.], today protested to Robert Patterson, undersecretary of war, against what Thomas said was a war department demand that three officials of Air Associates, Bendix, N. J., resign as a preliminary to returning the plant to private management.

Soldiers were sent to the plant on Oct. 31 after a labor dispute threatened to tie up the manufacture of airplane parts needed in the rearmament program. The company holds $5,000,000 worth of government contracts.

Hill's Ouster Asked.

Thomas said the war department notified the board of directors of Air Associates that the resignations would be the chief condition for getting the plant back into company hands. The officials involved in the demand are President F. Le Roy Hill, Vice President H. I. Crow, and the company's counsel, Walter Chalaise.

Rep. Thomas sent Patterson a wire describing the reported demand "an act of coercion" and declaring "the basic principle of American democracy has been sold to the labor barons and 1,500,000 American boys now under arms are defending a hollow cause."

Thomas followed this wire with a telephone interview with Patterson in which he said the undersecretary "took full responsibility for the action."

"The Die Is Cast."

"I pleaded that action be held off; that there was no need for such hasty steps; that this was not the American way of doing things," Thomas said. "But I was told that the die was cast."

"I told the undersecretary that the department was doing the same thing here as the Nazis are doing in France, and I pointed out it was setting a bad precedent which probably would lead to the government turning out the management of other concerns including perhaps the Federal Shipbuilding company at Kearny, N. J.," he said.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Nov. 18 (AP).—A salvage suit filed in federal court today disclosed that the cruiser Omaha was the United States warship which seized the disguised American flagged German freighter Odenwald in Atlantic equatorial waters on Nov. 6.

The Odenwald's crew has been turned over to the United States army, and authorities said presumably they would be handed over to immigration authorities for detention in the same manner as other German seamen.

A 'BLIND DATE' BECOMES FIFTH MRS. MANVILLE

Playboy Weds After 7 Day Wooing.

Ridgefield, Conn., Nov. 18.—Tommy Manville, the gray millionaire playboy who is about the choicest customer the night clubs of New York ever had, married his fifth wife here today after a seven day courtship.

His bride was Bonita Edwards, daughter of a former Chicago lumberman, William Rufus Edwards, who has resided for some years in Miami, Fla. The new Mrs. Manville, a member of the chorus of the show "High Kickers" until she made the decision to marry Manville, is blonde and 22 and has a classic beauty of face and figure.

The ceremony, which was entirely informal, was read by Justice J. J. O'Brien of Greenwich, Conn., in the office of the probate judge here. Manville gave his age as 47. After the wedding, and before he and Mrs. Manville started for the big city's bright lights, he told the story of his rapidly moving romance.

'Most Glamorous Girl in Town.'

He said that last Tuesday he called his friend Jack Eigen, radio producer, and asked for an introduction to "the most glamorous girl in town." Eigen decided Miss Edwards was the No. 1 candidate.

"We had lunch together on Wednesday," said Manville.

On Sunday they were together again and so far along with their plans that they went into a night club to announce their engagement.

Going to Meet In-Laws.

The couple said they would leave in a few hours for Miami, Fla., where for the first time Manville will meet his father-in-law and mother-in-law. To while away their time meanwhile they went to see "High Kickers."

Manville is the heir to a great fortune made in the asbestos business. His fourth wife, Marcelle Edwards [no relative of Bonita], divorced him in 1937.

William Rufus Edwards, Chicago lumberman mentioned in New York news dispatches as the father of Bonita Edwards, who married Tommy Manville yesterday, formerly lived at 2130 Lincoln Park West. Before coming here he resided in St. Paul, Minn.

AUTOPSY SHOWS SKULL FRACTURE IN TORRANCE CASE

MONTERREY, Mexico, Nov. 18 (AP).—A two inch depressed fracture behind the left ear was found today by four physicians performing an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Arthur Torrance. They sought to determine the manner in which the wealthy Michigan woman came to her death on the highway north of here 10 days ago.

Her husband, self-identified New York author and explorer, had theorized in a statement to investigators that his wife died as the result of a blow on the head suffered when their honeymoon car swerved to avoid striking an animal. Torrance said she apparently had struck the rear view mirror of the vehicle.

Fractures Inside Skull.

Gilberto Zardaneta, municipal criminologist, said there were small fractures inside the skull, and that the nose was broken. There were bruises on the left hand and right forearm.

A visceral examination will be made in the federal bureau of investigation laboratory at Washington, D. C.

At the last moment authorities waived a legal requirement that Torrance witness exhumation of the body of his elderly bride. A family friend substituted for the woman's son, Richard Loveland, Los Angeles attorney.

Cousins Dispute Torrance.

Two Mexican cousins were quoted by police as challenging a statement by Torrance that his bride had been hurled from their motor car when it went into a ditch.

Torrance, 54, dragged her from the machine and pulled her six feet before any one could reach him, the cousins testified. Officers said they obtained a sworn statement from the two cousins, Antonio Cantu Garza and Ismael Cantu Garza. This statement said the cousins arrived at the scene of the accident and saw Torrance pulling his wife out of the front seat of the car. The motor was running and the headlights were turned on.

Ismael Cantu Garza swore that he next saw Torrance place his wife back in the car and drive off with her. The cousins added that they followed Torrance to a filling station, where they noticed a quart vacuum bottle on the floor of the car. Ismael said he saw a policeman pick it up, but that Torrance grabbed it and put it back on the floor.

TIME MAGAZINE PAYS DALL LIBEL THRU BACK DOOR

$20,000 Check Delivered Thru Attorneys.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 18.—Time magazine, after having been found guilty of libel and falsehood in publishing the fake suicide of Curtis B. Dall, former son-in-law of President Roosevelt, employed a subterfuge to cover up payment of $20,000 damages, it was learned for the first time today.

Rather than face possible publicity which might have resulted in a flood of libel or slander actions in similar cases, Time made the payment thru the magazine's attorneys to Dall's attorneys. Thus Dall was prevented from exhibiting a $20,000 check made out to him by the magazine.

Signed by Attorneys.

Instead the check was made out to the late Max D. Steuer, one of Dall's attorneys, and was signed by Bruce Bromley of the law firm of Cravath, De Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, counsel for Time magazine. It is estimated Time's futile fight thru the courts against Dall cost the magazine an additional $50,000 in legal fees and other costs.

Time magazine had to make the heavy settlement, it is said in the publishing trade, not only because the Dall story was untrue but because its stock in trade was printing vicious falsehoods and untruths to appeal to the malicious minds of possible readers and thereby gain circulation.

Advertising itself as a news magazine, Time was as silent as the grave on news of the progress of the Dall libel case against itself and especially withheld from its readers the news of the settlement.

Assailed on Court Opinions.

Fought over a period of four years, the Dall case became a cause célèbre in the libel history of publications in this country. Every court which reviewed the case ruled Time had clearly libeled Dall, who described the incident recently as "a flagrant, un-American violation of freedom of the press."

The article which slandered Dall appeared in the April 23, 1934, issue of Time. It began with the false report of his suicide in the White House in the presence of his estranged wife, Anna, now Mrs. John Boettiger.

Dall, who is in the investment business in New York City, was immediately embarrassed by the falsehood. He pointed out that it was hurting his business, which depended upon having people possess confidence in him. Messages deluged both Dall and Time magazine asking about the suicide story, which to many readers appeared real. The victim sued Time for $250,000.

Editor in Witness Stand.

During the trial before Supreme Court Justice Bernard I. Shientag in New York in May 1937, John Martin, Time's editor, admitted on the witness stand that it was the "imaginary mind of Time and not the serious reporting mind of Time" that caused the fictitious report.

It was claimed the story was used to draw readers' attention to the real suicide of Enzo de Bonzes, son-in-law of former Premier Gaston Doumergue of France.

Judge Shientag set aside the jury's verdict in favor of Time and ordered a new trial. He declared Dall had "clearly established a deliberate libel" and to hold otherwise "would be a travesty on justice."

Upheld on Appeal.

This action was unanimously upheld by the appellate division of the Supreme court, with Associate Justice Edward S. Dore delivering the opinion in December, 1937, in part as follows:

"Any written or printed article published of and concerning a person without lawful justification or excuse and tending to expose him to public contempt, scorn, obloquy, ridicule, shame, and disgrace, or tending to introduce an evil opinion of him in the minds of right thinking persons, or injure him in his profession, occupation, or trade, is libelous and actionable whatever the intention of the writer might have been."

The Court of Appeals, highest judicial tribunal in the state of New York, unanimously upheld this view of the lower courts on July 7, 1938. A new trial was ordered and it was ruled the sole question to be determined was the amount of damages Time should pay the plaintiff. Rather than face more publicity Time settled out of court.

U-BOATS IN WHITE SEA ON U. S. ROUTE TO RUSSIA—NAZIS

BERLIN, Nov. 19 [Wednesday] (AP).—German submarines are operating in the White sea, German commentators declared today. They emphasized assertions that this is on the route of any American merchantman bound for Archangel, Russia.

Dients aus Deutschland, well informed commentary, described as significant the German high command communique of yesterday which reported four "armed enemy [British] merchantmen, aggregating 21,000 tons, and one protecting vessel" had been sunk in the North Atlantic and Arctic oceans. The White sea is an arm of the Arctic.

Protest High Rentals in Joliet Housing Project

Typical units in Joliet housing project and rents asked for two of the houses. The $69.50 house has six rooms; the $56 house has four. Mayor George T. Jones of Joliet has protested to Washington that the rentals are "exorbitant" and "absurd."

Project Asks $56-$69 of $36 Man.

Mayor George T. Jones of Joliet, protested personally to Washington, D. C., yesterday against what he called absurd and exorbitant rentals being demanded by the government for its new housing project for munitions workers in the west section of the city.

The government, he revealed, is demanding rents of $56 a month for four room frame cottages, and $69.50 for six room cottages. The average pay of prospective tenants is said to be $36 a week.

The project is made up of 150 houses. Construction was begun last spring. The announced purpose was to ease the housing shortage created in Joliet by employment at the Elwood and Kankakee ordnance plants near by, and to make available decent housing accommodations at rents of $35 to $40 a month. The cost of the entire job was estimated at $750,000.

Renters Turn Away.

Thus far 17 houses are completed, 25 more will be finished by Saturday, and the rest within four weeks. Thus far, however, only three of the completed cottages have been rented, and many munitions workers who expected to benefit by the new project are reported turning away in dismay.

The $56 to $69.50 rent rate was discovered by Mayor Jones a few days ago. He immediatey protested to Karl Borders, chief of the rent section of the price division of the Office of Price Administration, in Washington. Borders promised to investigate. Jones telephoned him again yesterday.

"Whoever set this rent certainly can know nothing of rentals except perhaps as they relate to Washington," Jones asserted. "They ask $56 for a little four room cottage out on the prairie, without even a garage. It's unreasonable.

Private Rentals Curbed.

"At the government's request we set up a fair rent committee to see that landlords did not gouge the munitions workers. Now comes the government as the chief offender. If the government demands such exorbitant rents, what can the fair rent committee say to the private landlord?"

Private rents in Joliet are said to have been kept at a fair level as a result of the committee's work and because of fear that the government thru its project might otherwise establish a rent ceiling. Good houses and comparable apartments bring $45 to $50 a month at present.

The 150 house project is under the control of the Defense Homes corporation, a subsidiary of the Federal Reconstruction fund.

AIR LINES AGREE TO PAY CITY FOR BUS OPERATION

Air line officials agreed yesterday to compensate the city for operation of air line buses to and from the loop. The agreement was one of several reached by representative of the air lines, a council subcommittee headed by Ald. John J. Duffy [19th] and city department heads.

The negotiation included a proposed contract under which the air lines are to lend the city $1,200,000, interest free, for construction of a new airport terminal building.

The bus agreement provides that the city will receive 10 per cent of the gross revenue, or a minimum of 10 cents for each passenger. Ald. Duffy estimated 300,000 passengers rode in the air line buses last year. The group will meet today to discuss who shall provide liability insurance for all persons at the airport.

15 Drink and Drive in Merry Test of Alcohol at Wheel

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 18 [Special].—Fifteen men went on a drunken spree at the expense of police today. They drank all the whisky they could hold, then drove automobiles to their hearts' content without encountering any opposition from the law. In fact, the police encouraged their drunken driving because it was done in the name of science.

The men were participating in a test to determine how soon and how badly alcohol and gasoline mix. Some of them proved quickly that the two are anathema to each other, but several startled authorities by their ability to handle an automobile after they had consumed seven 2 ounce drinks of whisky.

But Few Are Chosen.

The police had no difficulty finding volunteers to drink the 75 pints of whisky and quantities of beer and other liquor they had provided. Fifty-seven men offered themselves as guinea pigs, but only 16 were chosen.

One of the 16 passed the physical examination required before the test was started, then decided he had better telephone his wife and ask her permission. He withdrew after she told him determinedly: "I'm warning you, you had better not come home drunk with an excuse like that."

Every half hour the drivers took 2 ounce shots at a bar tended by the police. All of them chose whisky, spurning beer. Between drinks they drove cars forward and backward, in a straight line and around a figure eight course in an arena laid out in the American Royal building, where livestock shows are held.

Each Has a Helper.

Beside each volunteer rode a sober helper. Frequent examinations with a drunkometer were followed with tests of eyes, blood pressure, and reflex actions. Truck drivers, car salesmen, painters, paperhangers, and newspaper men were among the participants.

One by one the drivers gave up, admitting they were too drunk to drive, or passed out of the picture without a murmur. But when the police-tended bar was closed at 7 p. m. and the tests ended for the day, after they had been in progress 5½ hours, four men were still eager to drive and were driving well.

Three of the survivors were newspapermen and one was a youth of 24 who never before had had a drink.

One of the four, whose last driving test had been perfect, decided to telephone his girl and tell her how well he was doing. He passed out in the telephone booth. However, two of those remaining, a newspaperman and the nondrinking youth, passed all their tests with flying colors, only the drunkometer showing them to be drunk.

DENIES DESTINY OF AMERICA IS WITH ENGLAND

Sea power is now secondary to air power and this fact helps rather than detracts from the ability of the United States to defend itself. This was the theme of a talk last night to the Oak Park chapter of the America First committee by Samuel B. Pettengill, former congressman from Indiana. The meeting was in the Leyden Township High school.

"We are told that England's navy is our first line of defense," Pettengill said. "This is nothing more than a fear campaign to scare Americans into believing our destiny lies with England. We ought to fight, if at all, on our side of the Atlantic."

ITALIANS ARREST U. S. RECTOR OF A CHURCH IN ROME

ROME, Nov. 18 (AP).—Italian police today arrested the Rev. Dr. Hiram Gruber Woolf of Elmira, N. Y., rector of the famous St. Paul's American Episcopal church in Rome. The police held him incommunicado after informing United States embassy officials that his case was being investigated "on suspicion of intelligence activity" which had nothing to do with the rector's church activities.

Dr. Hiram Woolf.

The minister, who formerly held pulpits in Dresden and Munich, Germany, was arrested in his rectory at 9:30 a. m., two days before he planned to conduct a Thanksgiving day service at which he would have read President Roosevelt's annual Thanksgiving day proclamation.

One Version of Proclamation.

The official Italian news agency, Stefani, has circulated a version of this proclamation quoting Mr. Roosevelt as thanking "the God of the United States," and one newspaper, La Stampa of Turin, has characterized this as "a case of delirious pride."

[Actually Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation, issued Nov. 8, said "We are grateful to the Father of us all . . ."]

The two policemen who took the Rev. Dr. Woolf into custody searched the rectory, behind the church which is in the Via Nazionale, a principal thorofare. They confiscated a tray of visiting cards and copies of the unofficial news bulletin which the United States department of state sends to the embassy here by radio.

This bulletin was the property of two embassy clerks, Lisle Piepenburg of Reedsville, Wis., and Hugh Osborne Macauley of Washington, D. C., who have quarters in the rectory and were present at the time of the arrest.

SERVED IN GERMANY.

The Rev. Dr. Woolf left Germany over a year ago on the advice of the United States consulate. He was transferred to Rome in October of 1940.

Last Fourth of July extremist Fascists were irritated because he flew the Stars and Stripes alongside the Italian flag from the façade of his church in Rome. The rector is a bachelor.

HOTEL CLERK SLUGGED, ROBBED.

Clarence Kolvel, resident night clerk at the Jonquil hotel, 1600 Jonquil terrace, was slugged by two bandits and robbed of $57.

SWIM CHAMPION SAVES, CAPTURES 5 RAF FLYERS

BLANKENBERGHE, Belgium, Nov. 9 (AP).—[Delayed.]—Five exhausted RAF flyers adrift in a rubber boat were rescued today by Jean Guillini, Belgian swimming champion, who battled his way thru icy waters of the English channel for 50 minutes.

The Britons, who had crashed in a gale off the Belgian coast, were reached by Guillini just as a German motor patrol boat passed. The storm made it impossible for the Germans to approach the airmen's tiny boat, so Guillini swam with a tow line from one craft to the other.

The Germans brought the RAF men ashore and made them prisoners.

How to Overcome Your Troubles by Dale Carnegie

This is the seventh of a new series of articles on successful living, written by Dale Carnegie, and published by the makers of the new Old Gold—the cigarette blend that has added something new—rare, flavorful Latakia tobacco.

Recently, I met Jack Skirball, a Hollywood producer, who makes pictures with Frank Lloyd; and he gave me this advice: "When we are defeated, it is almost always by internal causes and almost never by external causes."

True? Yea verily. Let me illustrate. I know two men who were modestly rich in 1929 and flat broke in 1932. Fate kicked one of these men, a former banker, into a job of washing dishes in a restaurant. Fate kicked the other one, a former owner of a large store, into wearing a patched shirt and working in one of the shoddiest establishments in Kansas City.

The former banker couldn't take it. His jaw sagged. Hate, bitterness and rebellion dripped from him as he walked. The former merchant took his losses with a philosophic smile and confessed to me that the prizes he had once worried and struggled for weren't worth the sacrifices he had made.

Both of these men had met the same external fate. One went down in defeat because of what happened inside of him. The other triumphed over what happened outside of him because he solved the problems inside of him.

From now on, why don't you and I stop fuming about what happens outside of us, and devote our energy to controlling what happens inside of us? That is all that really matters anyway.

Dale Carnegie

ANOTHER SUGGESTION . . . When troubles beset you, and you're anxious and worried, a mellow, soothing cigarette can often be a comfort. Light up a new Old Gold—and try letting your troubles float away on the fragrant smoke of this new, pleasant blend.

For something new has been added to today's Old Gold—something that, in the words of Elaine Drake, of New York City, makes it "delightfully different from the usual run of cigarettes." That something new is costly Latakia, from the eastern Mediterranean—gives new Old Golds a fresh delightful goodness.

Try this new Old Gold today.

Something NEW has been added! Look for Dale Carnegie's next column, on this same day next week.

WEATHER BETTER; NAZI DRIVE ROLLS AGAIN IN RUSSIA

Berlin Claims Reds Quit Part of Leningrad.

BERLIN, Nov. 18 (AP).—German military spokesmen announced tonight the weather on the Russian front had taken a turn so favorable that the entire German line again could be set in motion.

Their optimistic prediction came at the end of a day which brought out this scanty grist of military claims:

1. That continuous German artillery bombardment has forced the Russians to evacuate the southern part of besieged Leningrad, leaving it a no man's land which the Germans apparently, have not yet attempted to occupy.

2. That "a large town," which might be any one of a score of cities, has been reached by the German forces on one salient of the Moscow front, and that 124 Russian tanks had been captured during an unspecified period in this sector.

Faster Cleanup in Donetz.

Especially in the Donetz basin, the spokesmen said, clearing weather and better roads—presumably now hard frozen—have permitted faster "clean-up" operations.

For some time, the oncoming Russian winter so affected the campaign along the whole front that German military reports had spoken less and less of large troop movements, but instead had restricted themselves to detailing activities of units up to the size of a division.

The high command itself noted the better weather today in the Donetz basin, south of which lies the North Caucasus. It said "the enemy was thrown out of field positions" which were stubbornly defended, that additional industrial objectives were occupied, and that several freight trains, with steam up, were seized by German units in a surprise foray.

Dive Bombers Hit Sevastopol.

The daily bulletin reported the dive bombing of port facilities and fortifications at the Crimean naval base of Sevastopol, where a large freighter was declared sunk and a destroyer and another freighter damaged. Air raids on Moscow, Leningrad, in the far north, and elsewhere were noted.

The air force announced the destruction on Monday of 24 Russian planes, but Russian wings had not been so sharply clipped as to prevent attacks in the last week on eastern German territory. Provincial papers reaching Berlin said that Russian planes appeared five days ago over Breslau after a flight of at least 750 miles from Russian lines, dropping bombs which killed 10 Silesians and made many homeless.

CLOTHIER LINKED TO DILLINGER IS SEIZED IN THEFTS

Arthur [Fish] Johnson, 37 years old, who once was known as a contact man for the Dillinger gang, was taken to the central station last night on a charge of receiving stolen property. Police reported that Johnson, who has a store at 2838 Armitage avenue, was seized after shipments of stolen clothing from other cities had been accepted by him.

Altho Johnson has been arrested dozens of times, he has never been convicted of any crime. Last April he was tried with seven other men in the federal District court for the theft of interstate shipments. The seven were convicted, but he was found not guilty.

Johnson said last night that it was his rule not to complain about frequent arrests. He was booked and admitted to bail after a writ of habeas corpus had been filed in his behalf.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Thousands more Canadians, including field artillery, service corps units, and hundreds of airmen, have arrived safely in Britain, it was announced tonight. The convoy which brought them over ran into heavy storms, but reached port without encountering a U-boat or sighting a German plane.

GERMANS WARNED TO VISIT AIR RAID FIRST AID DEPOTS

30 Bed Shelters Spread Thruout Reich.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Air raid first aid stations, German authorities declared today, are so generously spread thruout the "air endangered areas of Germany" that such a place is to be found within the limits of every local police precinct.

Every German, it was emphasized, must make certain he knows where the nearest first aid depot is in his neighborhood before the next air raid alarm sounds. The people were warned that these stations alone are responsible for victims of air attacks. First aid must be sought at the closest station which can be reached.

30 Beds in Stations.

The stations were described as bomb proof shelters with space for first aid treatment and beds for 30 persons. Some have waiting rooms, dressing rooms for men and women, shower baths and rest rooms, kitchenettes and operating rooms.

During air raids each first aid station is manned by a doctor, trained attendants, and a nine man sanitary squad equipped with an ambulance.

Forbid Locking of Attics.

A new police regulation forbids residents to lock up attics. It was explained that attics and garrets must be searched for incendiary bombs after raiders fly over the neighborhood. In cases where attics must remain locked for special reasons, peek holes must be bored to permit a visual examination.

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 17 [Delayed] (AP).—Britain is pushing a new backroad truck and train supply route from India to Russia to swift completion, the Indian defense department disclosed today. One trial trip over the route from India by way of Baluchistan and eastern Iran has just been completed.

BRITISH LET ITALIAN PRISONERS IN HOLY LAND SEE JERUSALEM

ROME, Nov. 18.—A large group of Italian prisoners in Palestine has been permitted to visit the holy places under the guidance of the apostolic delegate, Msgr. Gustavo Testa, the Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, announced today. The newspaper calls it "an initiative certainly without precedent among prisoners of any war."

The tour was made, it says, "with the kind consent of the British authorities, thru the initiative and at the expense of the pope."

Msgr. Testa is said to have sent the pontiff an enthusiastic account of the trip. In Jerusalem the Italian prisoners not only prayed for their families, but "every prosperity for their own country," writes the Osservatore.

ITALIANS RATION CHEAP MEAT TO LOWER CLASSES

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Nov. 18.—The rationing of those types of meat, including entrails, hitherto exempted for restrictions, was announced today. Each head of a family must now register the members of his household at the butcher shop.

Until now Italians were allowed to buy 100 grams [about a quarter pound] of meat a week per person, but the sale of entrails and sacked meat was free. The lower classes were the largest consumers of this type of meat. Under the new measure people will be allowed to buy on given days an average of 100 grams of beef two days a week, pork three days a week, lamb or chicken three days a week, and sacked meat three days a week, the daily ration not to surpass 100 grams.

One reason for the rationing, according to the press, is that many people crowd butcher shops on meat days buying large quantities of entrails and lamb. The supply would thus be exhausted in a few hours.

REDS ADMIT NAZIS FORCE A BREAK IN CRIMEA DEFENSE

Masses of Planes, Tanks Aid German Drive.

MOSCOW, Nov. 19 [Wednesday] (AP).—Red army troops are falling back toward the Caucasus on the Kerch peninsula at the eastern tip of the Crimea, but are withstanding fresh Nazi blows on the Moscow and Donetz basin fronts, the Moscow radio indicated today.

[The Germans already have claimed the capture of Kerch and the British radio in a broadcast heard in America said the Russians had escaped across the narrow Strait of Kerch to the western Caucasus with all their equipment.]

Fierce fighting was reported in the Kalinin and Volokolamsk sectors northwest of Moscow and in the southwest. The communique said "our troops are beating off enemy attacks, destroying equipment, and annihilating the man power of the Germans."

But at Kerch Moscow admitted a German breakthru after the Nazis threw six infantry divisions against the Red lines. There the Germans were aided by "a considerable superiority in planes and tanks," the Russians said.

"At Cost of Colossal Losses."

Without acknowledging the German claim of having entered Kerch, Lieut. Col. Abdulayev, a soviet officer, was quoted as saying the Germans "at a cost of colossal losses," had forced a break in the Red isthmus defenses.

"The enemy continues its offensive," he said, "and soviet units slowly are retreating, offering stubborn resistance. Both sides are suffering heavy losses."

At Sevastopol, on the western end of the Crimea, the Germans used four infantry divisions and one motorized division in an attempt to crack the defenses of that Black sea naval base, but they met "very strong soviet resistance," Moscow said.

In the Donetz basin fighting the Germans were declared to have suffered heavily in their attempts "to make rapid gains . . . they are meeting resolute soviet resistance everywhere . . . winter also has asserted itself there in the last few days."

Begin Offensive at Railroad.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Germans were reported tonight to have loosed a new offensive aimed at cutting the railway from Moscow to Rostov and appeared simultaneously to be gathering their now limited air power for concentrated assaults upon small areas of the Caucasian approaches.

This latter and coördinated maneuver was directed at Rostov itself, the northern gateway to the Caucasus, and at the narrow barrier of the Kerch strait to the south.

The new German land drive against the Moscow-Rostov railway, it was said, was launched on the sector east of Orel, which is about 200 miles south of Moscow, and was led by two German tank divisions. It was accompanied by a German attempt to beat eastward from Kursk, below Orel.

The railway is vital for supplying Moscow with oil and other essential commodities from the south. The line is about 150 miles east of the Orel-Kursk front.

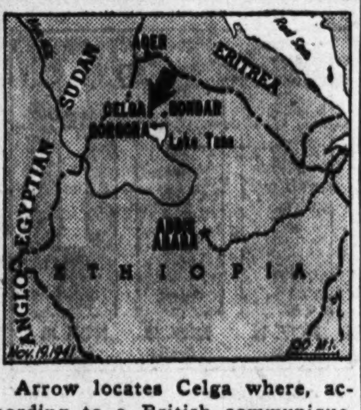
Italians Shelled



Arrow locates Celga where, according to a British communique, Italian positions have been under British shell fire. Elsewhere in the district Italians were called upon to lay down their arms.

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, Nov. 18 (AP).—British forces closing in on the last remaining Italian forces in Ethiopia, virtually besieged in the northern mountains around Lake Tsana, have opened artillery fire and called upon one garrison to surrender, the British command here announced today.

Big guns brought in from the Egyptian Sudan on the west have begun shelling Italian positions west of Celga, a communique said, while forces entrenched at the garrison of Gorgora and Lake Tsana have been called upon to lay down their arms.

BIG ARMY PLANE CARRIES 70 TONS IN WEIGHT TESTS

March Field, Cal., Nov. 18 (AP).—The army's giant transport, the B-19, has completed a test flight under gross weight of 140,000 pounds or 70 tons—of which 13 tons was in dummy bombs, the rest in fuel, military equipment, and crew members.

Officials of Douglas Aircraft company, builders of the land plane, claimed this was the biggest load, military or commercial, ever lifted.

Lieut. Col. Stanley M. Umstead was at the controls. The plane used only 3,500 of March field's 6,000 foot runway and was in the air within a few seconds. The B-19, empty, weighs 41 tons. Seventy tons is its normal gross weight but its capacity is rated at 82 tons. The Douglas statement said its weight for the test was nearly triple the normal gross weight of a trans-oceanic Clipper.

The craft still is being tested by the army. It has completed 35 hours in the air.

Britain Buys 120,000,000 Bushels of Canada Wheat

LONDON, Nov. 18 (AP).—Britain has purchased 120,000,000 bushels of wheat from the Canadian wheat board, the ministry of food announced today. The huge transaction, designed to supplement stocks depleted by shipments to Russia, follows another of similar size in May which then was described as history's largest single purchase.

HITLER ORDERS STATE FUNERAL FOR FLYER UDET

Killed While Testing New 'Weapon' for Nazis.

BERLIN, Nov. 18 (AP).—Col. Gen. Ernst Udet, German flying ace of the World war and quartermaster general of the Nazi air force in this war, was killed in an accident yesterday while testing "a new weapon," it was announced today. He was 45 years old.

Ernst Udet.

No details were given concerning the "weapon," but it was intimated it was for the air force. The newspaper Boersenzeitung said "Udet never left it to others to test new equipment, but always took the job himself." This was the only explanation in the press of how a colonel general could be killed during an armaments test.

Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, who had named the German pursuit squadron No. 3 for Udet in recognition of his achievements, ordered a state funeral in his honor. The time and place have not been announced. His body lies in state at the air ministry.

Udet was born on June 22, 1896, in Frankfort-on-Main of Huegenot stock.

FAMED STUNT AIRMAN

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Ernst Udet, who was killed at the peak of his career as a colonel general in the German air force, was known in America as a merry little pilot who performed impossible stunts in tiny airplanes at national air race meetings in the early 1930s. He then was working with a comedy flying act here and in Europe.

From the time Udet joined the German imperial air force in 1916 until his death he made dangerous flights and barely escaped death thru luck and his consummate skill. He was one of the first flyers to pick up a handkerchief with his wing tip.

On a trip to New York in 1931 he dived his plane under Hell Gate railway bridge across the East river in a type of plane he never had flown before.

He was one of the gayest of companions and for years was a habitué of Berlin night clubs and a man about town. His wit and ability as a cartoonist and caricaturist were exceptional. His original pen drawings are prized by the air men of many countries who became his friends. He did not marry and was one of Berlin's most popular bachelors.

Shot Down 62 Planes.

Learning to fly with the German air force in the World war, he won his way to the rank of major and command of the famous Richthofen Flying circus after Baron von Richthofen was killed. He ended the war with 62 victories over British, French, and American pilots.

Strangely enough, following the war he became the friend of most of the men who had fought him in the war, such as Rene Fonck, French ace; Billy Bishop, the greatest British and Canadian flyer, and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, America's No. 1 fighting pilot. French aviators honored him in 1928 at the Aero club in Paris by receiving him as the first German guest following the World war.

Udet flew in several UFA motion pictures of whaling in Greenland and the story of an aerial search and rescue of a lost expedition prior to 1931. In 1931 he went to the national air races at Cleveland and was a sensation with his inverted flights at less than 50 feet above the ground.

Narrow Escape as Test Pilot.

Udet probably had made more parachute jumps from disabled planes than any other pilot, for his escapes numbered almost 20. Most of these came while he was testing new aircraft as head of the technical section of the German air force shortly after Adolf Hitler came to power in 1933. Udet insisted upon flying all the new types of planes.

In recent years Udet had charge of ordnance for the Nazi air force and technical establishments of the parachute troopers. He steadily rose in rank until recently he became a colonel general on July 19, 1940, second only to Field Marshal Gen. Erhard Milch.

JAPS THREATEN RUSSIA OVER SHIP SUNK BY MINE

New Answer to Protest Is Demanded.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 19 [Wednesday].—Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo told the nation thru the diet [parliament] yesterday that unless Russia removes the danger to Japanese shipping and pays compensation for the sinking of the merchant ship Kehi Maru by a mine, Japan will adopt other measures than diplomatic protests to attain its objective.

He disclosed that the soviet ambassador rejected the first Japanese protest on the grounds that the mines laid by Russia [near Japanese territorial waters] were provided with a safety device, and that these mines were laid not against Japan but against Germany and Italy.

Togo declared he told the soviet ambassador that the Japanese government considers the answer entirely without reason, and that, therefore, the soviets should reconsider the issue and bring an answer based on sincerity.

In the lower house Yadanji Nakajima questioned Togo at length on this issue and brought up the point in the Togo speech that there is no apprehension in the situation to the north in view of the neutrality pact with Moscow. Togo assured that the government is taking appropriate steps to insure the security of Japan.

Threatens U. S. with Axis Pact.

TOKIO, Nov. 18 (AP).—Japan intimated today that her decision as to how to define her obligations under the third clause of the Axis pact, which could be interpreted to mean a shooting alliance with Germany and Italy, might depend upon the result of Saburo Kurusu's mission to Washington.

This was the inference thrown out by Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo before a parliament that by its vast military appropriations and other actions had given elaborate manifestations of unity behind the government. It was at once accepted in some foreign quarters as a bargaining effort in which the empire was using her strongest diplomatic weapon: A threat to draw closer to the Axis.

The result of Kurusu's conversations in Washington was as yet unpredictable, the foreign minister observed, adding:

"It is still too early to state what effect the outcome will have on the third clause of the tripartite pact."

Kurusu "Only an Aid."

Togo declared Kurusu had been sent to the United States only to assist Ambassador Nomura, and "carried no new instructions."

Premier Hideki Tojo and Navy Minister Shigetaro Shimada announced to the diet that the army and navy were ready for any eventuality, but these expressions were prompted by inquiries respecting relations with Russia rather than the United States—specifically concerning the sea of Japan, where the loss of two Japanese ships has been blamed on drifting soviet mines.

Premier Tojo announced that another extraordinary session of the diet might be called after the present special session ends tomorrow.

"I speak here to the entire world," he added solemnly, "not merely to members of the diet. World attention has been closely focussed on the imperial diet; therefore the significance of calling an extraordinary session is apparent."

Stick to Pact, Berlin Warns.

BERLIN, Nov. 18 (AP).—German sources, asked whether Germany would welcome a peaceful arrangement between Japan and the United States, said today that a "modus vivendi would be welcomed but, of course, it must be on the basis of the three power pact."

NaziConsul's Wife Robbed; Berlin Protests to Japan

SHANGHAI, Nov. 18 (AP).—Berlin has protested to Tokio over an alleged assault and robbery of Mme. Ernst Neumann by Japanese soldiers, it was reported today from Saigon. Mme. Neumann is the wife of the German consul at Saigon. The reports said she was alone in her automobile when the Japanese stopped her, entered the car, held her arms, and rifled her purse.

FIGHT JAPANESE NOW, ADVICE OF ADM. STIRLING

Altho not sufficiently prepared to whip the Japanese, the United States should go to war with them now, in the opinion of Rear Adm. Yates Stirling, U. S. N. retired.

Rear Adm. Stirling.

"War in the orient might last years," the retired admiral said in an interview, "and we don't have a two ocean navy. It is possible, however, to fight a two ocean war. We must go into a Pacific war or let the Japanese run off with the bacon. It is better to fight now than to appease Japan."

He said present negotiations between the Japanese and American governments are bluff on the part of Japan.

"They are trying to bluff us out of the far east," he said. "Ready or not, we must call that bluff. Japan may be ready to trade, but only at exorbitant prices. She wants recognition of her sphere in China and in Indo-China. This might not be fatal to our interests, but would be fatal to the principles for which we are fighting."

The admiral said the United States already is at war with Germany and has to win it; otherwise, Hitler would make us pay a high price for raw materials.

Adm. Stirling spoke last night to the Anshe Emet forum, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street.

7 BILLION ARMS BILL DELAYED BY ISSUE OF STRIKES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Administration leaders decided today to postpone house consideration of President Roosevelt's request for $7,082,419,046 additional armament funds, informed sources said, lest it be made a vehicle for strike-curbing legislation.

The feeling of the leadership, it was said, was that ill considered amendments might be hastily tacked on the bill.

After a conference with Speaker Sam Rayburn, Chairman Clarence Cannon [D., Mo.] of the house appropriations committee announced that the huge new money bill would not be brought before the house until the first week of December.

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, spent several hours with the committee behind closed doors explaining the need for the army's $6,687,000,000 share of the new funds and members said they had been assured no new American expeditionary force was in the making.

JAPAN REPORTED READY TO YIELD MUCH FOR PEACE

Ambassador Disturbed by American 'Gloom.'

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Indications that Japan is prepared to make far reaching concessions in an effort to avert war with the United States were given by Japanese diplomats today as they continued their negotiations with officials of this government.

In contrast to the Japanese professions of hope and optimism, however, comments by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull were terse and noncommittal.

At his press conference President Roosevelt, who conferred yesterday with Adm. Kichisaburo Nomura, the Japanese ambassador, and Saburo Kurusu, Japanese special peace emissary, said he supposed he would see them again.

Hull Refuses Information.

Secretary Hull, following his second conference with the Japanese representatives today, said the discussions thus far had been exploratory and involved general rather than specific considerations. He said he could not disclose whether there has been general agreement thus far without running the risk of being misunderstood.

Adm. Nomura asked reporters at the state department why American newspapers are "so gloomy."

"We are very hopeful," he said. "You Americans are always in a fighting mood. Why are you so war minded?"

Regrets American Interpretations.

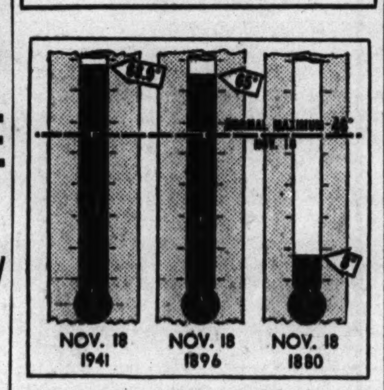
The Japanese ambassador deprecated American press interpretations attributing an uncompromising attitude to Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo, who told the Japanese diet yesterday that Japan's demands for a settlement included cessation of the "hostile" economic blockade and "military encirclement" of her empire and noninterference by the United States and Great Britain with the Japanese war in China.

When it was suggested to Adm. Nomura that this represented an inflexible and uncompromising attitude on the part of Japan, he replied: "That's just your interpretation."

The ambassador's remark resulted in speculation that the Japanese premier was talking primarily for home consumption. This supposition was based on well authenticated reports that the former Konoe government of Japan, which fell and was succeeded by the Tojo ministry in October, offered sweeping concessions in an effort to appease the Roosevelt administration.

Japan, it is understood, offered to get out of China except for the maintenance of air and naval bases in certain cities and to withdraw from her alliance with the axis powers.

November Heat



A comparison of yesterday's maximum temperature with the previous record high for Nov. 18, the record low for the date, and the normal maximum temperature for the date.

The temperature in Chicago reached 68.9 degrees at 2:50 p. m. yesterday, making it the hottest Nov. 18 in the 69 year history of the weather bureau, Forecaster R. E. Gumpf reported. The previous high was in 1896, when 65 degrees was recorded.

November weather has been a haphazard affair, Gumpf said. From Nov. 7 to 11, 3.6 inches of snow fell in Chicago, when normally the city would receive only 1.8 inches the whole month. Beginning Oct. 12, the temperature has reached daily maximums in the 50's and 60's, even reaching 70 degrees on Monday.

Gumpf said that today will be increasingly cloudy, with showers in the evening. The mild temperatures will continue thru the day, but Thanksgiving day the mercury is expected to drop down to the middle 40's.

THREE CANADIAN SEAPLANES PASS NIGHT IN CHICAGO

Three large flying boats bearing the insignia of the Canadian royal air force landed on Lake Michigan yesterday at the foot of Monroe street. They were moored for the night at the docks of Chicago Yacht club. Members of the crews smilingly refused to give their names or to disclose their mission, except in private to immigration and customs officials, who arrived soon after the landing to give them port clearance. It was learned that they had come from Canada and are on their way to an undisclosed destination in Texas. The flight commander gave his name as Lieut. R. I. Thomas.

TANKS DEFEATED BY WOOD STICKS IN GUN SHY WAR

Two Troopers Killed

Chester, S. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Fourth army corps headquarters announced tonight that two members of the 6th cavalry were fatally injured this morning when a heavy vehicle fell from a bridge into six feet of water near Peachland, N. C., in the First army maneuver area. The dead were listed at the Fourth corps surgeon's office as Sergt. Ellsworth K. Saxer of Garrett, Ind., and James Williams of Colto, Ark.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Chester, S. C., Nov. 18.—Wooden guns are defeating tanks in the battle of flags being waged in the Carolinas between the 4th corps and attached troops, identified as the Red forces, and the 1st army of Blue troops.

The Red side, which includes the 1st and 2d armored divisions, is being pushed back all along the battle front, which now extends in an almost continuous line from Midland, N. C., to Patrick, S. C. All roads behind the Red lines are filled with members of that force retreating or changing positions.

Flags Begin to Wave.

The power of the wooden guns is apparent in virtually every charge of tanks. Flags begin to wave the moment these formidable machines appear in the open. Orange flags mark simulated anti-tank fire by wooden guns. Flags on the turret of tanks signify firing from the machine. White flags waved by umpires indicate a decision in the clash.

In the majority of these incidents observed, victory went to the wooden guns. The tanks are hampered by a shortage of blank ammunition, which provides some basis for their ineffectiveness, but the incongruity of these land dreadnaughts being repeatedly immobilized by wooden sticks is fraying the nerves of tank crews.

"What's the use of taking chances on getting stuck when the fire power of a 28 ton tank is no match for a wooden gun?" one disgusted tank-man remarked.

Show for Local Residents.

However, there is much in the maneuvers that is instructive and, at least to civilians, highly entertaining. Day long street fighting in Wadesboro provided a show for residents as opposing troops shot at each other from hiding places under porches, in stores, and from behind parked automobiles.

Spectacular fighting also took place in Cheraw last night as the 2d armored division clashed with Blue infantry. In that battle 75 mm. guns were used as anti-tank weapons to bombard attacking armored units.

During the last 24 hours the Blues have been pouring across the Pee Dee river at all crossings and extending their line on the west bank. Their apparent purpose is to utilize their superior man power to extend their front to such length that the smaller Red force will be unable to cover it.

Utilizing four permanent bridges and three pontoon bridges, the Blues succeeded in getting bodies of troops across the river between Albemarle and Cheraw during periods when umpires ruled other bridges out of use as a result of Red bombing.

AN AVALANCHE OF SMOKES FOR YANKS IS ROLLING

From Near and Far, They Keep Coming In.

"Smokes for Yanks!"

Chicago and all the nation gave from the heart yesterday to the movement to send Christmas packages of cigarets and tobacco to cheer faraway American soldiers and sailors.

A Chicago girl who has spent many of her 23 years in an invalid's room rolled hand made tipped cigarets to send to the boys patroling the Atlantic and on guard in the bases from Iceland to the Carribean. An Iowa merchant sent word that he had begun the collection of gifts in his own community without waiting for a "Smokes for Yanks!" collection box. Ten other newspapers in great cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific reported that gifts are pouring in from their readers in the movement inaugurated by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

777 Collection Boxes.

"Smokes for Yanks!" were filling 777 collection boxes thruout metropolitan Chicago. And requests for more "Smokes for Yanks!" boxes were coming in by telephone and letter.

Members of the Greater Chicago chapter of the Women of the Moose held a cigaret shower for the "Smokes for Yanks!" campaign last night in their headquarters at Moose hall, 130 North Wells street.

The Medill-Tribune post of the American Legion contributed $10 to "Smokes for Yanks!" at the post's regular meeting and in addition sent a carton of cigarets to every employé of this newspaper now in the armed services.

These are some of the other ways that friends of th ecampaign helped in the plan to show the Yanks that the folks back home are thinking of them —show them with tobacco to glow in their pipe when the going's tough and cigarets to smoke when there's a moment for rest:

Stewart-Warner corporation, 1828 Diversey parkway.—Executives and employés showered cigarets into the corporation's receiving box.

Anita Louise.—The glamorous star of "Mr. and Mrs. North" at the Harris theater, announced she would trade autographed photographs before today's matinée and succeeding night shows for packages of cigarets to go to the "Smokes for Yanks!" cause.

Aurora Radio station WMRO.—Martin R. O'Brien, the owner, broadcast appeals for former service men to contribute cartons of cigarets in memory of the joy they received from cigarets from home in the World war.

American College of Physical Education.—Announced that cigarets instead of cash will be the admission price this afternoon for its annual students' "Turkey Hop" ball at 1019 Diversey parkway.

M. E. Evans—Head of the Majestic Management corporation, began the collection of "Smokes for Yanks!" in the corporation's six hotels.

Hotel Sherman garage — Manager David X. Meyers began enlisting persons in the campaign, with the assistance of Irene Bordoni, star of "Louisiana Purchase."

Checks should be sent to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Tower, Chicago. Cash and gifts of cigarets and tobacco may be brought to The Tribune public service bureaus in Tribune Tower or in the loop at 1 South Dearborn street. Cigarets, cigars, and tobacco may be dropped in the collection boxes thruout Chicagoland.

"Smokes for Yanks!"

OSCAR TURNS OUT TO BE A JONAH TO A PAIR OF NAVIES

GIBRALTAR, Nov. 18 (AP).—Oscar, the Nazi-reared black cat who has been the pet of three warships, is safe and sound here, but all three ships are at the bottom of the sea. In fact, Oscar has been a Jonah to two navies.

He went to sea on the German battleship Bismarck and was picked up by the British destroyer Cossack when the Bismarck was sunk. He transferred from the Cossack to the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, but the admiralty announced recently that the destroyer, too, had been lost.

Now the Ark Royal is gone.

AUTHOR CYCLES OVER U. S.; FINDS 87% OPPOSE WAR

New York, Nov. 18 [Special].—Charles Corwin White, author and former New York hotel executive, declared today in a letter to President Roosevelt that 87 per cent of the American people are opposed to United States participation in the war. The overwhelming preponderance of opinion, he said, is that only an attack within American territorial waters could justify the United States in entering the war.

White said he just had finished a transcontinental survey of American opinion that took him 3,172 miles thru 17 states from New York to California. He traveled by bicycle at a slow pace in order, he said, "to get exact opinions in an impartial manner."

People in all walks of life were polled, said White. They included farmers, school teachers, clothing clerks, housewives, and ministers.

Asked what they thought would be a sane course for the United States to follow, White said he found that a "great preponderance of opinion was that America should prepare thoroly but should not join the war and should not send her ships into war zones."

TAFT SUGGESTS AEF OPPOSITION AS G.O.P. ISSUE

Offers Stand as Test in 1942 Polls.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Sen. Robert A. Taft [R., O.] said today that Republicans might stake their chances of winning control of the house in next year's elections on a pledge to the voters that the party would reject all proposals for sending an American expeditionary force abroad.

Sen. Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], like Taft an opponent of administration foreign policy, expressed the view his party's chances next year "depend a great deal on how well we succeed in getting rid of Wendell L. Willkie and his crowd."

"Mr. Willkie and his associates have created a lack of confidence in the party," Nye told reporters.

G. O. P. Holds to Stand.

Willkie, the 1940 Republican Presidential nominee, consistently has supported administration foreign policy and has urged the party to do likewise, but a majority of Republicans in congress regularly have voted against it.

"Of course," Taft said in an interview, "it is too far ahead to tell exactly what the issues will be. But if we still are not at war and the situation is about what it is now, I believe our party might make a major issue of whether we will send an expeditionary force to some other country."

The Ohio senator, an unsuccessful contender for the 1940 Republican Presidential nomination, said close congressional votes on administration foreign policy issues demonstrated there was a great deal of sentiment in the country against sending American boys to fight in foreign countries.

Control Termed Possible

Taft predicted his party would make substantial house gains in the 1942 off-year elections. He added it was entirely possible that Republicans might capture control of the chamber. There are 260 Democrats in the house and 168 Republicans. The remaining seven members belong to minor parties.

In addition to making an issue of an expeditionary force, Taft said Republicans should put forward a program of postwar rehabilitation.

COL. M'CORMICK TELLS ENGLAND HIS WAR VIEWS

Says He Would Fight to Save Britain.

tory of the state says, however, that the first settlers who went out with Gov. Oglethorpe of Georgia were Germans, Piedmontese, Highlanders, Swiss, Portuguese, and Jews. The captain of the guard was named Von Hotzendorf. In the World war the French were very suspicious of his descendant, Capt. von Hotzendorf of our regular army.

"In later years came Germans escaping the tyrannies of Bismarck and at the same time southern Irish refugees from a tyranny that was both racial and religious. Still later came Poles from partitioned Poland, Czechs, and Slovaks, and Jews from Russia.

"Only the Scandinavian, Portuguese, and Italian peoples and the orientals came here for purely economic reasons. The Negroes, of course, were brought here to be put under oppression. Whoever invented the idea that there is a mother country of the United States had an imagination that dwarfed Shakespeare's.

Tendency to Anglicize Names.

"As English has been the prevailing language there has been a tendency to Anglicize all foreign names. For instance, just as your Lord Mountbatten was born Battenburg, our Maj. Gen. Lawton was born Slavitski. Even so, this list of members of the United States Naval academy football team evidences their difference of origins. It is as follows:

"Froude, Chewning, Vitucci, Donaldson, Knox, Flathmann, Wangaard, Harrell, Busik, Boothe, Cameron, Zoeller, Lee, Schnurr, Sliwka, Day, Fedon, Hill, Opp, Maxson, Chip, Zechella, Clark, Leonard, Werner.

"The colonists did not receive the freedom they came for. In consequence they were in constant revolt. In a single state, South Carolina, six of sixteen governors were driven out by force between the years 1674 and 1712 and during that time there were two major rebellions. Finally the colonists secured independence by the American Revolution.

"Another 30 years found the new country and the British empire at war again. Whatever the original causes, the war aim of the United States was to conquer Canada—the war aim of Great Britain to reconquer the Northwest territory, New England, northern New York, and Louisiana.

Expansion Opposed by Britain.

"The western expansion of the United States, which began with the conquest of the Northwest Territory from the British empire during the Revolutionary war, was followed by the Louisiana purchase, by the acquisition of Florida from Spain, by the annexation of Texas, of Oregon, and California, in the face of bitter resistance by the British government, sometimes approaching open war.

"During the Civil war, the United States was twice on the verge of war with Great Britain and once immediately after it, and again in 1896 over Venezuela. The American acquisitions of the isthmian canal routes were matters of only less serious controversy.

"I recite all this, not to give the impression that there is an inherited resentment against Great Britain, but to make perfectly clear that racially and historically this nation has little in common with the British empire. Contrary to a lot of propaganda, the American nation is not at all like the British colonies, which were established by the empire and have been protected by its fleet.

"The representative assembly, the common law, and the independent judiciary were brought to this continent from England. Freedom of religion and freedom of the press and an executive responsible to the people originated here.

"If you will compare your institutions in 1938 with those of 1787 and ours of that date I believe you will agree you have borrowed as much from us as we inherited from you.

What Americans Believe.

"The great mass of the American people are as wholehearted in their national consciousness as are the British. They are as fully convinced that all men are born free and equal, that titles of nobility should not exist and that there should be an absolute separation of church and state, as you are convinced of the contrary doctrines.

"If the country was less divided on the question of war in 1917 than it is today, it was because it was more apathetic. Then, even after the declaration of war, volunteering was negligible. After the Nivelle defeat, conscription was resorted to as a means to extricate the country from the jam it found itself in. How near it came to catastrophe I know very well because I was with the troops that marched to the assistance of your 5th army. I remember very well how critical we found the situation and how critical it remained until after the battle of Soissons.

"You cannot be blamed for judging our country by the sample you see. Unfortunately for understanding, it is a very false sample.

"People of inherited wealth are not admired here, for the pioneer spirit still persists that every one must work. In England I take it that the doctrine of the great Lord Burleigh still stands, to the effect that inherited wealth is the basis of all gentility.

Rich Americans in Europe.

"For about half a century now, Americans with inherited money have been going to live in Europe—some liking the gayety of Paris and the Riviera, others the charming luxury of British country life.

"These rich Americans have to accept the status accorded them in Europe, which is that of people who have inherited wealth recently made in trade—a place if not below, certainly not far above the salt. Now that the tax laws in both countries are high, they cannot even follow the path of the Astors and acquire titles.

"There is consequently in your minds the feeling that the top Americans are little, if anything, better than your middle class, and the rest of our nation is lower class. With such a feeling you naturally expect us to follow your lead. That status is accepted by perhaps as many as a hundred thousand Americans, but is utterly repudiated by one hundred thirty millions of them who do not admit that any one can be superior to an American citizen.

"It would be unfair to say that these people are the only ones who would embark this country in a war for the British empire.

The Boarding School Group.

"About 50 years ago, again enough parents of wealth had arisen to afford to educate their sons in boarding schools in the English fashion. Many teachers and graduates of these schools are, I regret to say, as much or more English than American in point of view. Harvard and Yale universities, founded to train nonconformist clergymen [I use your idiom to be clear] have been transformed by inherited money into imitations of Cambridge and Oxford. Their presidents are, if not more royalist than the king, certainly more royalist than the duke of Windsor.

"Then there are at least hundreds of people of great wealth, with the influence it brings, whose business affairs are inextricably tied up with the British empire. These various groups are vociferous in their partisanship, going to the extent of buying and founding newspapers consecrated to the service of your empire, but they are few in number. There is no indication that they and those they have influenced are more than 20 per cent of the population.

"The people, as a whole, scoff at the suggestion of the propagandists that the United States is an appendage of the British empire.

"You must bear in mind that 22 years or so ago, after the President of the United States had signed the treaty of Versailles, the senate rejected it and was upheld overwhelmingly at the next election in which President Roosevelt, favoring the treaty, was overwhelmingly defeated as a candidate for Vice President.

"There is no sympathy for Hitler here but there is a strong feeling that he was made by the Treaty of Versailles, just as Napoleon was made by the allied monarchies' war on the French republic and Cromwell by the tyrannies of Charles I. If it were not straying from the subject I could name more dictators similarly created.

"We were not participants in the treaty of Versailles. We were not participants in the various steps which led to war, and when I say we were not participants in the blunders of the war, I do not suggest that our army was any more prepared to resist the German form of attack than were the ones it crushed. They were crushed and Germany is in armed possession of continental Europe.

"I believe I am speaking for the vast majority of people when I say that American help to you thus far has been to save you from invasion. If it were necessary, and I write this after mature consideration, I believe that many Americans would volunteer to aid you in arms to prevent your being conquered, and I am one of them. Beyond that there is a feeling that you probably administer your crown colonies in a more humane way than would Germany, but there is very little support toward a military expedition, either to keep you in possession or to keep Germany out.

Concerning a New AEF.

"If you were unable to land an army on the continent, across a few miles of water, when most of the German army, and practically all of its aviation, were engaged in combating Russia, does it not seem absurd to suggest that we can do this over 3,000 miles of water after the Russian army has been defeated?

"And if we were able to land an army in European France, and with the help of the British empire, and of certain of the overrun people, were able to win a victory, what would happen? I can only judge the future by the past. No sooner would the victory be won than American participation would be dispensed with. There would be another treaty of Versailles, or peace of Westphalia, or congress of Vienna. The victors would take what spoils were available. The defeated would be deprived of everything, including self-respect, and the stage would be set for another war like all those waged back into antiquity.

"When we went abroad in 1917, the two forces were locked in embrace. It was the plain logic of the situation that it would only take a final reënforcement to set the scale.

"I advocated our sending an army to fight in France and was one of the first to go there. Our arriving in France was much like Blücher's arriving on the field of Waterloo.

Situation Different Today.

"The situation is entirely different today, and indeed, is much like the situation at the end of our war of 1812 when neither side could successfully invade the other, when you were blocking our ports with your fleet and raiding our coast towns, and we were raiding your commerce with frigates and privateersmen. It was then found that nothing decisive could be done by either side, and it resulted in a peace not satisfactory to any of the statesmen who started the war but thoroly acceptable to both peoples. Yours Sincerely,

ROBERT R. MCCORMICK."

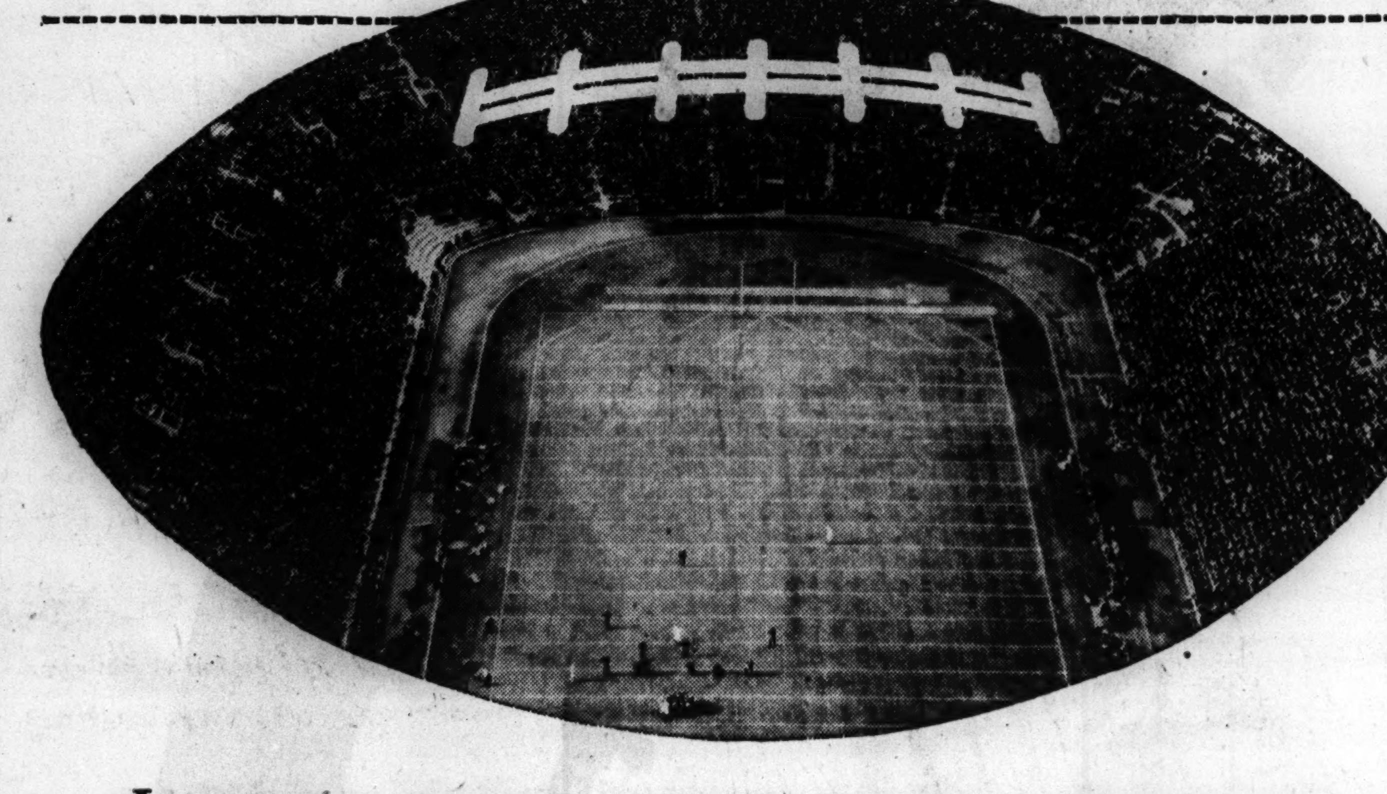
"I help, too!"

The telephone has a big job on its hands these days. A big job meeting the normal needs of American life (making a-thousand-and-one arrangements for this week's big game, for example) . . . a big job, too, answering the emergency demands of national defense.



IN THE Illinois Bell area, telephones now are busy far beyond anything in past experience. This year's new needs have increased the number of calls by more than seventeen million a month over last year's figure.

To handle all these extra calls and to prepare in advance for the needs of the future, your telephone company is investing in 1941 more than $30,000,000 in new lines and new equipment, about two-thirds more than the total for 1940—and in addition is spending much larger sums than in previous years for regular maintenance and operation. Some 3000 more operators are in training and we will make other additions to our force as needed.

Now, as always, it is our constant aim to keep every telephone ready for instant action twenty-four hours a day,—to give you the finest possible service at the lowest possible cost.

BILL TO PEN UP ALIENS IS VOTED DOWN IN HOUSE

Republicans Oppose New Pay Rollers Involved.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—The house of representatives tonight killed a so-called "concentration camp" bill at the end of long and torrid debate which recalled to veteran observers the congressional war session of 1917-'18.

The vote was 167 to 141 in favor of striking out the enacting clause of the Hobbs measure, which provided for the detention of aliens, communists, Fascists, and others.

A combination of Republican and "liberals" helped defeat the bill which, opponents said, would have strewn detention camps about the country wherein foreign born residents of the United States, subject to deportation because of crimes or communistic or Fascist convictions, would have been held without bail.

Oppose More Pay Rollers.

The Republican opposition rested largely on a section setting up a new government department to administer the measure. Numerous members said they were tired of adding to the toppling burocratic structure. Other legislators saw in the measure an invasion of the bill of rights.

Rep. Sam Hobbs [D., Ala.] told the house his bill was essential to solve the government's problem of what to do with aliens whose deportation had been ordered but whose countries had gone out of existence or who refused to receive the deportees.

Hobbs said it was "a smoke screen" to label the bill a concentration camp measure.

Would Have Denied Bill.

The bill would have permitted the detention, without bail but not at hard labor, of aliens against whom a warrant of deportation had been issued for illegal entry; for crimes not connected with their entry into the United States, and for aliens who "at any time shall act, or shall have acted in the United States for any foreign government or foreign political party or group or shall have acted in behalf of the communist party of the United States, the Kyffhaeuser bund, and the German-American bund."

"We face a condition which must be remedied," Hobbs pleaded vainly with the house. "What are we going to do with Harry Bridges if Australia refuses to take him back? Let him run loose again?"

U. S. BARS BRONZE ON VETS' GRAVES TO AID 'DEFENSE'

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—The budget bureau today banned the erection of bronze markers on soldiers' graves.

Harold D. Smith, budget director, explained that in rejecting a war department request for money in the next fiscal year's budget he found the cost of bronze markers has risen from $8.95 to $12.65 each and, moreover, that the bronze was needed in arms industries.

The government regularly puts up markers on veterans' graves, but 9 out of every 10 family requests are for either marble or granite, which henceforth will be used exclusively.

Charges against Eulice Anderson, 20 years old, of contributing to the delinquency of a 15 year old girl, were dismissed in the Boys' court yesterday. Anderson lives at 3316 Walnut street. He was accused of buying liquor for the girl, who later was found drunk. The girl testified he had obtained the liquor at her request, and that she had drunk it after he had taken her home and had left her. Charges against Mrs. Helen Borgeson, 2454 Lincoln avenue, clerk in a liquor store at 3025 Madison street, also were dropped when Anderson testified he did not know whether she had sold him the liquor.

MAYOR, ALLMAN WILL TESTIFY IN GAMBLING PROBE

Commissioner Will Be Witness Today.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Officials of five suburban villages yesterday told the grand jury what they know or don't know about the operations of the Guzik gambling gang in their villages, and then the jurors decided to hear something about metropolitan gambling. Mayor Kelly was invited to appear before the jury next Monday. The mayor accepted and said he would be glad to give the jurors any help within his power.

Police Commissioner Allman is to be a witness before the grand jury today, following five of his captains who have been questioned thus far in the investigation.

Village Officials Testify.

The village officials who faced the jury yesterday were Mayor Henry A. Proesel and Police Chief Lorenz Schey of Lincolnwood, Mayor Frank Stankowicz and Chief R. A. Romey of Niles, Chief Frank Rada of Stickney, Mayor John Cullerton and Chief Frank Rice of Elmwood Park, and Mayor Andrew Frenzel and Chief Robert Wigglesworth of Melrose Park.

Documents previously studied by the grand jury showed that the Guzik gang's slot machine collections for last July were $5,162 in Elmwood Park and $1,974 in "Melrose." The payout sheets showed that Lincolnwood had been credited with a payment of $1,000 and there was also a payment of $600 to some one in Elmwood Park.

The grand jurors were also studying records concerning collections and disbursements in Morton Grove, Skokie, and other towns whose officials appeared as witnesses on Monday. All of them were warned, according to Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley, that any resumption of gambling in their villages would be followed by an immediate request for indictments.

Police Captains Testify.

Capt. Martin McCormick of the city police department's morals division, which has supervision over gambling, and Capt. William Burke of the Marquette station were witnesses yesterday. Lieut. Grover Gormley, who formerly was stationed at Marquette but was recently transferred, was called and is to appear today.

Mayor Kelly and Commissioner Allman both declared there have been no slot machines operating in the city during the time they have been in office. Allman became police commissioner in 1932 and Kelly became mayor in 1933.

POLICE OF JOLIET ORDERED TO KILL ALL STRAY DOGS

An order to shoot on sight all stray dogs in Joliet and Joliet township was issued yesterday by Dr. C. A. Van Ausdall, assistant to the Illinois state veterinarian, as a result of an outbreak of rabies. The order, part of a general quarantine, is effective Saturday.

The measure was agreed upon at a conference of Dr. Van Ausdall, Mayor George T. Jones, and various city and township officials. Under the rule police are to kill all dogs not leashed or in inclosures.

More than 300 persons in the Joliet area have taken Pasteur treatments against rabies in the last month. Among them are eight members of the family of Sheriff James P. O'Neill of Will county. One fatality has been reported. Sixty-six dogs have been found to have been suffering from the disease.

WAR OBJECTORS MAY BE SENT TO REBUILD BRITAIN

U. S. Studies Plan to Use Unemployed Skills.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—A plan to send small groups of conscientious objectors to Latin America, China, and Britain, where their technical skills could be employed in conservation or rehabilitation, is awaiting clearance by the state department, selective service officials said today.

The suggestion was made to the National Service Board for Religious Objectors by the three church groups which operate work camps for the objectors.

Skills Being Wasted.

A selective service official said many men in the work camps are highly skilled, making the type of work to which they are assigned a waste of their abilities.

The idea originally was to send small groups which could provide instruction in modern agricultural methods to farmers in undeveloped regions of Central and South America.

The establishment of hospital services in remote areas was put forward as another useful project. In the case of at least one Central American republic, a radio station to provide mass vocational instruction has been proposed.

1,500 in 21 Camps.

A selective service official reported that the plan embraces China and Britain as well as Latin America, indicating that small staffs might be sent to aid in the rehabilitation of devastated areas.

There will be about 1,500 men in the 21 civilian public service camps by the end of this month. Church organizations bear the cost of operating the camps, which are managed by the American Friends Service committee, the Mennonite Central committee, and the Brethren's Service committee.

POLICE CAPTURE ROBBER, SEARCH FOR HIS PARTNER

Police were searching yesterday for the second of two bandits—the first was captured—who held up the Upper Avenue garage, 232 East Ontario street, in the early morning hours.

The pair menaced Rudolph Anderson, 39, of 214 West Oak street, an attendant, robbed him of $[illegible], stole an automobile, and escaped. Anderson notified Chicago avenue police.

Less than 10 minutes later the robbers were trapped at St. Clair street and Grand avenue. Both leaped from the stolen car and ran. One escaped, but the other, James Rini, 23, of 1456 Orleans street, was found hiding in a vacant lot. On the ground near him lay a revolver. Rini denied owning the gun, but, according to police, admitted participating in the holdup.

MUSIC LEADERS PRAISE, JOIN IN OPERETTA QUEST

400 Already Entered in $10,500 Contest.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Established composers, conductors, and conservatory directors are among the more than 400 registrants in the $10,500 Great American Operetta quest being conducted by W-G-N in connection with the Chicago Theater of the Air productions. Registration in the competition will continue until Jan. 1, 1942.

Percy Faith.

Operettas are to treat of the spirit and achievement of America. The three judged best will be presented over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system on the Theater of the Air in March. Composers of the three works will receive $1,000 each.

Conductors to Enter.

Listeners will then participate in selecting and naming the best work, for which $2,500 will be distributed. The composer of the Great American Operetta, the grand prize winner, will receive an additional $5,000.

Among the musical leaders who have registered their intention to enter the competition the last few days are George King Raudenbush, conductor of the Toledo Symphony orchestra; Percy Faith, conductor of the Contented hour on NBC, and Edney Ridge, musical director of WBIG, CBS station, Greensboro, N. C.

Music Directors Enter.

Directors of music in three colleges have entered: Doric Alviani, director of music at Massachusetts State college at Amherst, Mass.; Paul Velucci, head of the Hartford, Conn., School of Music, and Russell Widoe, department of music, North Dakota State Teachers college, Minot, N. D.

Alfred Hay Malotte, composer, who wrote "The Lord's Prayer" and a musical setting to the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag which was given its première on W-G-N, and H. Emerson McCrosky, Paramount pictures song writer, are two Hollywood figures who have entered the competition.

100 INDEPENDENTS TO FIGHT SUPER RADIO STATIONS

Representatives of nearly 100 independent radio stations affiliated with networks yesterday formed a new association, Network Affiliates, Inc., at a meeting in the Drake hotel and took the first steps toward organizing and prosecuting a fight against the licensing of superpower broadcasting stations.

The fight will be directed particularly against super power operation by existing clear channel stations. NAI will seek to have the present ceiling of 50,000 watts maintained. Clear channel stations are those which do not share their radio frequency with any other station.

Eugene Pulliam, president of WIRE, a 5,000 watt station at Indianapolis, who was elected president of the new organization, said NAI holds the view that an increase in power beyond 50,000 watts to clear channel stations would create a dangerous monopoly of broadcasting power.

COURT DISMISSES CONSCRIPT'S SUIT FOR HIS OLD JOB

The suit of James E. Herbert, a conscript who sought to recover his job and damages from his employer after he had been discharged following his return from a period of service, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Philip L. Sullivan of the federal District court.

The order was entered with the agreement and consent of both Herbert and the A. P. W. Paper company, 9 South Clinton street, his former employers. He had contended that the company failed to give him bona fide employment after his return and that his dismissal had been without cause. The company charged that he was incompetent.

Altho neither party would comment on a possible settlement, Robert C. Eardley, assistant United States attorney assigned to observe the trial, said he was informed that an equitable arrangement had been made.

PLAN REBUILDING OF CHICAGO NOW, M'CROSKY URGES

With or without planning, Chicago will be rebuilt some day, and it is better to plan the rebuilding, declared Theodore T. McCrosky, executive director of the Chicago Plan commission, in a luncheon talk yesterday before the Chicago Rotary club in the Morrison hotel.

"I warn, however," he said, "that if the rebuilding is based on 25 and 30 foot lots, we shall be rebuilding for future slums. We must plan today and keep in mind the thought of taking up the post war slack with a rehabilitation program."

McCrosky said that Chicago "needs badly and now an interconnected system of superhighways." He suggested toll roads. The motorists who use toll roads ought to be willing to pay for them, he said. Those who don't want to use them may use old roads.

A DOG, AN APPLE, YARDSTICK USED IN RESCUING BOY

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP).—Johnny Woods Jr., 2 years old, caught his foot in an iron pipe in the yard of his home here today and it took a chow dog, a policeman, a yardstick, an apple, and 45 minutes to get him free.

The chow's barking called Mrs. John Woods, the boy's mother, from the kitchen. The mother found Johnny balanced precariously with one foot caught in the pipe. She called police, and a radio car responded. Meanwhile, Mrs. Woods seated Johnny in his little rocking chair, and gave him an apple. He ate the apple. Neighbors watched as Policeman John Rice worked 45 minutes without success. Then Rice took a yardstick, pushed it into the pipe, and straightened Johnny's foot, and the boy was freed easily.

Johnny frequently gets into trouble, says Mrs. Woods. There was the time when, during a train ride on a warm day, Johnny thought he would be more comfortable without pants, so he removed them.

3 UNION CHIEFS FREED IN DAIRY GOON VIOLENCE

Not in Contempt of Court, Judge Lewe Rules.

Judge John C. Lewe ruled yesterday that three officials of the milk wagon drivers' union were not in contempt of court for the shootings, beatings, and wrecking of trucks which attended the attempt to organize the Maywood Farms Co., Inc., independent dairy.

Attorney William B. Gemmill, representing the dairy, had asked that the men be cited for violating a previous ruling which had enjoined the

Rules No Link Established.

The judge held that while violence had abounded in and about the dairy, Attorney Gemmill had failed to connect the three defendants with it. He asserted the union has a legal right to picket by peaceful means and attempt to gain members.

"It is unfair to assume," said the judge, "that because there was violence that these men were guilty of that violence. We cannot punish them for the evils of others. I am satisfied there were assaults, but it is unfair to assume that these men were part of a conspiracy to bring about those assaults.

"I think the men who do those things do labor an irreparable damage, and I don't believe the county will tolerate it long. There must be direct evidence here to connect the defendants with violence."

Leslie G. Goudie, president of the Teamsters Joint council, testified that he had visited Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien on Nov. 7 to "try to get him to stop his men from convoying [the dairy's] trucks."

"I told him [O'Brien] I didn't care whether he had one or a dozen squads at the plant," said Goudie, "but didn't think it was right to make delivery men out of policemen."

Says Pickets Called Names.

Goudie said that while he was near the plant he heard dairy employés calling pickets names. He said he told union members to walk away in order to avoid trouble.

Before the closing arguments, Robert Bartholomew of Elgin, an employé of the Elgin Watch company, told of coming upon a wrecked milk truck surrounded by cars on Big Timber road on Nov. 10. Two of the cars pulled away and drove ahead of his car, Bartholomew said.

When the car in front was forced to halt for a freight train, the witness said, he noted the license on the car. Then he drove into Elgin and reported it to police. This license, he testified, was Illinois 502-625.

During an argument over the line of questioning, Attorney David Riskind, representing the union, turned to Attorney Gemmill and asked:

"Off the record, to whom was the license issued?"

Judge Criticizes Witness.

"G. McCarthy, 220 South Ashland boulevard," Gemmill answered after it was assured that the testimony would not go into the record. It was not brought out that the address is that of the milk wagon drivers' union.

Judge Lewe criticized a witness who testified earlier in the hearing that Thomas G. Haggerty, secretary-treasurer of the union, was a member of a goon squad. The witness, Herman G. Wadler, independent milk store owner, had charged that Haggerty was in an automobile from which shots were fired at his car. Judge Lewe, in his criticism, said:

"I tell you frankly I believe Mr. Haggerty, who appears to be a law-abiding citizen, has been done an injustice. I will be charitable with Mr. Wadler. I will say that the court will say he was mistaken in his identity. The story is preposterous. He, Wadler, might say most anything. I do not want to hear any more about it. I do not want to see him around here."

DIES PROTESTS NAMING KNOWN RED TO FCC JOB

Decries Appointment of Goodwin Watson.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Raising the question of the hidden influence that steadily places communists in government positions of authority and trust, Rep. Martin Dies [D., Tex.], chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities, today called on James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications commission, for an explanation of the appointment of Goodwin Watson to an important post in that organization.

Dies described Watson as "a propagandist for communism and the soviet union" who has been given the $5,600 a year position of chief broadcast analyst in the FCC with the duty of analyzing broadcasts from foreign countries "to determine the probable trends of the war, the internal morale, and conditions of foreign nations, their objectives, and their probable political, economic or military action."

The congressman said in a letter to Fly that the appointment of Watson bears out the impression "that there is a new influx of communists and fellow travelers into official Washington."

Known as Communist.

Watson, Dies said, always has been an open and above board communist propagandist. Dies did not challenge Watson's right to hold his views but protested against the selection of a communist sympathizer for a position requiring decisions of the highest importance.

"'We are not concerned solely with the case of Watson as an individual,'" wrote Dies. "We are, I believe, compelled to search for the hidden influences which bring about the appointment and certification of such persons as Watson.

"The problem of ridding official Washington of the hundreds of communists and fellow travelers who now occupy government posts will not be solved until we get at the root of the matter, namely this prevailing influence which continues to bring such men as Watson to important government posts in the nation's capital. When that sinister influence has been identified and exposed, then we may hope that some Americans of undoubted loyalty will be called to these newly created posts of such strategic importance in the defense of America."

Friends at White House.

Both the President and Mrs. Roosevelt frequently have been assailed as the fountain head of the influences encouraging and protecting the communists in and out of government office. Both frequently have endeavored to discredit the exposure by the Dies committee of the activities of persons espousing or countenancing the communist objective to overthrow the American form of government by force and violence. They contended that the committee unjustly accused many persons of subversive activities and the President sought unsuccessfully to get the investigation terminated.

Dies last Oct. 19 supplied the department of justice with the names of 1,124 communists and fellow travelers still holding government jobs. Attorney General Biddle said he would investigate.

Fly declined to comment on the Dies letter. Watson, who for 16 years has been a sociology professor at Columbia university, could not be located.

DEMANDS ARMY HALT VENEREAL DISEASE SPREAD

Surgeon General Calls It No. 1 Saboteur.

Leaders of the nation's newly drafted armed forces have been indifferent to a rising tide of syphilitic and gonorrheal infection among the men under their command. Now the leaders are faced with the fact that this infection amounts to the No. 1 saboteur of the rearmament effort.

Thomas Parran [top] and R. A. Vonderlehr.

This charge is made by Surgeon General Thomas Parran of the United States Public Health Service, and his aid, Assistant Surgeon General R. A. Vonderlehr, in their book, "Plain Words About Venereal Diseases," published today. They declare that venereal diseases this year are costing the nation more "man capacity" than all the nation's labor troubles, "bad as they are."

Draft Boards' Work Wasted.

"As far as necessity for treatment of the new army personnel is concerned," the two doctors report, "it would appear that the exquisite discrimination of the selective service boards [the boards carefully eliminated all prospective inductees with venereal infection] is love's labor lost.

"If the general staff has learned anything from the lessons of World war I., it behooves them at this juncture to take earnest thought and plan immediate action to avoid trouble.

"Any doctor familiar with the problem will admire the concern of the army to give its men good treatment once they are infected. He finds it difficult to understand the apparent lack of concern when it comes to preventing the infection, especially when it follows absolute refusal to take and treat men in the draft who would have made good soldiers."

Boon to Organized Vice.

The nation's mobilization effort, the doctors declared, has proved a boon to organized vice, for, step by step, the vice rings have expanded with war industries and cantonments.

"Prior to mobilization," they write, "the commercial prostitute [source of almost all venereal infection] was barely breaking even with amateur and part time competition. But suddenly the situation has been reversed. The vice syndicates saw a vast and profitable field of operation. The recruitment of prostitutes has kept pace with recruitment of the army."

The doctors cite the Mays act, passed in 1914, as the weapon that federal authorities can use to clean up communities where state or local authorities are unwilling or unable to clean up vice rings.

Rates Go Up Steadily.

Up to September, 1939, when the army's total strength was less than 200,000 men, the doctors report, an average of 14 in every thousand men had syphilis and 27.7 gonorrhea. Since then the army has been multiplied more than eight times, but all conscripts were tested for infection.

"With a dilution of 7 men, uninfected, for each man in the army population, one would have expected a swift and permanent flattening of the army rates of infection," the doctors write. "But what has happened?

"In reports now at hand, a reduction in venereal disease rates was noticeable for a few weeks after each detachment of fresh men poured into the ranks. Then steadily, in regiment by regiment, the rates crept up. By March, 1940, for example, the overall syphilis rates were back to 11.3 per thousand; the 1939 mark [27.7 per thousand] for gonorrhea was exceeded by a rate of 35.9.

"The [gonorrhea] trend has been steadily higher thru 1940 and to the end of June, 1941, when 40.3 gonorrhea infections per thousand were admitted for medical treatment."

AMERICAN FORCES IN ICELAND TO GET CHRISTMAS TREES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 [Special].—Members of America's armed forces in Iceland are sure of a white Christmas, but the Red Cross is supplying their Christmas trees, because Iceland has none.

The Red Cross announced today that evergreen trees from this country are now on their way to this outpost, together with all the traditional trimmings.

Also being sent by the Junior Red Cross are festive decorations for mess halls—garlands, paper hats, place cards, and other things to help remind the men in Iceland, Greenland, and Newfoundland that the folks back home are thinking of them.

AIR LINES ADOPT 2 THANKSGIVING DINNER SCHEME

The commercial air lines are going to be on the safe side and serve Thanksgiving dinners this week and next for passengers who are flying on either Nov. 20 or Nov. 27. This was the consensus yesterday among the eight companies now flying off Chicago airport and it probably will be adopted by the 20 lines operating within the United States.

The reason for the repetition is the confusion caused by refusal of all states to celebrate the holiday at the same time. More than a dozen states have refused to move up the date to President Roosevelt's proclamation holiday Nov. 20. For residents of these states the real Thanksgiving day is Nov. 27.

Among the air lines adopting this plan is American Airlines, Transcontinental and Western Air, United Air Lines, Northwest Airlines, Chicago and Southern Airlines, Pennsylvania-Central Airlines, Braniff Airways, and Eastern Airlines.

Widely Sought Check Passer Is Indicted on Two Charges

Harold W. Melia, described by United States Attorney J. Albert Woll as one of the nation's most earnestly sought bad check writers, was indicted twice yesterday by the federal grand jury. In one indictment he was accused of having impersonated an army officer and in the other of having transported a stolen automobile over a state line.

Harold W. Melia.

Melia is in the county jail, unable to post a bond of $7,500.

Woll said Melia, 28 years old and an ex-convict from Columbus, O., went on a traveling spree beginning in March, 1940. He financed his wanderings thru 22 states with worthless checks.

Wanted in Other Cities.

In addition, United States attorneys in Springfield, Ill.; Cincinnati, O., and St. Louis, Mo., want him for having impersonated federal officers and transported stolen cars.

During his travels he used a variety of methods to persuade his victims to cash his checks, Woll said. Part of his equipment was a supply of 500 spurious business cards identifying him as a salesman for a meat packing company. He also carried four selective service identification cards, having registered for the draft in Los Angeles, Cal.; St. Louis, Mo.; Columbus, O., and Chicago.

Woll said Melia habitually dressed in the uniform of an army captain and used the aliases Capt. M. T. Butler, Capt. R. B. Wolfe, and Capt. Myron T. Basinger. When in Chicago last May 2 Melia bought a diamond ring from a North Clark street jeweler with a worthless $77 check, walked four blocks up the street, and pawned the ring for $40.

Fooled by Conversation.

Managers of the stores told FBI investigators that they accepted his uniform and his casual references to Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commander of the 33d division, for bona fide identification.

Melia was arrested last month after a car stolen in Omaha, Neb., was traced to Chicago. He had obtained the car, an expensive model, by walking into a salesroom, asking for a demonstration, and driving away with the demonstrator, said Woll.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM

Save Our Republic

A 15 PER CENT LEADER.

A number of Republican leaders in New York have suggested a national convention of the party in the near future to formulate its foreign and domestic policies. The suggestion deserves study.

In one sense, of course, there is no need for such a meeting. The policies as laid down in the 1940 platform are still accepted by the vast majority of Republicans. Indeed, so far as foreign policy is concerned, most of the Republicans would accept the platform on which Mr. Roosevelt ran. It was as downright as the Republican declaration against involvement in the war.

There are obvious advantages to be derived from holding a Republican convention before the 1942 primaries and elections. Such a meeting would put the American people on notice that the congressional elections of 1942 rank in importance with any Presidential election. Anything which can be done to impress the voters with the fatefulness of the forthcoming test at the polls is worth doing.

Another and equally valuable service would lie in establishing the party's leadership. At present, Mr. Willkie is accepted by some persons as a party spokesman. In fact, by indorsing the steps toward war which the administration has taken, Mr. Willkie has repudiated the platform on which he ran and the declarations of policy he uttered in the campaign. He does not speak for the party's voters or for its representatives in congress. He and any others who share his views on foreign policy have read themselves out of the party and that fact ought to be registered in the voters' minds as clearly as it can be.

How little claim the Willkie clique has to leadership was clearly shown in the recent vote in the house on the amendment of the neutrality law. Mr. Willkie could count only 22 Republican votes on his side. Against them were 137 Republicans who adhered to the position taken by the party a year ago. Mr. Willkie is a 15 per cent leader. He is opposed by 85 per cent of the party in whose name he pretends to speak. In fact, of course, his strength is even less than these figures would suggest, for it is notorious that some of his turncoat brigade were guided by other reasons than conscience and the desires of their constituents.

By formally rejecting Willkie and the war shouters the Republican party could strengthen itself materially. Nearly a fourth of the Democrats in the house refused to follow Mr. Roosevelt's leadership. Many opposed him in the firm knowledge that their people were not with him. The people are indignant at the bad faith which characterized the 1940 campaign. If it takes a national convention to repudiate Willkie, there should be a national convention. If the job can be done some other way, that might do. The important thing is to leave no doubt in any one's mind about where the party stands.

ST. CHARLES AGAIN.

The policy of Director of Public Welfare Brandon and his new managing officer at the St. Charles school for boys, of redeeming their charges there thru kindness, seems to be working out just as any one familiar with the history of the institution would have predicted.

The latest escape at the school is that of four young criminals who bound and gagged a watchman, threatened him with knives, and stole his automobile to take them away from the school. None of the fugitives, it may be noted, could properly be classified merely as a delinquent boy. All had been convicted of crimes, and two had been granted probation on one or more charges before they were even sent to the school by the soft headed Juvenile court of Cook county.

It is worse than useless to regard the school as a home for delinquent boys so long as the courts continue to fill it with criminals. Mr. Brandon, who is primarily responsible for the administration of the school, is rapidly demonstrating his unfitness for the office he holds.

WHY THE SOUTH VOTES FOR WAR.

Gen. Wood of the America First committee has already made the point that the congressmen who voted to kill the neutrality act represent only a minority of the population of the United States. He could have pursued his point a step further. The indorsement of Mr. Roosevelt's step toward war came from a group which represents an even smaller minority of the enfranchised voters of the country.

The neutrality repeal was made possible in the house by the overwhelming vote in its favor from the solid south. Those 12 states [including Oklahoma in the group] cast 88 votes for the repeal to 13 against it. Two more of their representatives were paired for the repealer and one against it.

Those representatives who favored repeal cannot presume to speak for the millions of Negroes in their states who will go into the labor battalions if we go to war. The Negroes are disfranchised thru the closed primary and other devices. Neither can they presume to speak in most instances for the white tenant farmers and sharecroppers whose sons will march in the infantry. Most of their states collect a poll tax which operates to disfranchise the poorer whites along with the Negroes.

The fact that the deep south has made a good thing of the war thru the location of most of the training camps there, to the vast detriment of the army's comfort and morale and the considerable impairment of its efficiency, is well known. Another field in which the armament program is operating to put money in the pockets of the southern war hawks' constituents came to attention the other day.

The latest issue of Army Ordnance contains a map showing the location of the army's ordnance plants and depots. Of 92 such facilities 22 have been established since last March 1. And of these 22 new plants and depots 14 have been set up in the seven states of Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Mississippi, Alabama, and Tennessee. More than two-thirds of the new plants and depots went into an area that has less than one-tenth the industrial population or productivity of the nation.

In citing these facts, which cannot help but have their logical effect on the minds of congressmen, we have no wish to raise a purely sectional issue. If we did wish to do so, our point would be destroyed by the action of the 14 men, 13 Democrats and one mountain Republican, who voted or were paired against the repealer. This list includes such able and thoughtful men as Doughton of North Carolina, Sumners of Texas, and Smith of Virginia. They refused to let either sectional interest or the false claims of party loyalty stand in the way of their duty as patriotic Americans. They are influential men in the south and their stand gives hope that that area is beginning to see, thru the screen of fictional Democracy, the actuality of the communistic dictatorship that is being prepared in Washington.

WHERE RUSSIA IS WEAK.

Winter will increasingly hamper military operations in northern Russia, but in the mild climate of the Crimea and along the eastern shore of the Sea of Azov the Germans can proceed with their drive on the oil fields of the Caucasus. Even omitting the element of weather, Hitler has not demonstrated that he can take the great northern citadels of Leningrad and Moscow. On the other hand, he has had very material success in the south. A large part of the Ukraine is in his hands and his armies are reported in Kerch and are slugging their way toward Sevastopol. The two cities are the strongholds of the Crimea.

It may be assumed that at least part of Stalin's success in holding the north and Hitler's success in taking the south are due to the attitude of the population of the two areas. Moscow is the heart of old Russia. It was the capital of the grand duchy of Muscovy, which consolidated "all the Russias." It is the link between the old Russia and the new, for the bolsheviks clearly realized when they established the capital of Red Russia in Moscow that the historical associations of the city would provide them with an element of apparent continuity that would make the transition seem less harsh.

Leningrad, which as St. Petersburg and Petrograd had been the capital of the czars since Peter the Great, could also claim the loyalty of both the old and the new Russia. It was rich in the associations of the old régime, and it was also there that the October and February revolutions brought the bolsheviks to power. Both Moscow and Leningrad were populated by the real Russians.

The Ukraine and the Crimea are on the perimeter of the U. S. S. R. The Ukrainians, or Little Russians, are ethnologically a race apart from the Russians. Since the 11th century differences of language have been growing, and the Tatar invasion thrust a wedge that widened the separation between Russians and Ukrainians. For almost 100 years there has been a strong separatist movement in the Ukraine and in 1917 a brief autonomy was achieved.

The Crimea was populated by Tatars and under alternate suzerainty of the Turks and Russians was torn by successive revolutions with the hope of throwing off both yokes as equally alien. Not until 1788, when the American naval hero, John Paul Jones, in the service of Catherine the Great, broke the power of the Turkish fleet at Otchakoff and in the Liman, was Russia's hold on the Crimea rendered secure.

In addition to these historical cleavages, the experiences of the south Russians under the Red dictatorship have not disposed them to love Russia more. The great famine of 1921-'22 hit the Ukraine hardest. The most conservative estimate of the death toll was one million. Some authorities contend that at least nine million died.

When Stalin set out to collectivize the farms the Ukraine bore the brunt of his artificially induced famine, which killed between three and four million persons in 1932-'33. As Stalin said, "To liquidate the kulaks means to smash the kulaks, to liquidate them as a class." And as W. H. Chamberlin has observed, "Famine was quite deliberately employed as an instrument of national policy, as the last means of breaking the resistance of the peasantry to the new system."

Lenin's indifference and Stalin's barbarousness are being repaid today in the rout of the Red southern armies. The population has no choice between conquerors, and between the Red tyranny it knows and the Nazi tyranny which can prove no worse and might prove better, the people have passively cast their lot with the invader. If they cannot have freedom, at least they will not maintain the sway of their older oppressors.

THE DOLL WITH A HEART.

[The Christian Science Monitor.]

Over thousands of years, incidental to all the civilizations archæologists have rediscovered, there have been dolls, but not till 1941 a doll with a heart—one you can hear beat. You may meet her at the Toy fair in New York. In different countries children have played with an astonishing variety of dolls; but the time is within memory when the doll population of the United States, except the jolly rag ones, had wax or china heads and little suggestion of their present realistic countenances.

It was a step toward the doll with a heart when the most expensive wore detachable clothes, shut their eyes when laid on their backs, and said "mar mar" if squeezed in the right place. Observation hints, however, that doll realism is of less concern to children than to parents, relatives, and dollmakers; one likes to think the prehistoric child was as happy as any with her prehistoric doll.

The doll with a heart is not the only newcomer to delight parents and other doll buyers. There is a doll that walks along with you when you lead it by the hand, and sits down when you stop. A doll you can feed with a spoon. A doll that blows soap bubbles. A doll that drinks from a bottle. A doll that has a smaller doll of its own to play with when not being played with. But the doll with a heart in the "city that has no heart" has in 1941 all the appeal that an 1890 ballad had in 1890.

MARYLAND, HIS MARYLAND.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Heralding the recent visit of a niece of one of the local gentry, the Bel Air Times, Maryland, reported that "Gen. Henry Mactier Warfield of Salonia Farms in the Harford hunting country between Fallston and Timonium will have as his guests this week-end his niece, the former Miss Wallace Warfield, and her husband. . . ."

The final paragraph of the story identified the visiting husband: "Gen. Warfield's niece married the duke of Windsor, who was formerly the prince of Wales and the king of England. The duke is an enthusiastic horseman and has an important position with the British government in Nassau, an island in the Bahamas off the east coast of Florida."

Neither murk nor fog clouds the good air of Bel Air. In Bel Air an editor can see clearly enough to put first things first, in proper perspective.

SWINGING THE BADGE.

A small gold pendant for the watch chain, shaped like an old-fashioned watch key and bearing the Greek letters, Phi Beta Kappa, among its engraved symbols, comes to the Linemaster to garnish his birthday. His right to wear it dates from the celebration of the University of Chicago's 50th anniversary last September, but the acquisition of the key is up-to-date news. Such debuts are known in college parlance as "swinging the badge"—a public manifestation of allegiance.

There are two kinds of complimentary memberships in this fraternity of attainment in liberal scholarship—alumnus and honorary. The former is given to alumni of the chapter's college; the latter to nonalumni. Elections per chapter average about one a year for alumni and about one in three years for honoraries.

* * *

Since we use the vertical instead of the horizontal method of wearing a watch chain, we have invented a new method of swinging the key. If it works as well as we hope, we intend to donate the patent to the united chapters of Phi Beta Kappa. There is no reason why a man should wear his watch chain as a bellyband thru life because he earned a Phi Bete key in youth.

* * *

At the latest count, Phi Beta Kappa has 141 chapters. Ours is Beta of Illinois, the second to be installed in the state. Alpha, at Northwestern, was the first.

Thomas Mann, the German novelist, now living in this country, wrote in a recent essay:

"There lies before me on a velvet background a handsome ornament, a traveler's prize, a noble possession. It is a small golden plaque with an attached ring, on one side of which, between a triangle of stars and a pointing hand, appear the Greek letters, Phi Beta Kappa. . . . I appreciate this friendly gesture—how could I not?"

It's pretty swell, isn't it, Tom?

BEARDLESS JUSTICE.

(Reflections on viewing latest Associated Press photo of the Supreme court.)

When the last whiskered justice sage
 Picked up his beard an' left,
I felt the grave auld court had been
 O' something sacred reft.
"O, tempora! O, mores! Fie!"
 An ancient Roman said,
Nostalgic yearning in his soul
 For days lang past an' fled.
I feel as Cicero maun hae felt,
 Whene'er I turn m' ee
Upon nine beardless judges, bare
 O' whiskered dignity.
A bearded justice brought a grace
 An' splendor tae yer een:
Ye felt behind the spinach dwelt
 A Jovian wisdom keen.
Frae that dear, kindly, dying age,
 Mon, I am loath tae part;
Harsh truth was seldom spoken, an'
 A spade was called a heart.
Whiskers hid weel a weakly chin
 An' saggin' jowls o' fat,
While lang benignant skirts concealed—

A Politician of Utopia.

Once upon a time there was a man who engaged in politics, but decided to use a style all his own. He refused to use the words of patriots in his speeches. No reference was ever made to Lincoln, or Washington, or Jefferson. And so this gentleman spoke old words in new ways and applied new words to old ideas and, joining them all, was able to find a few new thoughts for his listeners. And his listeners liked it and came from miles around to hear him.

The man added other rules as he went along. He never spoke on holidays, nor did he seek opportunities to wear his silk hat, or to ride in an open car waving to his constituents. He always avoided laying cornerstones and also the eggs that cornerstone-layers lay. No pictures showed him in overalls with farmers, or in jumpers with laborers, or kissing babies, or eating his favorite pie, or going fishing.

At all public affairs he was more often found with some unknown, some bystander, than with the speakers. And he rarely fraternized after election with the men he had severely criticized during his campaign.

THE ONLY WAY.

I set aside one glorious day
 That it should be my own;
Intrusions all were kept away
 From my restricted zone.
I listened not to radio,
 Nor read the latest news,
So dodged the gruesome shade o' woe
 That such palaver brews.
I knew not what the Russians did,
 Nor what the Germans claimed,
Nor which put forth the stoutest bid
 For fewest killed and maimed.
And when the day at last was thru,
 I to my bunk did creep,
And, brother, I am telling you,
 I had a good night's sleep!

GET YOUR WINTER SUNLIGHT.

LET US hope that each and every one of us has soaked up enough sunshine to last during the gray days of autumn and winter. For centuries, the need of the system for light has been recognized. Even middle class homes in ancient Rome were provided with solaria.

Within recent years, following the example of French, Swiss, and British physicians, our medical advisors have lauded the healing power of the sun in numerous ailments.

Not only will inclement weather keep us indoors but, for most of us, old Sol is quite too far to the south to have much effect. If we did not fill our reservoirs during the warmer months we may feel the difference in lack of vitality. Fortunate is the one who can renew his supply of ultraviolet on a winter vacation.

We all realize that sunlight is a potent force. In fact, it is the one agency by means of which life is maintained upon the earth—animal, plant, and human. We cannot get it by sitting beside a closed window because ordinary glass will filter out the health-giving rays. Sunbathing is a real adjunct to wellbeing, provided no infection is present which may be stimulated by the process. Sufferers from tuberculosis of the lungs are warned constantly to avoid direct exposure.

Fortunately, science has found an excellent substitute which many of us can take advantage of if opportunity presents itself. Mechanical devices which will produce ultraviolet are available. A few minutes daily spent under one of these lamps may offer to every member of the family a needed "lift." We require the rays which come from the upper end of the spectrum. Those which do the most good are beyond [ultra] the violet.

But even with a quartz, mercury vapor, or carbon arc lamp, the dose must not be excessive. We cannot adopt the principle that if a little is good, more is better. Many of us have learned to our sorrow how rapidly illness may present itself following sunburn. In using an artificial source, the skin should be at least 30 inches away and the period be just long enough to bring a mild blush to the cuticle, which will remain for only 4 or 5 hours. If this is practiced daily, an even, soft tan will be deposited, which is proof positive that the light has been absorbed.

If youngsters are treated, their intervals may be very short indeed. The distance, too, must be greater. One-half minute on the first day is the usual prescription for adults. Gradually the time is extended until all are able to take 8—even 10 minutes on each side of the body, front, and back. Such a program will enhance nutrition and build better teeth and stronger bones.

A recent report from the sunlight clinic attached to the Royal Victoria hospital is of interest. A sizable group of youngsters were given regular applications and, with one exception, all were free from colds thruout the winter. Those who suffered from chronic nasal infections [catarrh] showed marked improvement. All in all, general resistance was raised.

The apparatus used consisted of an arc lamp placed in the center of a room. Circular lines were painted on the floor at varying points. The children were stripped, except for shorts and shoes. All wore goggles. Babies were seated upon the mothers' laps, with the eyes fully protected.

Needless to say, the clinic was popular because—as the parents put it—their children gained materially in vigor.

VARICOSE VEINS.

P. C. writes: Does overweight or a tall stature have anything to do with the development of varicose veins?

REPLY.

Obesity is a factor. Height need not be. Every pound of extra fat which we carry around places an additional load upon the heart and the circulation. Activity will help the muscles to squeeze the venous blood back to the pumping organ. Only when the flow stagnates will varicose veins appear.

INCORPORATE THE UNIONS!

New York, Nov. 18.—Isn't now the right time for incorporating the unions and thereby bringing them and their leaders under the law; thus placing them on an equal footing with all other American citizens and organizations?

By incorporating the unions the federal government could control them as it can all other corporations. Contracts with unions could be upheld by legal means; the union menace to our democracy would be stopped.

Far more important, incorporation of the unions would protect the members against corrupt officers, make racketeering in unions far more difficult.

Incorporation would remove the chief objection to union or closed shops, namely the enslavement of employés to irresponsible, uncontroled and selfish leaders. Incorporation of unions is a rare opportunity to benefit our nation. A. M.

ADMIRAL SIMS' ORDER.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—During the last World war I served for 14 months aboard an American destroyer in European waters doing patrol and convoy duty. After the American destroyer Jacob Jones was torpedoed and sunk off the coast of France, Rear Adm. Sims, who had full command of the United States naval forces based at Queenstown, Ireland, gave orders that no American destroyer was to operate alone.

I believe the American people are entitled to some kind of an explanation by the secretary of the navy why the destroyers Kearny and Reuben James were sent alone to hunt down an enemy submarine when our country is not even at war. V. T.

SUBSTITUTE TEACHERS.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—It's bad enough that we substitute teachers earn an average of less than $400 a year, and that some of us have been substituting since 1935—but on top of it all, no one among us is permitted to take over the summer school teaching. That goes to the regular year around teachers who make an average of $2,000 a year and many of whom hold down positions similar to their husbands.

No matter how you look at it, the method of passing out this summer school work is unjust. Who's going to do something about it? AROUSED SUBSTITUTE.

FISHING IN HER KITCHEN.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Last Saturday night my faucet in the kitchen refused to let out any water. I had to take it off and found a fish about four inches long and about as thick as an index finger.

Previously I had the same experience, but that time it was just the skeleton of the fish. If you should care to see it, I can show you the one that I caught Saturday night, as I have it preserved in salt water.

PRAISE FROM A READER.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—This is to praise THE TRIBUNE's stand regarding our staying out of other countries' wars. You are to be congratulated for presenting to the public both sides of the case. And for informing the public of the new and unnecessary taxes, whose ultimate object is to kill men. DE WITT WORCESTER.

FIJIANS FOR HAWAII?

Walalua, Oahu, T. H., Nov. 12.—With trouble brewing in the Pacific, have we not enough orientals in Hawaii as it is, even if they are harmless Filipinos? We need 5,000 field laborers for our sugar plantations, and 1,000 pick and shovel laborers for digging ditches for sewer pipes, etc., in army and navy reservations about Pearl Harbor. As we can't get any from the continental United States, Hawaii is now flirting with the idea of importing 6,000 additional orientals. I am opposed to this plan or the importation of East Indians. I prefer the importation of Fijians.

The Fijian is a splendid type of human being, closely related to the Hawaiian—a race now pretty well known and liked by people in the States.

I have had several months' stay in Fiji, much of the time living in the elaborately constructed "grass" houses of the Fijians themselves. I hope you will favor the importation of Fijians into Hawaii in preference to orientals or [East] Indians. OTTO DEGENES.

WHAT IF IT DID HAPPEN?

Chicago, Nov. 17.—In reading Welfare Worker Harry Hopkins' "The Inside Story of My Meeting with Stalin," I observe the following statement:

"Something characteristic of the whole adventure was happening—or failing to happen."

What the wondering public would probably like to know is: Did it or didn't it happen? Or do you suppose an answer is worth while?

HENRY COX.

TRIBUTE TO NEVINSON.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 15.—The death of the famous war correspondent, Henry W. Nevinson, recalls an incident that endeared him to many women.

Long ago in England, when the "suffragettes" were being grossly abused and ridiculed by the press, correspondents of two great London newspapers, Messrs. Nevinson and Brailsford, resigned their positions in token of their indignation.

This is not mentioned in any of the obituaries. It should not be forgotten.

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

MILLIONS STILL JOBLESS.

Yorkville, Ill., Nov. 17.—Under our present New Deal we still have several millions unemployed and useless to our economy. We cannot find anything for them to do and except for Hitler we would have millions more.

Congress votes for war. Mr. Roosevelt wants us in it. His problem can be solved only by war. FRED WRIGHT.

REPLIES TO FENIAN STAND.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Mr. John Teehan being a member of the Fenian Brotherhood, his condemnation of the committee for American Irish defense isn't surprising. His dissatisfaction with his fellow Irish-Americans' pro-British attitude can be traced to the unreasoning hate of Britain which is characteristic of all Fenians.

Why can't such Irish-Americans forget the past and concentrate on the main task of all civilized nations and peoples, namely—the defeat and destruction of Hitler and all that he stands for?

Mr. Teehan, Ireland will remain a free country just so long as the British Isles continue to stand up against the Nazi onslaught. DONALD NORMAN.

THE TINY ANT PEST.

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 17.—If this request is not out of place, will some one kindly tell me what to do to get rid of tiny, tiny red ants. I've lived in this two story frame house more than 25 years, and recently they appear both up and downstairs, and I cannot trace their hiding place. They are liable to appear anywhere. They are so small one needs good eyesight to see them. WORRIED.

HIGHER BARBER COSTS.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—The recent increase by the Master Barbers' association to 85 cents for haircuts and 35 cents for shaves under the guise of higher salaries and higher cost of products is only another fraud perpetrated on the long suffering public of Chicago. H. J.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

MONEY LOANED.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1935 I loaned my mother $240. I have a note with her signature. Last year she passed away. She signed property valued at $6,000 to one of my brothers.

1. Is the note still good?
2. How can I collect same? A. L.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 33.

1. Which one of these animals does not have a cloven hoof? Zebra Bison Sheep Hog.
2. A "gusher" usually refers to an Impressionable Girl Salesman Gossiper Oil Well.
3. If the stock market is rising, which of the following is said to be at work? Bulls Bears Hogs Lions.
4. When the stock market is falling, which of these is said to be at work? Bulls Bears Tigers Lions.
5. In this country a strip mine usually produces which of these products? Gold Diamonds Tin Coal.
6. To help offset the brutality and crass realism of today, we need a revival of idealism, both in the form of religion as well as music and poetry. America has produced many famous poets, including the one who is more widely read in his own generation than any other in the history of the world. I'll allot one point for each correct matching of the following American poets with the verse which they have written:

[a] Henry Wadsworth Longfellow	[v] "A Heap of Living"
[b] James Whitcomb Riley	[w] "Smoke and Steel"
[c] Edgar A. Guest	[x] "The Buck in the Snow"
[d] Carl Sandburg	[y] "When the Frost Is on the Punkin"
[e] Edna St. Vincent Millay	[z] "Hiawatha"

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

Deficiency Is Placed at $3,419,682.

Cook county's 1942 budget estimates for operating expenses total $3,419,682 more than anticipated revenues, Deputy Controler Richard J. Daley and County Auditor Lee J. Howard reported to the county board yesterday in their preliminary budget estimate.

The report showed prospective expenditures by the county's operating departments of $20,882,681, compared with expected revenues of $17,462,999.

The proposed expenses do not include any provision for paying principal or interest on a judgment of $3,136,914 against the county for its share of Municipal court costs. The judgment covers court costs dating back to 1928.

Tax Levy to Be Higher.

The anticipated deficit looms in spite of an increase of 1 million dollars for 1942 in the county's tax levy and the elimination of $972,494 expense for mothers' pensions.

The state assembly has pegged the county's 1942 tax levy for the corporate [operating] fund at 9 million dollars. Previously the county levy was based on a rate of 32 cents per $100 of valuation in even [election] years, which in recent years has amounted to about 8 millions. The assembly also placed the mothers' pension expense under the federal social security program.

Plan to Restore Pay Cuts.

One change in the budget estimates is the proposed restoration of pay cuts totaling $483,000 in the form of two weeks' payless vacations adopted by the county for 1941. Election costs are estimated at approximately $950,000 higher for the coming year because of the general election in November.

Daley's report showed that the tentative 1942 budget is out of balance chiefly because the county will wind up 1941 with a deficit of $2,395,001, aside from the judgment for Municipal court costs. This deficit is largely in the form of unpaid bills and pay rolls.

Maurice F. Kavanagh, chairman of the county finance committee, said that beginning next week the committee will hold meetings to bring the budget into balance.

ALDERMEN SEE RADIO DEVICE TO CUT AUTO SPEED

A remote control radio device which automatically decreases the speed of automobiles was demonstrated at Devon and Kostner avenues yesterday to the city council traffic committee and representatives of civic organizations. The inventors are John J. Gallivan, 907 North Lorel avenue, and Leroy M. C. Clausing, 5507 Lincoln avenue.

By stretching an aerial wire along the highway the inventors were able to throw a long wave radio beam across the roadway. The beam de-energizes an electromagnetic device attached to the throttle of an automobile and closes the throttle sufficiently to decrease the car's speed.

Clausing said the transmitter eventually may be manufactured for $50 and the car unit for $10. Fleming said such a device might decrease accidents at dangerous intersections if the magnetic unit were required for all automobiles.

MUSKAU, Germany, Nov. 19 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Walter H. Nernst, world famous German physicist and inventor whose metallic filament lamp paved the way for the modern incandescent lamp, died yesterday at his country estate near here. He was 77 years old.

Walter Hermann Nernst was counted among Germany's foremost savants. It was Nernst who, with others, created a new science, physical chemistry, bridging physics and chemistry. His famous "third law" of thermo-dynamics, dealing with the behavior of matter at the approach of the absolute zero, gained for him the 1920 Nobel prize for chemistry.

Irving Langmuir of Schenectady and Robert Andrew Millikan of Pasadena he claimed as his scholars. He visited the United States three times, and was awarded the Franklin institute medal in 1928. Nernst's books on the theory of chemistry and allied sciences, standard works, have been translated into many languages.

JUDGE FREES 5 IN SEDITION TRIAL AT MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 18 (AP).—James P. Cannon, national secretary of the Socialist Workers party and himself a defendant, was the first defense witness in the federal court trial of seditious conspiracy charges against 23 persons. Originally there were 28 defendants, but Judge M. M. Joyce today dismissed all counts against five—Walter Hagstrom, Rose Seiler, George Frosig, Nick Wagner, and Dorothy Schultz.

In denying another defense motion for a directed verdict of not guilty for the rest of the defendants, Judge Joyce said it should be remembered that "Hitler went around in a greasy raincoat in his early days and was belittled for his efforts."

"Peaceful revolution" was to be desired, Cannon testified, but in view of historical precedent it was doubtful if the "outlived class" would submit peacefully. He said that armed force, if any, would originate with the displaced capitalist minority.

NEW SUIT FILED ATTACKING WILL OF A. C. MATHER

A second suit against the 5 million dollar estate left by the late Alonzo C. Mather, Chicagoan who made a fortune out of manufacturing a railway car for transporting cattle, was filed yesterday in Circuit court by the Rev. George Davidson of Los Angeles, Cal., guardian of Miss Martha J. Mather, incompetent daughter of the millionaire.

The Rev. Mr. Davidson seeks to have Mather's will, which left $3,500,000 to various charities, declared null and void on the ground that Mather was more than 80 years old and of unsound mind and body when he made it. Under the will, Miss Mather was left about $200,000 in a trust fund.

On Monday Mather's widow, Mrs. Irene Gasper Mather, filed suit to set aside an agreement, which she signed in 1914 two days before her marriage to Mather, whereby she receives only $500,000 of the estate. She is asking a one-third widow's share.

Mather was 92 when he died last Jan. 25.

EXTRA $10 FINE IF DRIVERS 'LOSE' TRAFFIC TICKETS

Judge John J. Gutknecht, sitting in the Traffic court, issued a warning yesterday that traffic violators who ignore police tickets and are afterward brought into court on warrants, will be punished with an extra $10 fine.

The judge said that about 5 per cent of all motorists given tickets ignore them. This means that warrants must be issued.

Judge Gutknecht estimated that nearly 5,000 such warrants are still unserved, largely because of changes of address. He said he intends to send the names to the secretary of state with the request that the secretary withhold licenses next year from thos applying.

This year I want to ask you for something extra special. Please tell my Mom to do all her Christmas shopping early so we can have a little peace around our house. Last year she forgot to write out her list until the very last week—and, Santa, it was awful. She ran downtown every day and stayed all day, and then came home all tired out. And she couldn't buy the things she wanted anyway, for everybody else had already bought all the nicest things.

Then she remembered there wasn't enough time left to mail any presents to Uncle Jed and Aunty Amy and Cousin Lou. And she cried and cried 'cause she didn't have a chance to wrap anybody's packages up pretty, the way she likes.

And, Santa, she wasn't a bit nice to Daddy or me. We had to get supper all by ourselves, for Mom just went to bed with a cup of tea and a headache. So please tell her to hurry up and shop early this year. 'Cause if Christmas is going to be like that again, Santa, I'd sooner we'd just forget the whole thing—

Yours truly,

Jimmy

'Destroyer,' Exciting Story of War, Is Convincing One

Steve Fisher has seen actual service in both submarines and on battleships of the American navy, so his "Destroyer" [Appleton-Century, $2], an exciting tale of war between this country and Germany-Italy-Japan, carries the conviction of reality and authenticity. Woven thru this dramatic war thriller is a poignant romance.

Thyssen Tells of His Fate in 'I Paid Hitler'

"I Paid Hitler," by Fritz Thyssen. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.75.]

BY GEORGE SCHARSCHUG.

Fritz Thyssen, once wealthiest of Germany's tycoons, now stripped of his fortune, in a concentration camp or perhaps dead, reveals himself as probably the most spectacular victim of Adolf Hitler's mouthings. He admits he was deluded and "swindled" of at least $250,000 which he gave to pull Hitler and his party out of bankruptcy and set them on the road to control of Germany.

Thyssen was neither fool nor dullard. He was able to expand the vast industry, inherited from his more able father. He held high places of honor in the state and the Roman Catholic church. He paints himself in explaining his support of Naziism as a "patriot" and an "idealist."

Witness of the revolutionary turmoil that followed Germany's defeat in 1918, haunted by the fear of bolshevism, and convinced that his country was being throttled by the terms of Versailles, Thyssen sought a panacea in a "corporative society." Hitler promised him such a scheme. Thyssen induced other industrialists to listen to Hitler at a meeting of the Industry club of Dusseldorf on Jan. 27, 1932.

Once in power, Hitler quickly forgot his promises of a "corporative order." Instead, he grouped all labor into a single "labor front," ruled by the Nazi leader, Robert Ley.

Then came the pogroms, the attacks on religion, and finally the decision for war, which Thyssen bitterly opposed as he fled into exile.

The industrialist was living in the south of France when that nation was crushed. There he dictated his tragic story and confession of disillusionment and from there, according to most authentic reports, he was whisked back to a German concentration camp and, according to unverified reports, death.

Thyssen traces Hitler's political acumen and intuition, his intelligence, and his ability to meet complex situations to the blood strain of Europe's most noted family of bankers. He says that the police records of the late Austro-Hungarian empire reveal that Hitler's father was the illegitimate son of Baron Rothschild of Vienna and a servant girl. The girl left the Rothschild ménage, Thyssen says, to return to the country where, under the name of Frau Schichelgruber, she bore the son who became Hitler's father. From the Rothschild blood, Thyssen insists, Hitler obtained that prescient intelligence which has marked his political career.

Does Short Stories

"The Heart of Another," by Martha Gellhorn. [Scribners, $2.50.]
"The O. Henry Memorial Award Prize Stories of 1941," edited by Hershel Brickell. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.]

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

The first two of the books listed are short stories of great distinction; the third is a collection which appears annually under the title of "O. Henry Memorial Award Prize Short Stories."

Katherine Anne Porter has written an introduction for "A Curtain of Green" in which she tells something of the life of Eudora Welty and makes an estimate of the literary value of her work. The stories collected in this volume all have present-day Mississippi as their background, a locale the author knows backward and forward as it is her home.

The tales are about a wide diversity of people—a traveling salesman about to die, a pathetic little spinster whose mind is befogged, a shallow small town woman in a beauty shop, a widow who tries to assuage her overwhelming grief by endless labor in her garden, a Negro jitter-bug musician, and a number of others.

The stories rely on a subtle analysis of character and emotion rather than on plot for their interest. Miss Welty creates a portrait in full, minute detail; you see each person as tho face to face. She offers no comments, no judgment. Her prose is quiet, at times full of lyric beauty, and always crystal clear.

In "The Heart of Another" Martha Gellhorn offers nine tales of varying length, each one vibrant with a deep and intense emotion. Ranging over the face of Europe, they are filled with varying types—a Corsican peasant, an officer seen in the terrible days of the recent Spanish civil war, a Finnish aviator and a young American girl who has come to interview him at the front, a pair of lovers who make their own private little hell, a girl trying to help an imprisoned writer in Paris in the "bore war" days.

The author is of the feel-intensely-suffer-a-lot-and-tell-all school. She is brutally frank, sharp, and incisive and shies away from anything remotely connected with sentiment as abruptly as a horse shies away from a paper in the road. All her women are pretty much alike, and one suspects they're all Martha Gellhorn.

Herschel Brickell has edited the "O. Henry Memorial Award Prize Stories of 1941," collecting the finest tales from hundreds of magazines. In the list of authors are the late Sherwood Anderson, Roark Bradford, Ernest Hemingway, Pearl Buck, Dorothy Parker, William Saroyan, Kay Boyle, William Faulkner, John Steinbeck, and many others.

Winner of first prize among the stories is Kay Boyle with "Defeat," which was awarded $300; second prize of $200 goes to Eudora Welty for "A Worn Path," and third prize of $100 to Hallie Southgate Abbett for "Eighteenth Summer." A special $100 prize also went to Andy Logan for "The Visit," a first published story.

"Justice Deferred" .... By William MacLeod Raine

[Copyright: 1941: By William MacLeod Raine]

SYNOPSIS.

After an absence of 20 years Jack Waugh returns to Santa Rita determined to bring his father's murderers to justice. He talks to Luke Dixon, an old friend of his father's, and is convinced old Ab Clinton instigated the murder in order to get the Waugh ranch. Jack rescues Mary Lane from a holdup and possible kidnaping and when he calls on her he finds her stepfather is Corbett Carey, who sent his father a letter Jack thinks lured him to his death. He meets Abner Clinton III., grandson of old Ab, and suitor of Mary, and sends a warning by him to his grandfather that he intends to expose old Ab's part in his father's murder. Abner III. persuades his grandfather to let him try and settle the affair by diplomacy. Jack reads old newspaper accounts of the murder and finds that a James Fallon was the first to arrive on the scene after the murder.

INSTALMENT IX.

APOLOGY.

At the hotel Waugh met a surprise. Corbett Carey was waiting in the lobby and came forward to speak to him. "Like to have a word with you in private, Mr. Waugh," the older man said stiffly.

Jack's face did not show the surprise he felt. He said, after a moment: "Better come up to my room."

Neither of them broke the silence as they rode up in the elevator and walked along the corridor to the bedroom. Even after the door was closed Carey found a difficulty in beginning. He settled himself on his feet nervously, as if trying to get a solid starting place. His host gave him no help, but waited with impassive eyes for whatever he might have to say.

"I did write that letter to your father," Carey blurted out. "No reason why I shouldn't have told you, if you hadn't acted so high and mighty. I sent one of my riders 40 miles to warn him that he was going to be diddled out of the government land if he didn't get to town in a hurry."

"I'm sorry if I crowded you, Mr. Carey. I reckon I got the wrong idea—thought you were evading an answer." Jack's warm, friendly smile backed the apology handsomely. "My fault entirely. I had a chip on my shoulder."

"I was—in a way. I'll have to explain that, Mr. Waugh. You were right in what you said out at my house. My letter caused your father's death. It's the big regret of my life. I was jockeyed into writing it."

"What do you mean?"

"A homesteader in the foothills who lived near me called me out of the Silver Dollar, where I was loafing, and told me there was dirty work going on about the government land Pete had bought. He claimed a letter had been slipped out of the mail bag—the letter notifying him when the money had to be paid. I hustled 'round to the land office and found the time was up next day. So I put one of my riders into a saddle to get word to Pete. Looks to me now like it was a trap. They knew if I sent him word he would start for town right away."

"Who was the homesteader?"

"A fellow named Warren Tracy. Inside of a month after this he was on the Clinton pay roll as a rider. Two years later he was made foreman of the A. C. He's holding that job today."

"He was sent to you because he was supposed to be friendly to your side."

"That's right. Your father had been real kind to him several ways. I didn't mistrust him for a minute."

Waugh was convinced that Carey was telling the truth. The face of the man was open and kindly. The story he had told was entirely reasonable.

"Do you remember a man named James Fallon?" Jack asked. "He was a cowboy in those days. Maybe he still is. Last I heard of him he was working on one of the Clinton ranches."

"Sure I know him. He is still on the A C, or was six months ago. I own the adjoining ranch. It is the same one I had when your father was alive. I bought it back from Ab Clinton six years ago after I struck it rich in oil."

"I'm going out into that country for a few days. Do you know any place where I could put up?"

"You'll stay at the Three Prongs, of course. That's the name of my ranch. My boy Carl is running it. I'll give you a letter to him."

Waugh shook his head. "No. I might get you into trouble. I'm on the lookout for facts about my father's death."

Carey flushed. "I don't care what you are doing. I'm my own man and don't owe the Clintons a cent. Mind, I think you are making a mistake. You won't find out anything worth while, and maybe you'll run into a peck of trouble. But that's your lookout. If you're going into the Sweetwater Valley you'll stay at my place."

"Your son may not feel quite that way about it," Jack suggested. "I wouldn't blame him if he didn't. This isn't any of his bear fight."

"Carl is a man from the ground up," his father said proudly. "After you have met him he and you can decide where you'll stay."

"I've done you an injustice, Mr. Carey," Waugh said impulsively. "Will you tell Mrs. Carey for me that I am very sorry for my rudeness?"

The face of the owner of the Three Prongs brightened. "That's the way to talk, boy. I want to be friends with you. You'll be meeting my wife again soon, for we're going out to the ranch at the end of this week to stay a while. We always do summers."

"That will be pleasant," Jack said. "I'll be looking forward to it. Think I'll take off in the morning."

"By the way, I reckon you have heard from the police about the holdup. They found a doctor who looked after a man with a head badly cut up.

"Dr. Naples fixed the fellow up. His story was that he got into an automobile wreck."

"Lieut. Waring told me," Jack said. "I've been down to headquarters two or three times to look over suspects. None of those I looked at were the right ones, as far as I could tell."

"Probably the men who did it skipped town," Carey contributed.

"That's very likely," the young man agreed.

When Waugh strolled down the street an hour later he made a discovery. He was being trailed. A little man in a brown derby moved down Lincoln on the opposite side of the road. He regulated his movements by those of Jack. The cattleman smiled grimly. The Clintons were already on the job.

Carl Carey did not waste time in reading the letter of introduction from his father handed him by Waugh.

"I've been on the telephone with the old man," he explained as he shook hands." "Glad to know you, Mr. Waugh. The Three Prongs welcomes you as a guest."

"You know why I am here?" Jack asked.

"Yes. Father told me in a roundabout way so that I could guess. That's all right with me."

"The Clintons won't be pleased if you put me up."

Young Carey smiled. "That will worry me a lot. Let's get this right, Mr. Waugh. I don't like the Clintons and they don't like me. That makes it 50-50."

Dr. Carey was not much more than a boy in years, but responsibility had given him confidence. He had the direct level gaze one sees in men of outdoors. Altho lean loined and wiry, there was an easy squareness of the shoulders that suggested force. Beneath the tan of his cheeks lay the rich bloom of youth. Jack liked his face. It was frank and friendly.

"I don't want to get you into trouble," Waugh said.

"Forget it. I'm headed for it, anyhow. Brad Clinton and Warren Tracy are crowding me already—trying to take advantage of me because they think I'm a kid." Carl added quietly, after a moment: "I reckon I may surprise them a little."

"Do you mean they are pulling the same stuff the Clintons did when my father was alive?"

"That's right. Not so raw, of course, but enough to put a fellow's back up. Old Ab got into a jam for ready money six years ago and sold the Three Prongs back to father. Ever since, they have been pulling off dirty little tricks to make him sell out cheap—like fence cutting and letting their stock into our pastures."

"Not easy to fight that kind of underhanded meanness," Jack suggested. "Difficult to prove in the first place, and not worth going to law about even if you had evidence. If you could catch them at it and handle the scoundrels a bit rough it might discourage them."

"Even that isn't easy. Brad Clinton and his foreman, Warren Tracy, are tough hombres and proud of it. On their pay roll they have three-four warriors known to be gunmen. My boys are decent chaps. I don't want to send them up against killers. Not that there has been any gunplay so far."

"What is this fellow Tracy like?"

"He is a big rawboned ruffian—strong as an ox. Claims he can whip any man in the country. It may be true. He has a rep as a rough and tumble fighter. Everybody sidesteps him, for he is a born bully and is always ready to fight at the drop of the hat."

BOOKS

War's Horrors Etched in Tale by Lin Yutang

"A Leaf in the Storm," by Lin Yutang. [John Day, $2.50.] Published today.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

The author of "Moment in Peking," which so deftly reflected the old China in the new China, takes an even newer China for the background of "A Leaf in the Storm"—China wracked by war.

"What the war did to one woman, one leaf among millions," is the blood in the veins of the book, but its fine bony structure is the war itself. However, the author declares that "these things do not belong properly to fiction for they might be taken as the inventions of an imaginative writer on the verge of lunacy," after he has told that "not until now, since God created man, had human eyes seen laughing soldiers throw a baby into the air and catch it expertly on the point of a sharp bayonet as it fell and call it sport."

Peiping, Shanghai, Hankow, the battle front are unrolled like a kakemono before the reader's eyes, and the spirit of the Chinese people is inherent in each line of the painting.

Three figures people the pages emotionally—the heroine and the two men whom she loves, one a dashing, rich young "strategist" whose contact with the war is intellectual, the other a man of 45, a Buddhist who believes that he must with his own two hands do what he can about helping those whom the war has uprooted.

The two men are friends, the girl a stranger to them both until fate sends her a refugee to the aunt of the younger man. Her mysterious past had included a period as concubine to a famous traitor. She was pleasure loving and sensual. Contact with the selfless Lao Peng reshaped her into a self-sacrificing worker for others.

In the same stylized exactness which gave "Moment in Peking" its most exotic feeling, the characters in "A Leaf in the Storm" are at the same time lifeless—and timeless—symbols and pulsant human beings. That quality of formalized reality is the subtlest difference between this and an American novel.

Literary Glamor.

"Wild Is the River," by Louis Bromfield. [Harpers, $2.50.] Published today.

Literary glamor as glittering as the gold dust which La Lionne sprinkled over her tawny hair sparkles on every page of this thriller from Louis Bromfield's always seductive pen. Of today's story tellers he is one of the best, and when he has such material as the wild, cruel, gaudy, melodramatic days of the Yankee occupation of New Orleans in the Civil war he can write pinwheels around almost anybody else.

"Wild Is the River" is a thriller from page one to its regretfully reached 326th page. Its hero, Tom Bedloe of New Bedford, Mass., stock, but one with the buccaneers in spirit, is said by a perspicacious black woman to have the quality of "excitement" even more vividly than the quality of passion. The novel, a record of Tom's "wild" ways, has the same vivid urgency about it. Drama is overlaid with melodrama, and coincidence has as long an arm as you can remember encountering in a novel, but the reader will be so genuinely enmeshed in the book's irresistible excitement that all is forgiven, altho nothing is forgotten.

The Yankee plundering of New Orleans, the holocausts of the ravaging freed blacks seeking revenge for the inhuman treatment inflicted upon them by one overseer, the horrors of a hurricane at sea in a cholera infested Spanish boat on which two gently reared northern women were gripped by fate, death by the fever, and murder by vengeful hands vie with the passionate embroilments of Tom to keep the temperature of the book somewhere over 104 degrees literary Fahrenheit. Almost from the first page both the novel and the reader are at fever heat.

Some of Mr. Bromfield's readers will declare that this is the best novel he ever wrote. All of them will say it is most exciting.

Fitzgerald's Last.

"The Last Tycoon," by F. Scott Fitzgerald. [Scribners, $2.75.]

"The Great Gatsby," F. Scott Fitzgerald's best novel and the best of his short stories are rightly as well as dramatically included with the unfinished novel, "The Last Tycoon," in this really important volume, for, good as "The Great Gatsby" was, it makes plain that "The Last Tycoon" would have been a greater novel, that it would have been, indeed, one of the major novels of the day.

There is a maturity and a roundness and a depth about "The Last Tycoon" [even unfinished] which makes one grieve anew over the untimely death of Scott Fitzgerald last December. He had written the first episode of chapter 6 the day before he died, and he had made a careful outline of the whole book.

Edmund Wilson, who edited the notes—and did a remarkably fine job of it—says that "this draft of 'The Last Tycoon,' then, represents that point in the artist's work where he has assembled and organized his material and acquired a firm grasp of his theme, but has not yet brought it finally into focus."

Even "out of focus" this truncated novel is obviously not only the best thing Scott Fitzgerald ever did but it is the first major novel of Hollywood, and the great director, Monroe Stahr, is the most completely realized of Hollywood characters.

To those interested in the craft of fiction this book is fascinating, for in its progressing pages and its notes and outline for the unfinished section one sees a skillful writer at work.

Humor in Mystery.

"Trial by Fury," by Craig Rice. [Simon & Schuster, $2.]

One of the most popular of the newer mystery concocters is Craig Rice, who lives in Chicago and, until "Trial by Fury," has laid her nefarious plots in our fair village.

Her wisecracking, popular characters, Helene and Jake Justus, this time find themselves entrapped in a mesh of murder in Jackson, Wis., where they had gone for a spot of fishing. Entrapped is right, because, being strangers and obviously city slickers, the neighbors gang up on them and accuse them of murder when Senator Peveley is sieved by a gun. Their lawyer-detective friend, John J. Malone, arrives in time to save them and almost to become victim number two in a snappy gamut of murders—"murder by gun, murder by bombing, murder by strangulation, murder by knife, and murder by mob"—by as thoroly versatile a killer as you can remember meeting.

But it won't be the panorama of methods that will make the reader think this one of the best. It will be because "Trial by Fury" is, despite its shrouds, a really funny book.

Nuggets of Humor Are Gleaned from Literary Treasure

"A Subtreasury of American Humor," by E. B. White and Katharine S. White. [Coward-McCann, $3.]

Beginning with its title, this subtreasury of American humor has a laugh in every phrase [almost]. With practically diabolical cunning, the Whites [Mr. and Mrs.] have dug up some of their nuggets—out of the files of reviewers as well as reviewed, out of books that you've not tagged humorous [but satirical], as well as from the works of the accepted funniest of American funsters. The bulk of the excerpts are contemporary, but the classics burgeon here, too.

It happens that the editors have included my private and pet guffaws, which may prejudice me slightly, but I would be willing to wager that any sourpuss exposed to this sunny lamp of literature will emerge with a grin burned on his spirit and a missionary zeal in his heart to pass on his glee.

Adventure Ho! Salty Tales of Sea and Ships

"Spice Ho! A Story of Discovery," by Agnes Danforth Hewes. [Knopf, $1.75.]

"Scuttle Watch," by Marion Crowell Ryder. [Knopf, $2.]

"William the Whalehunter," by Shirley Alexander. [Lothrop, Lee & Shepard, $2.]

"Brave Ships of England and America," by Joseph Leeming. [Nelson, $2.50.]

BY AL CHASE.

One sentence from "Spice Ho!" tells the reader what to expect: "There is no more romantic, exciting story in all history than the search for spices . . . from start to finish it is the very breath of adventure." It tells how the quest for spices changed the face of the world.

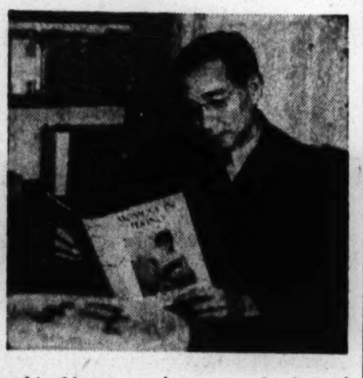
"Scuttle Watch" is the true story of the boyhood of the author's father and two uncles in the old home on Cape Cod in the early 1860s. It's an entertaining and authentic account of life in a New England seafaring community. Vigorous pen and ink illustrations by Alex Raymond add much to the book's attractiveness.

"William the Whalehunter" is a salty tale of whaling, and about life in the harbor towns of Long Island in the 1830s.

The son of one of our great writers of the sea, the late Felix Riesenberg has written more than a rattling good sea yarn in "Full Ahead!" He has pictured life on modern American freighters and passenger ships so alluringly that it should do considerable to attract our youth to that branch of the marine service which in recent years has been overshadowed by the glamor of navy and coast guard. Woven thru the plot is a goodly collection of salt water facts.

"Brave Ships of England and America" is an absorbing anthology of famous naval battles in which Yankee and British ships were engaged with each other and with vessels of other nations from the days of the Thomas, flagship of King Edward III., down to the sinking of the Hood and Bismarck in the present European war. These are stirring tales of real adventure and heroic achievement. The book is well illustrated.

New Novel Out



Lin Yutang, whose novel of modern war-torn China, "A Leaf in the Storm," is reviewed today by Miss Butcher.

William Benet Does His Life Story in Verse

BY RUSSELL MAC FALL.

In "The Dust Which Is God" [Dodd-Mead, $3.50], William Rose Benet has written one of the frankest and most original autobiographies in literature. It is poetry, but it is not meant nor is it designed to be read as such, for the freely flowing lines have the speed of prose.

Under the disguise of Raymond Fernandez, Mr. Benet looks back on a life whose most precious memories are those of family relations—childhood in an army officer's peripatetic home; marriage with three women, one of whom, Sylvia, is Eleanor Wylie, and the connections of fatherhood and brotherhood which filled many aspects of his life with close and cordial companionship.

There is defiance in the book—defiance of much in American life which Mr. Benet holds to be wrong and which he pictures with jagged impressionism, and courage and faith in the values of human life, but most readers will take their deepest pleasure in its portraits of Miss Wylie and the first Mrs. Benet—portraits done with the utmost tenderness and insight. And many will enjoy—for such is the fate of a roman a clef—the pleasure of penetrating the thin disguises behind which Mr. Benet has pictured and sometimes caricatured many literary personalities.

The long poem has come back into its own this season. Of especial importance is the publication of "The Song of Jed Smith" [Macmillan, $1.90], which completes John G. Neihardt's cycle of the west. The five heroic narrative poems of which the cycle is composed have won increasing critical commendation as they have appeared, and the latest one upholds the high purpose and poetic eloquence of its predecessors. Its simplicity, a conversation around the camp fire in which his followers recall the deeds and character of Jedediah Smith who led the first band of Americans overland to California, and its meter, the heroic couplet, keep alive the rugged strength of this pioneer epic.

Similar in its meter is Richard L. Stokes' "Benedict Arnold" [Putnam, $2], a poetic drama by the author of the opera, "Merry Mount." Based on recently discovered facts about the Arnold-Andre conspiracy to surrender West Point to the British, the play makes Arnold the victim of his wife and her family, the Shippens.

Personality Study Traces Years of Sandburg's Youth

"Carl Sandburg," by Karl Detzer. [Harcout Brace, $2].

"A Study in Personality and Background" this book about America's foremost poet-biographer is subtitled. It is as the publishers say, the "most complete account available of Carl Sandburg," but it has little of the true feel of the great and tender and noble genius of Carl Sandburg. It gathers anecdotes and data about the days of his hard youth and early manhood which the world has not known, and it gives facts about his later life, and it is interesting for its panorama, its background. But the true personality of Carl Sandburg is more apparent in the four photographs taken by his brother-in-law, Edward Steichen, which adorn the book than in the 208 pages of Mr. Detzer's text.

Here Are Characters You'd Meet Most Any Day at the Race Track

"Horse Crazy," by Jesse M. Lilienthal [Messner, $2.50].

The characters in the anecdotes in this book have their counterparts at race tracks every day. There is the longshot better, who dreams of having a winning wager on the rare 100 to 1 shot. There is the conservative fellow, who makes only an occasional wager on a solid horse—and finds it, too, can lose the race. There are the trainers, the shoestring owners, the touts. Mr. Lilienthal tells with wit, understanding, and compassion the stories of all these people.

DAYS ARE AS GRASS

By Wallace McElroy Kelly

"Mr. Knopf has made a fine choice for his first Annual Fellowship. Wallace Kelly has not imitated anyone but has, out of his own heart, written a very living story. It is a more convincing picture of a Southern family after the Civil War than any other author has given us, to my way of thinking. The Evanses are unforgettable."
—MAZO DE LA ROCHE

Here is a work of value and substance—a beautifully conceived, finely executed story of a group of memorable characters. Chief among these are Florrie Evans, Kentucky aristocrat, and Pick Hayden, descendant of local pioneers. Their story is one of a love born against all reason, dubiously consummated in a time of trouble, and reaching its ultimate triumph only after many years of adversity and trial.

But beyond the story of these two, moving and satisfying as it is, Days are as Grass presents the full sweep of the three decades that spanned the turn of the century—the slow growth of the sleepy rural village into the larger and more varied community, part and parcel of the main stream of life in America. Told in rich and evocative prose, it is a novel so real, so absorbing, that it will delight the discriminating.

MEXICO SETS UP PASSPORT ORDER FOR AMERICANS

Only Tourists, Students Are Exempted.

BY HAROLD CALLENDER.

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18.—A New Mexican immigration order, put into effect without official notification to the United States authorities, has caused many Americans to be held up at the border.

The rule provides that to enter Mexico every American—excepting tourists and summer school students—must have a passport with a Mexican consular visa, which costs $10. Many Americans discover the rule only when they reach the border without passports, it is said.

Contrary to Agreement.

This rule is contrary to a verbal agreement between the Mexican and American authorities, made in 1940, to the effect that permanent residents of Mexico would not need passports, and discussions with American authorities have now resulted in exempting permanent residents—those who have lived in Mexico five years.

The Americans who have resided in Mexico less than five years must get passports and visas to reënter the country, as must American business men. It is expected that the rules may be changed to permit American residents of Mexico to reënter with consular certificates of residence, obtainable from United States consular offices in Mexico.

The new immigration rule went into effect in October, but no formal notification has reached the American authorities here.

Alien Registration Proposed.

Meanwhile additional plans for control of foreigners are being made by the interior department and the foreign office. One proposed scheme is the registration of all aliens. This plan is similar to that in the United States. Another is for stricter regulation of Americans residing near the border in this country.

It is believed by Americans here that the new order was made to retaliate for the United States immigration restrictions and the $10 visa charged by the United States, or for Washington's failure to complete the "global" agreement long under negotiation.

A fashion show, "streamlined into a musical comedy in three acts," in Bayfront park. A King Orange Jamboree parade, "with 5,000 participants, 50 bands, and 75 floats featuring black lighting effects."

Racing New Year's Morn.

A racing program at Tropical park on New Year's morning—"the only racing meet scheduled for a morning performance in America." A marine pageant on Biscayne bay, "with illuminated ski jumps, stunt rides, and an aquaplane ballet."

"Nothing short of an all out effort, having as its prototype the fun festivals of Roman holidays 2,000 years ago, will satiate the desire of those who are mapping a four day, every hour, on the hour, schedule of events that should make visitors slap-happy and perhaps a bit punch drunk with excitement," says the official spokesman.

"Life and Fun" Pageant Theme.

Last winter the New Year's eve parade was seen by 250,000 persons. Even larger crowds are expected this time. The theme of the pageant is to be "Life and Fun in Florida," and it will be carried out in the designs and lighting effects. Twenty-two Florida cities have promised to send floats, bands, marchers, and bathing beauties.

So far there has been only one difficulty. Following last January's game in the Orange Bowl, the officials planned to double the stadium's seating capacity. Now the steel priorities have put a quietus on that plan. So this season's game will be played before a crowd the same size as last season's.

MEXICO IS PREPARING TO RESTORE RAILWAY LINKING TWO OCEANS

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18 [Special].—The government of Mexico is planning to put in first class running order the long neglected interocean railway across the Tehuantepec isthmus.

The road, 190 miles long, connects Puerto Mexico, on the Gulf of Mexico, with Salina Cruz, on the Pacific. It thus spans the narrowest part of the republic. Its restoration would provide a combined sea and overland route, between New Orleans and San Francisco, 2,300 miles shorter than the Panama canal route.

While the first concession for the road was granted nearly a hundred years ago, the railway was not completed until 1907. Built at a cost of 60 million dollars, it has never proved a profitable investment.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ONLY two of the bachelors but all of the benedicts except one will be on hand tonight to greet the 450 guests who will attend the Bs and Bs annual Thanksgiving eve ball, to be held in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House. The two unmarried hosts who will be present are William R. Dickinson Jr. and Laurence A. Carton. There are three other bachelors on the committee but they are away serving their country. They are Ensign John Shedd Reed, Ensign Thomas Albert Potter Jr., and Lieut. Arthur M. Wood. The benedict who is absent is Ensign Henry Barkhausen.

The benedicts who will attend are Wyndham Hasler, chairman; Joseph E. Rich, Garfield King, Hugh McBirney Johnston, Albert B. Dick III., John Jay Borland II., George A. Ranney Jr., William B. Cudahy, Peter Fortune, and Howard F. Gillette Jr. Mrs. King will not attend the party because of illness; Mrs. Barkhausen will not be there because she is in San Diego. Mrs. Johnston will be there but will not receive. All of the other wives will be in the receiving line which will form about 11 o'clock.

Many Dinner Parties Will Precede the Ball.

One of the largest of the many dinners that will be given before the ball is one that the Haslers and Riches will give at the home of Mrs. Hasler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ranney Sr. of Astor street. Miss Eunice Hale is giving a dinner for some of the debutantes of last year who are going to their first Bs and Bs. In addition to Miss Hale the girls who have been invited for the first time are Miss Gertrude Scribner, Miss Margaret Stuart, Miss Peggy Rich, Miss Barbara Hixon, Miss Evelyn Gardner, and Miss Patricia Cathcart.

Among other dinner parties tonight is a large Dutch treat one the Cudahys, the young Joseph Beldens, and the junior DeWitt Buchanans have arranged to be held in the Balinese room of the Blackstone; another Dutch treat one at the Saddle and Cycle, which the Louis Watermulders, the Theodore Garys, the Herbert Stratfords, and the Robert A. Carrs, among others, will attend; one that the Gillettes will give at the Yar; one the junior Gardiner Van Nesses will give at Mrs. Van Ness Sr.'s home in Wellington avenue; one the Kendall Lingles will give, and another at which the John R. Hurleys will entertain at the Racquet club.

Herbert Hoover to Address Union League Club Tonight.

Among those planning to attend are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pope and Mr. and Mrs. Pope Jr., Selden F. White, Mr. and Mrs. J. Horton Fall Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foss Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Ernst L. Hartig, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Affleck, and George F. Spaulding. Mrs. Ferre C. Watkins, whose husband is president of the club, will have a special table for wives of the guests at the speakers' table.

Cuban Soprano to Appear with Woman's Symphony.

The second concert of the Woman's Symphony orchestra series, to be held this evening in Orchestra hall, will be marked by the appearance of Emma Otero, Cuban soprano. After the concert Mrs. James G. Shakman, president of the symphony board, and Mr. Shakman will give a reception at the Drake hotel for Miss Otero.

Tonight is reserved on the calendars of Roycemore students for a Harvest Hop. The party will be given in the school gymnasium in Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Russell and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Nock [she planned the invitations] for the juniors, and Mr. and Mrs. Lowry K. Grülee and Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell S. Edwards for the sophomores.

Miss Courtney Cook's Engagement Is Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett R. Cook, of Winnetka announce the engagement of their daughter, Courtney, to Ensign Beverly W. Pattishall, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Jackson Pattishall of Barrington. Miss Cook was graduated from the Roycemore school in Evanston and is now studying at Mount Vernon Junior college in Washington, D. C. Mr. Pattishall was graduated from Northwestern university and received his law degree from the University of Virginia. He is stationed on the U. S. S. Swanson.

The Joseph T. Ryersons had a hectic day Sunday, for, in addition to announcing the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Donald Brown, they heard that their nephew, Henry B. Stimson Jr., had been seriously injured in an automobile accident driving away from the Yale-Princeton game at New Haven. Yesterday Mrs. Ryerson had word that young Mr. Stimson is "out of the woods," but he will be in the hospital for several months, which means that he will not enter the naval aviation service on Friday, as planned. He left Chicago, where he had been working for two years, last week to have a week's visit with his parents at their home in Rye, N. Y., before going into the service. He now is in the hospital at Torrington, Conn.

Cradle Benefit of Interest to Little Mary and Her Parents

Four year old Mary Hough's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Hough of Highland Park, are especially interested in the Cradle for they obtained their little daughter from it. Tonight the Highland Park auxiliary of the institution is giving its annual benefit dinner-dance at the Villa Moderne. The auxiliary works the year around raising money for the nursery which is equipped to give to infants, who, for some reason, are deprived of the care of their natural parents, as nearly perfect physical care as science has learned to give to the new born until homes are found for the little ones.

FRONT VIEWS AND PROFILES

Signs of the Times.

The indignant words, "This is no liberry," chalked on the newspaper stand at the northwest corner of Washington and Wells. . . . The bold placard, "Opened by mistake," on the window of a closed bar in an Oak street basement.

If You've Read It—

The acuity of Winston Churchill's wit is legendary and apparently no recent manifestation. Gertrude Atherton, in her autobiography, The Adventures of a Novelist, tells of it when Churchill was 32 and had just switched from conservative to liberal. A young woman whom he was taking to dinner looked at him coyly and remarked, "There are two things I don't like about you, Mr. Churchill."

"And what are they?" Churchill inquired with a brave indifference.

"Your new politics and your new mustache."

"My dear madam," came his suave reply. "Pray do not disturb yourself. You are not likely to come into contact with either."

From the Deep South.

She Was in Town.

And while we're indulging in mundane mummery,
Just who can describe Mrs.
Robert Montgomery?

The Human Race.

"I'd like a good original painting about this high," the young woman told the art dealer, indicating a 4 by 5 picture. "In purple and gray. Now, I don't want to spend more than $400 on it," she continued hurriedly, "because I don't believe in spending money on anything. That is, not on anything except to have a good time. They can't take that from me."

The Eighth Hill of Rome.

Benito Mussolini's big, fat fist is responsible for the auction here next week of the art collection of the late Mrs. Eugene McVoy. In the early '30's Mrs. McVoy bought a hundred acre estate on Montemario, a hill northwest of the Vatican in Rome, and planned to build a mansion there to house her celebrated collection. But Il Duce said no: he wanted no building near the parade ground of his Fascisti. So the collection, which contains among other things a fine Shelley and Keats library, rare portraits of Shelley and his wife, Mary, a Titian and an entrancing old Italian bombocci or chest, studded with secret drawers, came back to Chicago to rest. The McVoy heirs still own the hundred acres, but don't know what to do with them. We are told Montemario is one of Rome's famous seven encircling hills, but unless Mussolini has changed the name, it is not. As every school child used to know before the hills of Rome became unessential knowledge, they are:

Capitoline and Aventine,
Caelian and Esquiline
Quirinal and Viminal
And also Palatine.

F. D. R. ON FOREIGN ISMS

President Roosevelt in a speech on Nov. 2, 1940, three days before his re-election, said:

"There is nothing secret about our foreign policy. . . . I have stated it many times before, not only in words, but in action. I now restate it.

"The first purpose of our foreign policy is to keep our country out of war. At the same time we seek to keep foreign conceptions of government out of the United States.

"The second purpose of this policy is to keep war as far away as possible from the shores of the entire western hemisphere."

Concert Arranged.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Ideal Boss Defined.

A group of business girls, dining together, invented a new form of the old game of "compliments." Across the top of a sheet of paper one of them wrote a one sentence description of the ideal boss, then folded the paper and handed it to her neighbor who, in turn, wrote her definition, folded the paper, and passed it around the table, each one contributing a sentence without reading the previous statement.

Unfolded and read aloud, the various opinions as to the ideal employer provided considerable chatter.

"One who closes the office for the week-end when a holiday falls on Friday." . . . "Some one who doesn't say: 'Will you drop this off at the cleaners when you go to lunch'." . . . "Any kind except the fresh air fiend who beats his chest before an open window while dictating." . . . "The man who gives you a raise when you deserve it and before you ask for it." . . . "Somebody without any annoying mannerisms like cigar chewing, foot tapping, or whistling 'Tea for Two'." . . . "An understanding person who doesn't go in for 5 o'clock dictation and who graciously overlooks a mistake now and then." . . . "An employer who never passes on to you the bawling out he got from the next higher up." . . . And one, for her definition, simply wrote: "Mr. S," thereby giving evidence that the perfect employer does exist in this imperfect world.

Telephone Manners.

Do you have good telephone manners? The telephone companies in some midwestern cities are conducting an educational program to win the coöperation of the public for better phone service. Time and effort are wasted, they say, by too many "hello's" instead of "accounting department," "adjusting," or "Miss Howard's office," in answer to a call. . . . Also, many people fail to make their business known directly, or show irritation when asked to repeat a name or number, or go all around Robin Hood's barn to leave a message. Good telephone manners are important, both from a business and social standpoint.

Alarm Clock Defiance.

A recent judicial candidate, away on a vacation, instructed his secretary to take it easy during his absence. The result: The secretary sets the alarm clock each morning for 7 just for the fun of hearing it ring, turning it off, and going back to sleep.

Counterfeit Racketeer.

Heaven will not protect the working girl, as illustrated by the most recent racket around town: A well dressed man approaches the cashier and offers a $20 bill in payment for a 43 cent lunch. The cashier makes change and returns $19.57 to the customer. Then an official looking person steps up to the cashier's cage and, showing a badge, produces a magnifying glass and says: "We're tracking down counterfeit bills. May I have this $20 bill? I'll give you a receipt."

The receipt is exchanged for the bill. Around the corner the one whose profit thus far has been $19.57 and a 43 cent lunch awaits the other slicker, and merrily they divide the loot.

Tiny White Hat Now Is High in Fashion Favor

BY REA SEEGER.

Tiny white hats resembling the last small dab of white frosting on a cup cake are new, provocative and high fashion for fur jackets, ink-black dress parade suits and coats with or without fur. Many of them are of white felt, a lot of shiny panné velvet [really hatter's plush] and some of dull white crêpe. The snappy white felts are dramatized with black wings, black birds or wings with black veils.

There are some clever white feathered hats trimmed with dozens of tiny black velvet bows; other white felts trimmed with crimson roses or camellias and others using both velvet bows and much veiling for accent duty.

Most of the brims curve up in flattering outlines, especially under a shadow of black veiling. And, if the veiled beauties do not click, try the white hats with front accent of perky bows, sometimes of the same felt as the hat; other models with bows of gros grain ribbon.

Hats made of shimmering hatter's plush are tremendously smart and effective worn with suits, and simply cut and fashioned street and daytime dresses of black or other dark contrasts. Models featuring this sleek, silky stuff are ideal in extreme styles, such as the exaggerated cloche with a simple narrow black velvet band and bow tied directly in front and half way down the very elongated top.

White and the off-white tones of easy-to-drape and twist crêpe make the most unusual turbans . . . it takes an expert to twist the right sort of a turban, because of the thick rolled convolutions, double twists and the difficult shell effects. Exotic turbans are higher and more dramatic than ever before; the white affairs are positively sensational, especially with slim black costumes.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

The problem of giving the scalp and the hair a little pickup cleansing treatment between shampoos is one that's needed solving for a long time. There are dry shampoos, of course, but sometimes their use is a lot more trouble than you've the time or the inclination for.

Our pet solution involves the use of a liquid preparation made by one of the houses that specializes in hair treatment aids. It's a liquid, with a nice clean, bracing kind of fragrance, used to cleanse the scalp and help banish loose dandruff.

All you do is apply a little of it to absorbent cotton and use the saturated pad to cleanse the scalp briskly. Part the hair closely and rub the liquid in well. Then massage the scalp with a clean soft towel.

This is wonderfully refreshing when you're not quite ready for your usual shampoo but feel that your scalp could do with a bit of cleaning up and stimulation. The scalp will feel better for it, and the hair itself will have a crisper, cleaner look. This can be used on dry or oily hair.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

KIND: Drama built around the program for training young pilots.

ACTING: Excellent on the part of the men. Edmund Lowe's work, especially, is good. He plays a daredevil World war ace who forgets his differences with a younger brother [Frank Albertson] and assists the latter turn a little one horse air school into a modern training center for flying cadets. . . . Also for a time he is somewhat of a rival for the attentions of brother's girl. . . . But that's ironed out. . . . William Gargan does a grand job, too, as an instructor, and Frankie Thomas has one tremendously effective scene. Peggy Moran is pretty limp.

DIRECTION: All right.

DIALOG: Nothing to mention.

PHOTOGRAPHY, SCENERY, ETC.: Satisfactory.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Quite a bit. You certainly get an idea from "Flying Cadets" as to what goes on while the birdies are learning to use their wings.

See you tomorrow.

Doris Feels No Sympathy for a Silly Widow

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

When a woman over 40 makes a fool of herself over a man of 23, does she deserve sympathy when her romance goes on the rocks? You be the judges, readers.

"Widow" writes that another woman has come between her and the man she loves, a youth of 23. The "other woman" in the case being a 20 year old girl, who has finally succeeded in capturing the affections of said young man.

"But he said he loved me, Miss Blake! He made me feel so young and gay. He vowed he loved no one but me. He told me he didn't care for this girl any more! Now I know he was lying to me. I first sensed a change in his attitude toward me when he gave me silly excuses for not getting in touch with me, as he faithfully promised me he would. And when I called him recently to find out why he had not called me, he seemed annoyed. When he did come to see me, a few evenings later, he said I shouldn't have called at his home, because his parents were furious. He told me, when I pressed him for an explanation of the change in his attitude, that he had been seeing his old girl again, and that he really loved her. You can imagine how I felt! My heart is broken."

Not that you need any help in judging this case, but don't you agree it's a blessing that this young man was saved from such a "misfit" romance? The older woman surely doesn't deserve a bit of sympathy. After all, she's old enough to know better. If she's wise, she'll not waste any tears on that boy, but will be "young and gay" for some man her own age, or a little older. And orchids to that 20 year old woman for doing a good deed! Like to write me your opinions of this case, readers?

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 18.—There have been three well known Americans wearing eye patches. Two, Wiley Post and Floyd Gibbons, are dead; the third, Raoul Walsh, is quite alive and his powers are undiminished. Just recently he managed to kill off the indestructible Errol Flynn. Next he will make a prize fighter out of Flynn. Some day, if Errol is lucky and strong enough, Flynn might enact the life history of Raoul Walsh. . . . And this is not at all a bad idea. The movies are always doing biographies of generals, doctors, and stage stars and they might honor one of their own people. Certainly Walsh's life is pulp melodrama.

Now 49, Walsh in his teens studied playwriting, started in the theater as a sign painter, became an actor, and played on Broadway with Tyrone Power Sr. and Mary Pickford. . . . His entrance into the movies out-Flynns Flynn. He had done some soldiering around South and Central America and was a professional soldier for Pancho Villa when the Mutual Film corporation made a deal to film Villa and his army for $50,000 in gold, payable in instalments.

Villa was enthusiastically cooperative; he made one battle scene look real by having some soldiers shot—but shot! The movie outfit, horrified at this, held up a gold payment. Walsh, who had been a liaison man, told the Hollywoodians they'd better scram across the border and he scrammed with them. The picture, "The Life of the Bandit," was finished here with Walsh playing Villa.

When D. W. Griffith entered pictures Walsh joined him as actor and assistant. His first important rôle was John Wilkes Booth in "The Birth of a Nation." He had, in 1912, played a minor rôle in the first of many film histories of the Custer massacre, while Charles Carman and Blanche Sweet were Gen. and Mrs. C. . . . Now, almost 40 years later, Raoul has directed the latest and most costly film version of events leading up to the Little Big Horn—"They Died with Their Boots On," with Flynn as Custer and Olivia de Havilland as the Missus . . . and Charles Carman, first of the long-bob generals, was a makeup man on the Walsh-Flynn epic!

Raoul gave Tom Mix his first job. He hired Mix and his troupe of seven circus riders for $250 a week.

An accident almost everybody knows about put Walsh out of the movies, so far as acting went, and Warner Baxter back in. Raoul had gone thru the World war without a scratch and had resumed a Hollywood career of directing and acting. He was doing a double job on "In Old Arizona," first outdoor talkie, when, near location, a rabbit jumped thru his car windshield and a glass splinter blinded one eye. Walsh had to give up acting forthwith, and he summoned Baxter, who was pretty much washed up, to assume his rôle. Baxter got the academy award and a new lease on star life.

Walsh, whose early life was full of action, likes pictures with same. He revelled in assignments like "What Price Glory" and "The Cockeyed World." . . . During a term at Paramount he had flossy comedies and musicals among his assignments and was fairly miserable. Nowadays his present bosses, the Warner Brothers, feed him on raw meat. Following the recently completed Custer epic will be "Gentleman Jim," a screen history of James J. Corbett.

Perfect Child Nonexistent and Undesired

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"About 5 o'clock I was fed up and tired and I thought, if I only had perfect children, maybe I could take the furnace and a few other things in my stride."

All mothers feel that way at one time or another, but they really wouldn't want paragons for children. There wouldn't be any variety or spice to living and everybody would be bored. Think what it would be like if the baby were always cheerful and the older children instantly obedient.

A normal, vigorous, healthy child is filled with vital urges which are part of the process of his natural growth and development, and which often make him question or rebel, or simply try persistently to gain his own ends. He lives and has his being in his own particular world, and it would not be wholesome for him always to give up his desires or activities because they interfere with a grown person's ideas of convenience or cleanliness. He reacts to his own impulses [which are those of a child, not a grownup], and we have to give him time to learn and to understand. We are far too inclined to expect our children to be adults scaled down, grownups in miniature, and that is just what they are not.

One evening, a friend told me that when she was putting her small daughter to bed, she said: "This has been such a lovely day, darling. You've been so good. Wouldn't it be nice if you were that way every day?" To which came the prompt answer: "Maybe I'll be good all the time, Mummy, when I get so big I'll know how."

How may a child be taught obedience? Should children be permitted freedom of the house? You will find answers to these and other problems in "You and Your Young Child." Mrs. Gladys Bevans' latest booklet, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 15 cents; postpaid, 18 cents.

Chicago Artists Open National Art Week; Sales Total $1,300

Original works of art by Chicago artists and craftsmen brought a total of $1,300 in sales yesterday at 30 locations in the city and suburbs marking the opening of the city's observance of National Art week, Norma Millman, chairman of the Chicago committee for National Art week, announced last evening. She said the heavy opening day sale indicates Chicago will lead the nation in total sales during the week this year as it did last.

The works of many Chicago artists are being sold at lower than usual prices, a top price of $100 having been set to stimulate sales. No commissions are being charged at any of the sales places.

Three statues by Mario Ubaldi, Chicago sculptor, brought the $100 maximum in the first day's selling. Landscapes by Edward Millman and Francis Chapin brought $75 and $40 respectively. A still life by Copeland Burg was sold for $25. Numerous etchings and small pieces of craftsmanship were sold for $1 and $2.

The Housewife

Surface marks on furniture such as are caused by heat or water, perfume or alcohol can ruin the appearance of lovely mahogany or walnut, or of any other wood for that matter. Why not get rid of these little stains right away? It's easy to do if you use a product made especially for the purpose. Then follow up with a good polish. You'll be surprised to see the new lease on life this once-over gives your table tops, dressers, and cabinets.

What's a Thanksgiving dinner without some salted nuts waiting in a good looking dish or being passed as the coffee comes to table? Buy them ready roasted and salted, or prepare them yourself with butter, a glaze, or a candy dip. Glazed and dipped nuts are especially nice for reception, open house and tea menus.

TOASTED ALMONDS OR PEANUTS.

Pour boiling water over almonds or raw peanuts to loosen skins. Drain, dip in cold water, and slip off skins. Dry nuts on soft paper. Spread them out in a shallow baking pan, sprinkle well with salt, and drip melted butter or oil over them. [They may be roasted without the oil, and should be if you watch calories, altho a faithful calorie watcher will abstain from nuts, oiled or not. Place in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, and toast until nuts are delicately browned, stirring occasionally. Drain on soft paper.

Mixed nuts may be roasted together in this way. Only almonds and peanuts need be blanched first. Almonds, peanuts, and pecans make a good combination for mixed nuts.

Glazed Nuts.

2 cups sugar
1 cup hot water
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
Pecans, roasted almonds or other nuts

Combine sugar, water, and cream of tartar in a saucepan and stir until sugar is dissolved. Boil sirup to brittle stage, when it begins to turn slightly yellow. Remove saucepan from heat and place over hot water to keep sirup from hardening. Dip nuts quickly with a wire spoon, a few at a time. Remove to oiled paper and let dry.

Orange Sugared Nuts.

1 cup sugar
¼ cup white corn sirup
¼ cup water
3 tablespoons orange juice
½ teaspoon grated orange rind
½ pound walnut halves or pecans

Cook sugar, corn sirup, water, and orange juice to the soft ball stage, 240 degrees. Remove from heat, add orange rind and nuts. Stir until sirup begins to appear cloudy. Before it hardens, drop it by the spoonful onto waxed paper, including a half nut in each spoonful.

Spiced Nuts.

1 cup almonds, pecans, walnuts, or Brazil nuts
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg white, slightly beaten

Mix spices and sugar in a small bowl. Add nuts to egg white, a few at a time, an rub between fingers to coat. Toss into bowl of sugar and spice, completely coating. Place on greased cooky sheet and bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, for half an hour.

NUT CLUSTERS.

Melt a large bar of sweet or semi-sweet chocolate in the top of a double boiler and drop nutmeats into it. Coat them well, then spoon them out in clusters, on waxed paper, to harden.

LAST WEDNESDAY'S QUESTION.

Question 30: Rubber bridge; neither side vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 spade	?

♠K5 ♥Q7 ♦Q6 ♣AKQJ943
What call do you make?

Answer: Two no trump. Admittedly you have no sure stopper in the red suits, but with seven sure club tricks, a spade trick and stopper, and secondary strength in hearts and diamonds, this two no trump bid is more likely to get you to the right contract than any other call you can select. It also has defensive virtues; it may stop the opponents from getting to a good contract. A mere two or three club bid by you is unconstructive. [Twenty points credit for two no trump; no demerit for two or three clubs; 10 points demerit for three no trump; 15 points demerit for a double; 30 points demerit for four clubs; 40 points demerit for any other call.]

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Double	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the spade queen. Declarer won and immediately took a diamond finesse. The diamond queen held and the next finesse was won in dummy with the 10 spot. Now declarer could count five diamond tricks, two spades, and one club, but since the club ace was almost certainly offside, he would need a heart trick to fulfill his contract. On that analysis he led dummy's heart nine.

Ninety-nine in 100 Easts would automatically duck the nine spot, playing "second hand low," and after such a duck declarer would be safe. If West refused to take his heart ace, declarer could immediately establish a club for the ninth trick; if West accepted the heart ace he could make no return that would do his side any good.

But this particular East was highly alert. He had noted his partner's lead of the spade queen and the further vital fact that the spade 10 still was guarded in dummy. This meant that West would not be able to clear his own spade suit, but that he would require a spade lead thru declarer. The heart king represented East's only chance to get on lead, and there was a reasonable hope that declarer did not have the heart ace. On that shrewd analysis, East boldly put up the king and, when it held, declarer's goose was cooked. East returned a spade and West's spade suit became established before West had lost either his club or his heart control.

Numerology By Evelyn Holmes

Nov. 19, 1941.

Working with your numbers—In the last nine days I have explained the cycle of nine thru which we go every nine years. Of course, you have your own free will and the numbers do not make you do this or that. However, if you work intelligently with the knowledge of what the numbers mean, you get that much more help from the universe. If you try to force things in a two or seven year you will be working against the tide and it will be that much harder to achieve results. If you wait until you have the right year, you make that much more progress. If you can't wait, then you can do the best you can, knowing that you are going to have to use much more insight and intelligent manipulating to get results.

Would you like to know your own personal numbers for each day of the coming year? Follow directions on the coupon below and send for complete calendar with daily, monthly, and yearly guide for 1942. Send 5 cents extra if you want balance of 1941.

Both the ceremony and the reception which follows in the Winnetka home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Shuman, the bride's parents, will be small, since all arrangements were made suddenly when the bridegroom obtained leave from his post with the marines.

Mrs. John J. P. Odell will be her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Helen Shuman is to be maid of honor. Mr. Traylor, who is the son of Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor and the late Mr. Traylor, will have Emmett R. Blake as best man. Mr. Traylor will leave for the west coast on Sunday, and his bride will follow him as soon as he receives orders for his new post.

Mrs. Harvey T. Woodruff will arrive early next week from Hendersonville, N. C., to meet her newest grandchild, the daughter born on Tuesday at the Evanston hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Hunsberger. The baby has been named Julia Woodside—Julia for her aunt, Mrs. Thornton Withers Snead Jr., the former Julia Woodruff, and Woodside because it is a family name in her father's family. The Hunsbergers also have a son, Harvey Woodruff, who is almost 2 years old.

Mrs. Frederick Latham Emeny arrived yesterday from Cleveland, O., to spend Thanksgiving with her sister, Mrs. Frank T. O'Brien, and Mr. O'Brien. Mr. Emeny will join them over the week-end.

Mrs. E. Crane Wilson of Evanston has gone west for a visit with her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Wilson, in their new home in Montecito. Miss Dorothy Wilson just had time to say hello to her grandmother and then she left for Chicago, where she arrived yesterday to spend a few days with her brother, Milton Jr., who is in business here. Miss Wilson will spend the winter in New York.

Barrington Pianist Gives Recital of Beethoven Sonatas

Owen Berger, young Barrington pianist, last night in Kimball hall gave the first of two recitals devoted to the last five sonatas of Beethoven. He played the sonatas in A-flat, opus 100; in C minor, opus 111, and in B-flat, opus 106—the "Hammerklavier." Next Tuesday Mr. Berger will repeat opus 106 and perform opus 101 and opus 109 also.

It is courageous on the part of the young artist to attempt these programs. Only such a Beethoven specialist as Artur Schnabel can do it with any popular success. Yet the sonatas should be heard. Aside from their intrinsic musical value they are of major academic interest. It was noteworthy that several in the audience brought scores along the better to follow the performances.

The final piano sonatas of Beethoven are among the most difficult in piano literature from both the technical and artistic viewpoints. Musical maturity and uncommon digital skill are required to play them. Mr. Berger possesses neither attribute as yet, which is doubly unfortnate as his artistic intentions are so laudable. When his musicianship and ability match the nobility of his musical tastes he will be a pianist to reckon with. R. E.

Second Helpings Spell Fat for the Adolescent Figure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Teenage girls sometimes awaken to the fact that they are starting to grow plump.

No thought has previously been given to the weight inducing sweets and other "fattening" foods. But now, however, these boy-conscious young women become aware that they should try, in some way, to reduce. Unhappily, they are likely to go about it in an unwise way.

They should not diet, in a strict sense. At this age they need nourishing foods, which include starches, sweets, fats, the things that are almost invariably eliminated from reducing diets.

What they can do is to refrain from second helpings. This does not mean the first helping should be extra generous. Potatoes may be eaten, but it would be better to do away with that hunk of butter that melts so deliciously on top of the mashed, baked, or boiled potatoes. Fried potatoes should be avoided. Butter should be used sparingly on bread, too. If two squares of butter and two pieces of bread are the usual eating habit, cut down to one pat of butter and one piece of bread. Be more sparing of cream, sugar, and desserts, and don't eat fried foods.

Need I mention candies and sweets between meals? I think every one knows that the between meal eating habit and the eating of too many sweets is a sure-fire way to add pounds.

Sports in school, basketball, swimming, gymnasium work, dancing, etc., are to be commended. They not only build health, but beauty as well, because they give a sparkle to the eyes and grace and vigor to every girlish movement. Sports will sculpture body lines and do most of the reducing work without dieting strenuously.

ILLINI PLEDGE ZUPPKE FAREWELL VICTORY

FIELD OF 80 NAMED TO BOWL IN ALL-STAR TOURNEY

70 CHOSEN AS STARTERS; ADD 10 ALTERNATES

20 Chicagoans Are Listed.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

A field of the nation's best bowlers, to compete in the All-Star eliminations—which are to open in the Coliseum Dec. 7 and run thru Dec. 14—was named yesterday by the tournament committee. Instead of naming a field of 60, as had been planned originally, the committee agreed that 70 men should bowl and that 10 alternates should be picked. Its decision was arrived at after a study of the entrants showed that nearly every high class bowler in the country was a candidate and that it would be unfair to reduce the total of 143 entrants to less than 70.

It had been decided originally to allot Chicago 10 men, but this city was given 15 in the starting field and five alternates. Detroit was given six men and Cleveland five. Ten men, all winners or runnersup in eliminations conducted by newspapers, were seeded at the start.

Two Squads to Bowl Each Night.

Because of the addition of 10 men to the field, two squads of All-Stars will roll each of the four nights of the preliminaries, Dec. 7 thru Dec. 10, rather than one. These squads will bowl after Ned Day and Lowell Jackson have finished their 10-game assignment leading to the match game championship. Five squads of All-Stars will bowl each afternoon, as originally planned.

In the field named to start the event which is to be sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors Association of America, are such outstanding bowlers as Nelson Burton, Cone Hermann, Sam Garofalo, and Charles O'Donnell of St. Louis; Joe Norris, Johnnie Crimmins, and Ernie Soest of Detroit; Joe Kissoff, Walter Ward, Charlie Lausche, and John Petro of Cleveland, Andy Varipapa and Tony Sparando of New York, and many others. Chicago's representatives were picked from a field of 50 entrants.

Picked from 68 Centers.

In making the selections, the committee sought to make the field as representative geographically as possible—this factor to be considered along with the bowlers' ability. It picked from men entered from 68 cities and towns in 19 states.

Newspaper tournament winners seeded at the start were as follows: Erskine Owens, Omaha, Neb., representing the Omaha World-Herald; Dawes Comins and Bud Tierney, Kansas City, Mo., sent by the Kansas City Star; Harold Badders, Dayton, O., Dayton News entrant; Harold E. Wheeler and Fred Spencer, Indianapolis, representing the Indianapolis News; Martin Caserio, Flint; Al Wenger, Grand Rapids, and Melvin Ralph, Marshall, all sent by the Grand Rapids Press. The Milwaukee Journal's entrant, yet to be named, will be placed in the field.

Remainder of Starting Field.

California—Gene Gagliardi, Los Angeles, and James Toomey, San Francisco.
Washington—Vic Johnson, Tacoma.
Connecticut—Mert Lindsey, Stamford.
Minnesota—Edward Mady, Minneapolis.
Tennessee—Ray Newton, Memphis.
Utah—Joe Barney, Salt Lake City.
Texas—Buddy Bomar, Dallas.
Oklahoma—Meryl Middaugh, Tulsa.
North Dakota—L. O. Kelsven, Minot.
Pennsylvania—Charles J. Butera, Ardmore.
New Jersey—Marty Cassio, Rahway; Edward Botten, Union City; James McMahon, Lodi; William G. Munn, Elizabeth.
New York—Andy Varipapa, Brooklyn; Ray Schultz, Buffalo; Ollie Brandt, Lockport; Tony Sparando, Maspeth, Long Island; William Shaul, Syracuse.
Missouri—Cone Hermann, Nelson Burton, Otto Stein Jr., Charles O'Donnell, and Sam Garofalo, St. Louis.
Wisconsin—Billy Sixty, Charlie Daw, and Mike Malouf, Milwaukee; Connie Schwoegler, Madison.
Ohio—Joe Kissoff, Walter Ward, Charles

What's in It for Me?

I dislike to make a statement like this,
But I fear you'll have to agree,
That the motivation with lots of folks
Is "What is there in it for me?"
Whether they say it openly,
Or just let it run thru the mind,
As a matter of course it's the driving force
With many people, you'll find.

But isn't that rather a selfish game
For any man to play?
For where is the comfort if, come life's night,
All we'll be able to say
Will be, "Well, I surely looked out for myself—
That's all I set out to do."
What a lonely end, just yourself for a friend;
I wouldn't want it, would you?

HAWKS AWAIT BRUINS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks have been enjoying these Indian summer days and nights and not simply because they are named after as swell an Indian as ever scalped a scalp. The cause of Hawk exuberance, of course, is the fact that with almost three weeks of the National league season gone, the lads continue the only undefeated team in the circuit.

But Indian summer is notoriously short and then there's the matter of the world champion Boston Bruins, who will be in Chicago Stadium to play the Hawks tomorrow night. It will be tough to remain undefeated in that kind of going but the Bruins have been whipped this year and the Hawks haven't so it isn't any desperate project.

The Bruins lost only eight games all last season—8 out of 48—but the Hawks were able to beat them in the first meeting of the season. The game was played in Boston and the score was 6 to 5. In their first appearance here last fall the Bostons won, 2 to 0. The teams met eight times during the season, Chicago winning two, tying two which left the champs four triumphs.

Leo Goes to Movies but Not for Fun

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

(Picture on next page.)

Leo High's football team—one of the four elevens seeking to reach Mayor Kelly's game on Nov. 29 have been enjoying movie presentations by Coach Aloysius Langford Cronin for the last two days. These films, obtained last Sunday, reveal the strength, pet plays, and fancy passing tricks of Fenwick, the squad the Lions engage for the Catholic league championship in Soldiers' field Sunday afternoon.

Whitey Cronin.

The Lions also sought to pick out the spots in the Fenwick line thru which they can shake loose Henry [Babe] Baranowski, the one man gang who holds the Chicago district individual scoring lead with 111 points. The midget quarter back was checked by De La Salle last Sunday, but Lion followers contend he was resting up and is ready to celebrate his biggest day of the season against Fenwick.

Rival Coaches Are Just a Couple of Old Pals.

There is a quick exchange of pleasantries when Cronin and Tony Lawless, Fenwick's coach, who formerly were teammates at Loyola university, get together. The Lions have beaten Fenwick on two previous occasions, 27 to 0, in 1936, and 20 to 0 last season, but Lawless immediately refreshes Cronin's memory regarding the Lions' failure to score a point in four appearances in the All-City game. Lawless, altho his squad has lost the services of two ball carriers, hopes to apply the whitewash brush himself Sunday.

The Fenwick pictures in Cronin's possession also reveal the Lions do not have a monopoly on brilliant half pint ball toters. The Oak Park squad's winning touchdown against St. Ignatius was scored by Angelo Provenzano, who is exactly the same size as Baranowski. Angelo is a hard runner and Fenwick's followers believe he will win the battle of the midgets. Provenzano played against St. Ignatius despite a death in the family, a brother, Mike, having been buried last Monday.

Speed Dominates Back Fields of Both Tilden and Fenger.

Fleet backs on the Tilden Tech and Fenger rosters indicate the Public School league championship game Saturday afternoon will be a wide open affair. Fenger, which had scored 258 points until it met Senn last Saturday, failed to produce its high scoring methods, but Coach Chuck Palmer and the communities of Roseland and Pullman say it was just a game always found in the system of a good eleven during a long campaign. There had to be a letdown and it arrived at the time of the Senn contest, they point out.

The happiest man behind the scenes of Chicago's week-end championship engagements was Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel and secretary of Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit fund, sponsor of the All-City game. Hodes yesterday reported that 65,000 tickets have been sold, and if the weather man produces a good afternoon more than 100,000 are expected to see the game. Remaining seats are available in the benefit fund offices, 33 North La Salle street, and in all Catholic and Public high schools.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER SLATE A LENGTHY ONE

Big 9 Stars Seek Tribune Silver Football.

Hall of Fame

1940—Tom Harmon, Michigan.
1939—Nile Kinnick, Iowa.
1938—Howard Weiss, Wisconsin.
1937—Corby Davis, Indiana.
1936—Vernon Huffmann, Indiana.
1935—Jay Berwanger, Chicago.
1934—Pug Lund, Minnesota.
1933—Joe Laws, Iowa.
1932—Harry Newman, Michigan.
1931—Clarence Munn, Minnesota.
1930—Wesley Fesler, Ohio State.
1929—Bill Glassgow, Iowa.
1928—Chuck Bennett, Indiana.
1927—Ken Rouse, Chicago.
1926—Benny Friedman, Michigan.
1925—Tim Lowry, Northwestern.
1924—Red Grange, Illinois.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Who are the most valuable football players in the Western conference? And when these nine young men are chosen by their teammates at the conclusion of the campaign Saturday, which one will be named the most valuable player to his team in the Big Nine?

Until 1930 all conference football players were eligible in the voting to name the most valuable player in the Big Nine. The winner annually receives a silver football, actual size, which is presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Since 1930, however, the list of eligibles for the final award is limited to one nominee from each university squad.

More Stars This Year.

This campaign has a larger number of stellar players than last year or those seasons immediately preceding. Most fans last year predicted that Tom Harmon of Michigan would be the most valuable player in the conference. The Wolverine squad, of course, made Harmon eligible by voting him the most valuable player to the 1940 Michigan team.

These nine young men will receive miniature white gold footballs. Each football will bear the monogram of the university and will be engraved to indicate that the winner has been elected the most valuable player by his own teammates.

The winner of the huge silver football, which was first awarded Harold [Red] Grange of Illinois, will be determined by the ballots of the nine Western conference football coaches, nine veteran conference football officials, Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Big Nine; Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, and the writer.

Chosen by Own Mates.

These nine players are the All-Star conference team. The award, as many of the boys have pointed out, is the highest of all, since it comes from appreciation of ability by the players who know just how great a contribution to team success each makes. The nine players also can all be back field men, linemen, or distributed in any way without regard to individual positions.

Harmon won The Tribune trophy last year, but he also had been named Michigan's most valuable player in 1939, when Nile Kinnick of Iowa received the prize. Last fall Paul Hiemenz, Northwestern center, was second in the final voting. Other most valuable players were: George Bernhardt, Illinois full back; Dwight Gahm, Indiana center; Mike Enich, Iowa tackle; Bob Paffrath, Minnesota quarter back; Claude White, Ohio State center; Dave Rankin, Purdue end, and George Paskvan, Wisconsin full back.

There is no restriction on year of competition. A sophomore, if nominated by his teammates, will have as much of a chance to gain the final award as a junior or senior.

It's His Job Now

Doug Mills, who yesterday was appointed permanent athletic director at the University of Illinois. He has been acting director since last August.

Doug Mills Named Illini Athletic Head

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The board of trustees of the University of Illinois yesterday named Doug Mills permanent athletic director. The appointment will go into effect on Sept. 1, 1942, at the conclusion of the year's leave of absence of the present director, Wendell Wilson. This action was taken at a meeting of the trustees in the Chicago Illini Union building.

Mills has been acting athletic director since Aug. 5, following the upheaval which resulted in the shelving of Wilson. In addition, Mills is at present head basketball coach, an assistant football coach, and an instructor in the college of physical education. In giving Mills the directorship, the board made him an assistant professor of physical education, agreed that he retain his basketball position at least for the time being, but recommended that he withdraw from his football post.

Establish New Régime.

This cleared the way for the establishing of an entirely new football régime following the resignation of Bob Zuppke as head coach. Zuppke's resignation was announced yesterday in a Chicago Tribune copyright story.

The appointment of Mills as athletic director was exactly in line with wishes which Zuppke had expressed. He had stated that he wished to retire as soon as he knew that the athletic affairs of the university were permanently in the hands of some one in whom he had confidence. He had been a stanch backer of Mills during the discussions which have been going on ever since it became apparent that the directorship was open.

Seen as Timely Move.

Alumni yesterday expressed the opinion that the appointment was particularly timely because it gives Mills a free hand in fulfilling his share of the search for Zuppke's successor. As acting director, with the possibility of early removal, his position would have been difficult and the athletic affairs of the university would have remained in a much more unstable condition. The appointment also squelched rumors that Mills might be among the candidates for the coaching job.

In the course of the trustees meeting, Arthur C. Willard, president of the university, read a telegram which he had received from Harold Pogue of Decatur, one of Zuppke's close friends who formerly was president of the board of trustees. The telegram read:

"Zuppke has authorized and requested me to advise you that he is resigning immediately following the Northwestern game Saturday afternoon."

Seeks Formal Notification.

Dr. Willard said that this was the only notification of the resignation which he had received. He suggested that the board take no action until the resignation comes thru more formal channels.

James M. Cleary, president of the board of trustees, said that Pogue had

OUT TO DEFEAT WILDCATS FOR RETIRING COACH

Campus Joins in Paying Tribute.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 18 [Special].—From the president emeritus to the lowliest reserve on the football team, the University of Illinois paid tribute today to Bob Zuppke who resigned as football coach last night.

Dr. David Kinley, former president of the university, under whom Zuppke served for many years, recalled many glorious eras in the régime of the departing coach.

"Win for Zup" will be the slogan of the football team against Northwestern in Evanston Saturday when the veteran coach directs the Illini for the last time.

They Want to Win for Him.

Liz Astroth, senior quarter back, who probably will be acting captain against the Wildcats, said: "We want to win the game for him."

Other comment by the players included:

Jimmy Smith, junior half back: "I hate to see him go. I want to win for him Saturday."

Dr. David Kinley, president emeritus:

"During my term as president of the university, the only period of which I can speak from some personal knowledge, Mr. Zuppke was at the height of his career. His skill in devising new plays, his intuitive anticipation of opponents' plays, and his ability to meet them, won the admiration of us all, and put him in the forefront of the football coaches of the country. His successes thru those years are a bright memory in the athletic records of the university, and long will be gratefully remembered, not only by his associate coaches and the students who were his pupils, but by all who believe in clean play. He adhered to the standards set up thru the years by his friend and associate, George Huff, and kept Illinois football untouched by the taint of semi-professionalism. For all of this he deserves great credit."

Made Game More Interesting.

"No coach in the United States knows more football or has done more for the game than Bob Zuppke. One of his great contributions has been to make the game more interesting. His mind has always gone past spinners and mouse traps.

"Many times with a weaker team, he has been obliged to take the other team by surprise, and this has meant a dashing game rather than one founded on mere power.

"He has had an uncanny ability to construct methods of stopping attacks, such as his defense against Dr. Williams' Minnesota shift and against Pennsylvania's famous "hidden ball" in 1926. That time he had the tackles and ends converge and the guards hit the quarter back every time.

"I have been one of Zup's assistants since 1913 and respect him as a coach and like him as a man."

Obligation Will Never Be Forgotten.

Fred Turner, dean of men:

"Mr. Zuppke's resignation upholds and carries on the tradition of the Illini code of sportsmanship formulated by George Huff. His departure marks the end of one of the great old time athletic coaching combinations. The obligation of the university and its alumni to Mr. Zuppke will never be forgotten."

"The regisnation of Coach Zuppke brings to a close the régime of the most picturesque figure in American athletics today. There haven't been many dull moments in his career or in the games his teams have played thru the three decades he has been here. I can say this with first hand knowledge, for I began work here the same year he did.

Friends Knew Where They Stood.

"Zup has never been in the habit of thinking one thing and saying something else. His friends have always known where they stood. He might have pussy-footed more and been better off, but he wouldn't have been Zuppke."

Douglas R. Mills, director of athletics:

"I know that Bob Zuppke has done what he thinks is best for the University of Illinois. This unselfish act should cement all factions into one harmonious group.

"I have had close association with him as a player and as a coach. He is honest, fearless, and possesses abilities I never have found in any other man. These qualities make him respected from coast to coast.

"I feel very close to Zup, and know that the future will find him backing Illinois just as hard as if he were still coaching."

Results of PGA Survey Praised by Dudley.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Ed Dudley, newly elected president of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, is the first to put his approval on the survey made by Joe Novak of Los Angeles, chairman of the PGA teaching committee, during the organization's national tournament in Denver last summer. Dudley is high in his praise of the plan, by which the previous administration, under President Tom Walsh, set out to determine a norm on which to rate golfers in everyday teaching.

When Novak, Tom Walsh, Willie Maguire, Frank Sprogell, and Ed Newkirk began their experimental efforts during the course of the National PGA event last July in Denver, it was suspected that they were attempting to standardize methods of teaching golf for every man on the pro side. Novak's report makes it plain that such was not their intention in the questionnaires they submitted to top flight competitors in the big show. The aim was to establish a mean, a common denominator by which teaching pros could diagnose the ailments of their pupils, on the basis of what leading pros had found successful cures in their own cases.

Most Clubs Too Heavy.

The grips, stances, swings, and clubs of all PGA tournament entrants were checked at Denver, with the following findings:

1. The average competitor is 29 years old.
2. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall.
3. He weighs 170 pounds.

The average length of the driver used was 43 inches, and the average weight 13¾ ounces. This is slightly heavier than average, and on this score, Novak's report states, it might be said that golfers, as a rule, are inclined to use heavy clubs. The weight of a heavy club seems to give [to men anyway] a feeling of power, but, as a rule, a heavy club, except in the case of a person playing every day, tends to slow one's downswing, so that it will decrease rather than increase power. The heavy club, furthermore, is harder to keep in position.

Out of the field of 97 players in the PGA, 90 used the overlapping grip and 7 the interlocking. In the stance quiz, 70 employed the square stance, 14 the closed, and 13 the open. In the stance department, it was noted there was a definite tendency toward a narrow, rather than a wide, position, apparently directed at better pivoting.

Three Basic Points.

Novak's questioning of each of the players revealed three basic points of swinging style. Three points was considered excellent. The trio involved, first, sense of balance thruout the swing, the rating being given on footwork; secondly, a rating on the pivot or body motion, originating on the movement and swing of the club in relation to freedom, power, and fullness, and thirdly, position and control of the club thruout the swing, a test made on the players' hand [not wrist] action.

Four distinct classes of golfers were discovered in Denver, all by this method of reckoning. There was class AAA, who clicked on all three points of balance, pivot and club control. There was a group close to those top grade swingers, but certain irregularities in their footwork and pivoting destroyed the smoothness of the swing. Players with an even greater deficiency in balance were put in class A, and weakness in footwork sent others into B, the fourth class.

	AAA.	AA.	A.	B.	Total.
No. of players	55	5	27	10	97
Percentage in each class qualifying	73	80	59	40	64
Survivors after first round	21	2	6	3	32
After second round	9	1	4	2	16
After third round	5	1	2	0	8
After fourth round	4	0	0	0	4
After fifth round	2	0	0	0	2
After sixth round	1	0	0	0	1

Highlights in the career of Bob Zuppke will be outlined tonight at 6:15 p. m. on W-G-N when Red Grange, Zuppke's most famous pupil, tells Bob Elson some behind the news stories of the Illinois football coach, who will retire Saturday after 29 years as Illini head coach.

Trojan Squad of 35 Leaves to Meet Irish

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18 [Special].—Thirty-five University of Southern California football players, reported to be in better physical condition than they have been all season, boarded a special train tonight headed for Chicago and South Bend, where they will play Notre Dame Saturday.

Coach Sam Barry gave the squad a final hard workout this afternoon before departure, going over new offensive formations in a semiscrimmage session. Injuries, which have beset the Trojans several times this year, were at a minimum, with only Bill Musick, sophomore back field star, being left at home. He has been out most of the season with a bad knee.

Players making the trip:

ENDS—Harry Adleman, Joe Davis, Doug Essick, Ralph Heywood, Bob Jones, Russ Nash.

GUARDS—Tom Chantiles, Jim Crowther, John Pranevicius, Bill Seixas, Hugh Sargent, Don Thomas, Norm Verry.

HALF BACKS—Leo Bledsoe, Mel Bleeker, Dick Browning, Bob Robertson, Paul Taylor.

FULL BACKS—Mickey Anderson, Dick Manning, Pete MacPhail.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 18 [Special].—A light workout for all hands was in order today as Notre Dame continued preparations for Saturday's Southern California game.

Coach Bill Cerney of the freshman squad, who scouted the Trojans against Stanford, reported that despite their 13 to 0 defeat the Los Angeles team is well equipped with material. He reminded Head Coach Frank Leahy, whose team will be bidding for an undefeated record in Saturday's game here before 56,000 fans, that Southern California teams of recent years have shown a knack for getting organized for the Notre Dame games, no matter what the previous record had shown.

Leahy also had reason to think about the first year coach jinx that followed his predecessor, Elmer Layden, in the latter's seven years. Layden's teams lost only 13 games, five of them to coaches in their debut season. Sam Barry, successor to the late Howard Jones, is, like Leahy, in his first season.

ROWLAND WILL OPERATE ANGELS' CLUB FOR CUBS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs yesterday made the formal moves necessary to acquire direct control of a class AA farm, an item previously missing from their layout.

Announcement was made by James Gallagher, general manager, that the Chicago club would take over the Los Angeles Pacific Coast league franchise and that the affairs of the latter would be operated by Clarence Rowland, a Cub scout and reconnaisance man since 1931.

The official announcement failed to reveal any kind of a title for Rowland, but he may be permitted to take his pick of whatever is available after the legal features of the deal have been disposed of.

Former Sox Manager.

Rowland who has had extensive experiences both in the majors and minors, first came into prominence when appointed manager of the White Sox by the late Charles A. Comiskey in 1915. Rowland served in this job for four seasons, winning the world series from the Giants in 1917. He umpired in the American league from 1923 to 1927. He will leave later in the week to take up his new duties.

Majors to Meet Here.

Following a poll of the major league owners, announcement was made yesterday that the majority had readily agreed to a transfer of the annual meetings from New York to Chicago.

The leagues will meet separately in the Palmer House Dec. 9 and 10. The annual joint session at which the commissioner presides probably will be held the next day.

TROJANS VS. CONDORS.

The Austin Trojans and the Condors A. C. will meet tomorrow afternoon in a semipro football game in Austin Bears stadium, Harlem and North avenues.

ILLINI GAME IS FAREWELL FOR 20 WILDCAT HANDS

De Correvont and Bauman Lead Regulars' Exodus.

The game between Northwestern and Illinois Saturday in Dyche stadium will mark the final appearance of 20 Wildcat seniors who constitute one of the greatest classes in the school's history. Fifteen ranked as regulars and their exodus will leave many apertures in the Willdcat battle front.

Bill De Correvont, who turned in one of his greatest ball carrying performances against Notre Dame last Saturday, heads up the large group of backs who bow out of college competition Saturday. The others are Capt. Tuffy Chambers, Ike Kepford, and Jim Furlong, half backs; Don Clawson and George Benson, fullbacks, and Don Kruger, Dick Erdlitz, and Sonny Skor, quarter backs. Alf Bauman, one of the greatest tackles in Northwestern history, will play his last game Saturday.

Bauman's Loss a Blow.

Bauman's loss will be a severe blow to the Wildcats. Leon Cook, regular right tackle until his injury in the Indiana game, is the other senior outgoing tackle.

Other regular linemen who will graduate in June are Don Johnson and Gene Mundy, centers; George Zorich, Bus Heagy, and Paul Kiefer, guards. Reserve forwards who will be lost are Joe Cook, guard, and Art Wandtke, Oliver Durham, and Duane Clemons, ends.

EXPECT 50,000 AT MINNESOTA.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 18 [Special].—Because the Minnesota football team is in its best physical shape since the Michigan game, local interest turned to tickets and the army service of Bob Sweiger, star right half back, today.

With a 50,000 crowd anticipated for the Wisconsin battle, one of the largest crowds in the series, a new record will be established. This means an aggregate of more than 421,000 will have seen Minnesota this year.

Sweiger is subject to army call Monday, which makes the Gophers lucky by just two days.

BADGERS DRILL ON DEFENSE.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18 [Special].—Anxious to guard against possible injuries for the final game of the season, Coach Harry Stuhldreher ordered no scrimmage for the Badgers today, and sent them thru a dummy defensive drill against Minnesota's running and pass plays.

Stuhldreher announced he will again alternate Dick Thornally and Len Calligaro at the center position, with the latter taking over on defense. No other shifts are contemplated in the starting lineup.

Aware of the Gophers' stubborn defense against running plays, the Badgers probably will take to the air early in Saturday's game, with Len [Bud] Seelinger and Frank Riewer likely to do most of the pitching.

MISS INDIANA "CREMATED."

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 18 [Special].—In the final football pep session of the year tonight, Purdue's student body turned out en masse for the traditional "cremation" of "Miss Indiana" in a hilarious ceremony.

A huge bonfire served as the funeral pyre for the tattered remains which were rescued yesterday morning from Indiana's cross-country ghouls, who had made a futile attempt at abduction in an effort to prevent the annual ceremony.

Wilson Beats Lemos for NBA Featherweight Title

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18 (AP).—Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson won the National Boxing association featherweight title tonight by scoring a 12 round decision over Richie Lemos in Lemos' first title defense.

MICHIGAN GRIMLY PREPARING FOR OHIO STATE GAME

Cling to Slight Hope of Tying for Title.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 18 [Special].—Saturday's Western conference windup game with Ohio State, their traditional rivals, and the possibility of gaining a tie for the title, today put Michigan's Wolverines in a grim mood.

Michigan's slim hope for a share of the conference title is based on a victory over Ohio State and an upset triumph on the same afternoon by Wisconsin over Minnesota.

The Michigan coaches told the players that Ohio State will be in a vengeful mood after being beaten for three consecutive years in this game. Coach Fritz Crisler fears a general lassitude by his varsity, which, when game time comes around, will have played only 35 minutes in the last three weeks. Since the Illinois game, the Wolverines have had an open date and last Saturday against Columbia the varsity turned the game over to the reserves early in the first half.

OHIO WORKS UNDER LIGHTS.

Columbus, O., Nov. 18 (AP).—Ohio State's Buckeyes finished one of the season's longest practice sessions under the stadium lights tonight as they prepared for Saturday's clash with Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Coach Paul Brown drilled players almost an hour on fundamental blocking and tackling, and worked them that long again on pass offense and defense, then wound up with a light scrimmage.

They didn't even take time out to look at the movies of last Saturday's 12 to 7 victory over Illinois, but Brown said that would come later.

IAC BOXERS BEAT ASHLAND TEAM IN LEAGUE BOUTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

The Illinois Athletic club team last night pushed the Ashland A. C. boxers out of a four way tie for first place by beating them, 5 to 3, in a Chicagoland Amateur Boxing league match before a cheering crowd in the IAC gymnasium.

Stanley Berg, 16 year old bantamweight of the IAC, opened with a three round victory over Bud Davis, but this edge was shortlived when the Ashland representatives registered three successive triumphs. These conquests were scored by Lou Davis, featherweight; Joe Manjarrez, welterweight, and Al Mokry, walterweight.

Cravens Brothers Win.

The IAC evened the score on victories by Gene Cravens, light heavyweight, and Arnold Winters, heavyweight. Bill Cravens, middleweight brother of Gene, then clinched a tie by hammering out a decision over Leslie Pyburn. A forfeit scored by Bill Powers, middleweight, over Frank Sbarbaro, gave the IAC its victory margin.

In the previous match between the rivals, Ashland won, 7 to 1. The CYO Greens, Milwaukee, and the CYO Whites are tied for the league lead.

talked with him by phone Monday night and had stated that the formal resignation would be sent to the proper officials.

"Zuppke's resignation was purely on his own initiative," Cleary continued. "Neither I nor any other member of the board had discussed the matter with him."

Chester R. Davis, chairman of the trustees' committee on athletics, reiterated Cleary's statement that no pressure of any kind had been brought to bear.

Calls It Graceful Exit.

"If it had to come, I'm glad it came this way," Davis said. "There's no unpleasant interchange of personalities and no internal strife to complicate the situation. I'm sure that Zuppke had the best interests of the university at heart. He wanted to finish out this season because he thought it would be unfair to drop such a tough schedule into the lap of a new man. Many will be sorry to see him go, others won't. Personally, I think he's a great Dutchman."

Asked about the process of selecting a new coach, Davis replied:

"We'll take our time and canvass the entire field. Whoever we get will be one who can be depended upon to preserve the Illinois spirit. We're not going to go in for any professionalism."

Speculate on Pension.

There was some speculation as to what Zuppke's compensation will be following his retirement after 29 years of service. When there was talk of his withdrawal in 1938 it was suggested he should receive a pension of $6,500 a year until the age of 65, after which he would get $4,000. He is now 62. Board members yesterday refused to comment on the probable pension, but it is believed the figure will be in the neighborhood of $4,000.

Mills, whose salary is now $6,000 a year, will get $7,500 when he takes over his new position. Of this total, $6,000 will come from the athletic association funds and $1,500 from the university.

Mills Only 33 Years Old.

Mills, who is now 33 years old, was graduated from Illinois with a bachelor of science degree in 1930. During his undergraduate years he was a varsity football and basketball player. As a senior he was captain of the basketball team.

Following his graduation, Mills became a teacher of physical education and an athletic coach at Joliet High school, where he served from 1930 to 1935. He joined the Illinois staff in September, 1935, as head basketball coach, assistant football coach and instructor in physical education.

Expect Fall Dog Show Entries to Set New Record

BY BOB BECKER.

Chicago's annual fall dog show, the Western Specialty Clubs association event, will attract more than 1,300 purebred show dogs to the Coliseum Nov. 29 and 30, according to A. F. Kramer, president of the specialty clubs organization. Last fall, 1,234 dogs competed to make the show one of the largest specialty events in the country. On the basis of early entries officers believe the record will be broken this year.

The organization of Chicago's fall show is one of the most unusual in the dog world. Most dog shows are open to all breeds, but only 24 breeds may compete in the annual specialty show. The 24 breed clubs, such as the Dobermann Pinscher Club of America, the Irish Terrier Club of Chicago, and 22 others, each hold their annual show during the specialty event. The result is that 24 shows, each for one breed only, are staged in one building at the same time.

The 24 breeds to be exhibited are the following: English setter, Irish setter, cocker spaniel, English springer spaniel, dachshund, boxer, collie, Dobermann pinscher, German shepherd, Great Dane, bullterrier, foxterrier, Irish terrier, standard schnauzer, Scottish terrier, Sealyham terrier, Chihuahua, Pekingese, Pomeranian, Boston terrier, bulldog, Chow chow, poodle, and schipperke.

Children's handling classes will be sponsored by THE TRIBUNE again this year, with handsome trophies and special pins to be given to 40 youngsters. Boys and girls under 16 years of age are eligible for the event. There will be no entry fee, but all entrants must handle dogs regularly entered in one of the competitive breed classes or for exhibition. Mrs. Madelin Roessler, Winnetka, and Thomas M. Halpin, Chicago, well known dog exhibitors, will judge the children's event.

They'll Sail on Many a Court, Too

George Halas and Paddy Driscoll sparked a sailor football team into the Rose Bowl more than 20 years ago—but since then no athletic group representing Great Lakes Naval Training station has achieved more than passing local mention.

But Lieut. J. Russell Cook, athletic officer, believes the cycle has been completed. He is confident that the cobwebs of athletic obscurity, spun over two decades, will be brushed away by the basketball team he has assembled at Great Lakes this season.

Certainly this confidence on Lieut. Cook's part would appear to rest upon a solid foundation, for Great Lakes has been placed on this winter's schedule by eight Big Ten teams as well as by most teams in the Missouri Valley conference.

An All-Star Team.

Conservatively speaking, about 9 out of 10 teams without previous records of any kind would be told: "Go out and get yourself a reputation." Great Lakes is the 10th team, however, because its reputation has already been collectively established by the rangy young men who will represent the station on the basketball courts.

They include Dick Klein, former Northwestern star who was second in Big Ten scoring in 1939-1940; Jim Currie, another former Northwestern player; Forrest Anderson, who held forth for Stanford; Ernie Andres and Bill Menke, out of Indiana; Bob White of Dartmouth, George Rung and Jim Van Orsdel, both of whom played at Miami [O.]; Frank Baumholtz of Ohio, Bob Callhan of Detroit, and Johnny Lobsiger of Missouri.

Most college coaches in the country would consider this a dream squad. Still, there are drawbacks. Lieut. Cook, who doubles as basketball coach along with his other tasks, has bulled the training station aspirin market trying to figure out a starting lineup against Wisconsin State Teachers when the Milwaukee quintet provides Great Lakes with its first test one week from tonight.

Hard to Choose.

"You can't choose between any of them," he moaned. "I never saw any group of players on one team so evenly matched in the finer points of basketball play. I don't even have the fundamental point of height with which to select a center and build around him."

The team has been practicing for only 11 days, but already is developing into a smooth, high powered machine with scoring punch and defensive strength.

Pa McAfee Visits George; It's 8 to Go!

BY EDWARD PRELL.

It took C. P. McAfee much longer to tell this than to set it down, but anyway, step right up and meet his other eight boys [the one you know is George, the Chicago Bears' touchdown kid]:

Dr. Paul McAfee of Portsmouth, at 46 eldest of the brothers; Ensign Clelland McAfee, an instructor in the air corps at Pensacola, Fla.; Shannon McAfee, with the Norfolk and Western railroad in Portsmouth, O.; Jack McAfee, at 20 the baby of the family; Wes McAfee, with the Philadelphia Eagles pro eleven; John McAfee, former Ohio State half back, now coach and teacher at Youngstown, O., South High school; Billy McAfee, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Russell, Ky.; Elbert McAfee, manager of a store in Tampa, Fla.

The elder McAfee has just concluded a visit with George. "When he starts making the rounds to visit his kids he has to take a year off," says Andy Lotshaw, the Bears' trainer. And the boys have three sisters, too.

The Cardinals last night asked waivers on Lou Zontini, blocking back. It was explained that Zontini, in his second professional season, couldn't get started properly. Last year he kicked 10 consecutive points after touchdowns, but unfortunately lost the touch.

Luke Johnsos, end coach of the Chicago Bears, kept the several hundred fans at yesterday's Pro Huddle in the La Salle hotel amused with his remarks following his appearance as commentator on the film of Sunday's game with the Redskins. In explaining how he escaped with his health after several seasons with the Bears, Luke said: "I told George Halas I didn't mind it if the other players ran inside or outside me, but when they started running over me to give me the boot."

The Bears will go back to work this morning after two days off. One of their problems this week will be on pass defense. They've been soft on aerial thrusts by the Packers, Rams, and Redskins—but then each of those teams had fair pitchers in Cecil Isbell, Parker Hall, and Sammy Baugh.

RALLY ATTEMPT IN STOCKS MAKES LITTLE HEADWAY

Bogs Down in Welter of War and Strike News.

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).]—The stock market made stabs at recovery today but continued adverse news on labor and international developments rendered most ineffective.

The list got off to a ragged start, hardened after midday, then slipped again at the close. Losses of fractions to a point or so outnumbered gains by a wide margin.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .1 of a point at 39.5. Tax selling persisted thruout and helped put the day's turnover to 678,800 shares compared with 628,210 Monday.

Coal Strike Dampens Ardor.

Wall street was unable to work up much buying steam as the coal strike continued to dampen speculative spirits and Japanese representatives talked lengthily with Secretary of State Cordell Hull without announced results. Offerings, however, remained of the timid variety as thought was given to the possibility of legislation curbing walk-outs in arms industries.

The business scene was bright in spots, especially in the matter of dividends and earnings statements, and seemingly inspired bidding for specialized stocks. On the other hand, the impact of growing taxes on profits of most companies, and the idea of a huge tax bill next year, served as a restraining influence even for favorites.

CHICAGO TREND DOWN.

A continuance of selling, part of it attributed to year-end sales to establish losses for income tax purposes, kept prices in check on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Of the 117 issues making up the day's volume of 36,000 shares, 41 advanced, 47 declined, and 29 closed unchanged.

Commonwealth Edison, depressed lately, returned to its position as volume leader and retrieved ⅛ point of its recent losses to close at 21⅝ after a turnover of 3,100 shares. Kellogg Switchboard, up ½ point to 9, and Interlake Iron, which rose ¼ to 7, were other active issues which countered the trend.

ASKS TO OPERATE IN AIR FREIGHT FIELD DIRECTLY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—The Universal Air Freight corporation applied to the Civil Aeronautics board today for authority to operate as a nation-wide air carrier of freight.

A Delaware corporation, with offices in New York, Universal Air Freight is a subsidiary of the United States Freight company, which owns several freight consolidating and forwarding companies.

Universal Air Freight has operated as a forwarding company thru the Railway Express agency. Its application is for permission to enter into direct agreements with existing air lines.

If permitted to enter into contracts with the air lines, the company said, it felt its operations could be conducted more economically and at lower rates to the public.

Five Petroleum Marketing Chiefs Called to Meeting

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Chairmen of the five petroleum industry regional marketing committees were called today by Dr. John W. Frey, director of marketing in the petroleum coördination office, to confer here Monday and Tuesday on oil marketing problems relating to the armament effort. Those invited include B. L. Majewski, vice president, Deep Rock Oil company, Chicago.

E. E. BROWN HITS FILING PLAN FOR PRIVATE ISSUES

Calls It a Bar to Free Flow of Capital.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Edward E. Brown, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, said today a proposal to make securities sold privately subject to registration under the securities laws would impair the free flow of capital by preventing a flexible, speedy, and economical method of issue flotation.

Edward E. Brown.

He told the house Interstate Commerce committee that such an amendment to the law, sponsored by the securities trade, would only add to existing regulation by the federal and state governments.

Brown, who is also president of the advisory council of the federal reserve system, said his own bank had developed its own term loans business—which would be affected by the pending amendment—which totaled $350,000,000. About $200,000,000 of that amount has been paid and none of the remainder has maturities over five years.

Depositors Amply Protected.

Brown said that the amendment would not "further the purpose of the act" and would introduce "by indirection the theory that depositors [of banks] and policy holders [in insurance companies] require and should be given the protection of the SEC. Depositors are amply protected by state and federal laws."

He expressed the opinion, too, that banking should be regulated, not by the securities commission, but by agencies "whose main objective is banking regulation and control."

Earlier, A. L. M. Wiggins, American Bankers' association official, said the industry's amendment would be unwise and actually was designed to "divert into the hands of investment dealers and underwriters" part of the present flow of funds now obtained from banks and other institutional buyers.

Service Best in History.

Wiggins also said that existing bank regulations were sufficient.

"I believe we will agree that the commercial banking system today is functioning with the highest degree of service to the economy of this nation and to government in the history of banking," he said. "To slow up or divert or hamper the servicing of sound credit needs of business and industry by commercial banks thru legislation requiring unnecessary registration of its investments, in our opinion, would be an unwise public policy."

DANIELS HOPES FOR MEXICAN OIL LAND AGREEMENT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Josephus Daniels, retiring ambassador to Mexico, brought to President Roosevelt today a personal message from President Manuel Avila Camacho of Mexico, and told reporters later that the outlook was improved for a settlement of the Mexican oil controversy.

Daniels did not disclose the context of Camacho's note. He did say, however, that any settlement would be "just" to American oil companies.

Reports from Mexico City have indicated both Mexico and the United States are making a concerted attempt to reach a friendly solution of the problem created March 18, 1938, when about 500 million dollars' worth of oil properties worked by foreign companies were seized by the Mexican government on a promise of payment at some future date.

SIX OF CARNEGIE BLAST FURNACES MAY BE BANKED

Banking of six blast furnaces by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, may become necessary in the next 48 hours as a result of the coal strike, officials of the company announced yesterday.

The plants where the operations may be curtailed were not named, but it was expected that the company's works at South Chicago and Gary would be affected.

The shutdown would reduce the company's steel ingot production rate by 10 per cent, it was said.

Price Bill Delayed Again; Action on Changes Seen

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—The house rules committee concluded a second hearing on the price control bill today without deciding when and how the measure would be taken up by the house itself. This lent strength to the belief that the delay may be for the purpose of permitting the administration to press for changes it favors before the bill is given right of way on the floor.

Restaurant Sales Gain for 30th Month in Row

Restaurants increased their sales in October 10 per cent over 1940, the National Restaurant association announced yesterday. This was the 30th consecutive month the industry has reported a gain in volume of business over a year earlier.

Imports of Dairy Products Continue to Rise in September

Dairy products from foreign countries have been flowing into the United States in record quantities recently as high prices resulting from lend-lease program expenditures opened the way for an invasion of domestic markets, the foreign trade report of the department of agriculture for September disclosed yesterday.

While the United States has been giving vast quantities of cheese, milk, and eggs to England, it has stepped up its imports of butter, eggs, and cheese from Argentina, Brazil, and other South American countries. Imports of live poultry for September and the first nine months of 1941 also were larger, and while the source of supply is not given, Canada in years past has been the biggest shipper to this country.

Cheese Exports a Record.

The full impact on foreign trade of lend-lease shipments to England was disclosed by the department's report that:

1. Cheese exports for September were the largest for the month on record.
2. Shipments of condensed milk in September were the largest in 20 years.
3. Exports of evaporated milk set a new September record.
4. Shipments of eggs in the shell set a new record since 1930 but the total exports were exceeded by the ever increasing imports.

Imports Depress Prices.

Shipments of eggs in the shell, the greater part of which went to England according to wholesale dealers, totaled 1,106,286 dozen in September, compared with 227,094 dozen a year earlier. Imports jumped to 2,291,807 dozen from 18,865 in September, 1940.

The arrival of 471,000 dozens of Argentine eggs, 37,200 dozens of Brazilian eggs, and 378,560 pounds of Argentine butter was expected late yesterday in New York. This had a depressing effect on both wholesale and futures prices in Chicago altho farm run fresh eggs advanced a cent to 37 cents a dozen.

Butter futures were largely at the mercy of sellers with net losses ranging above ½ cent a pound, the November delivery closing at 33.55 cents. Wholesale prices dropped ¼ to 1 cent. Egg futures finished 1/5 to 2/5 cent lower with Novembers at 32.90.

U. S. Nears End of Pullman Co. Anti-Trust Suit

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—The government virtually completed its anti-trust case against the Pullman company today after calling only a handful of the 48 top flight financiers and railroad executives it had subpenaed.

Two prominent financiers, George Whitney, partner in J. P. Morgan and company, and Henry B. Sturgis, president of the First National Bank of New York, were on the stand just before the trial was recessed until March 2 to give the defense time to prepare its case. Whitney and Sturgis both are Pullman directors.

Records Called For.

Fowler Hamilton, prosecuting the government's case, said all those subpenaed had been directed to produce records of certain transactions and all except Whitney and Sturgis had given satisfactory proof that the records sought were not available.

Whitney read a telegram sent in 1936 by Hale Holden Jr., another Pullman director. In it Holden said Whitney was "concerned" lest the New York Central railroad buy new sleepers from the Budd Manufacturing company of Philadelphia instead of Pullman. Whitney testified:

"That didn't quite express my feelings. I feared that Frederick E. Williamson, president of New York Central, had not got thru his head the fact that Pullman also was manufacturing lightweight sleepers.

Says Pullman Got Order.

"As a director of Pullman I wanted to be sure he got both sides of the story. Naturally it was Williamson's duty to investigate all manufacturing possibilities and achieve what economies he could. New York Central eventually bought Pullman equipment."

The government contends that Pullman and its affiliates can compel most of the nation's railroads to buy its sleeping and dining room cars under threat of withholding porter and other personal services.

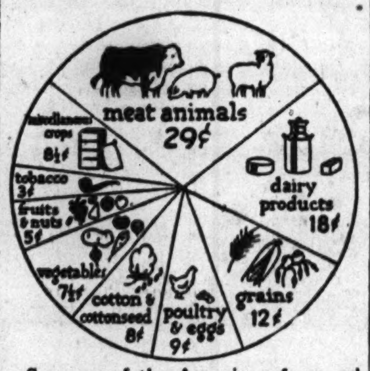
Sturgis admitted he was "worried" on learning that New York Central "was showing an inclination to purchase equipment from Budd instead of Pullman." Asked if he considered such a purchase to be a "blow to Pullman," he replied he did "because it looked as if Budd cars were better than Pullman and as a Pullman director I was worried."

Imports of Gold 10 Millions in Week; Half from Russia

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Imports of gold amounted to $10,238,450 last week, a drop of $3,902,653 from the preceding seven day period, the commerce department reported today. It said Russia, which shipped $5,615,085, and Canada, with $3,813,054, accounted for most of the total. Silver imports totalled $1,045,847.

LIVE STOCK IS BIGGEST SOURCE OF INCOME TO FARMERS DURING 1941

Of the total cash income of 7 billion 690 million dollars received by the nation's farmers in the first nine months of 1941, live stock represented the largest single source, the American Meat institute reported yesterday. From estimates of 1940 returns, made by the department of agriculture, the institute has determined the following sources of the farmer's dollar:



Sources of the American farmers' dollar.

Meat animals returned the farmers 2 billion 259 million dollars in the nine month period; dairy products, 1 billion 385 million; grains, 940 million; poultry and eggs, 667 million; cotton and cottonseed, 460 million; vegetables, 570 million; fruits and nuts, 356 million, and tobacco, 186 million. The government paid the farmers 391 million dollars in its various farm programs, compared with 541 million a year earlier.

REPAIR OF FARM MACHINES URGED TO OFFSET LACK

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 18 (AP).—To counteract a shortage of farm machinery during the coming year the Illinois department of agriculture defense board will meet with farm implement dealer representatives in Champaign tomorrow to plan an intensive drive thruout the state on the repair of farm machinery.

Lee M. Gentry, state AAA chairman and head of the defense board, said shortage of farm machinery in the next year has made it necessary to mobilize all agricultural representatives behind a repair program.

He said that the defense board is advising farmers to check their machinery this fall and secure necessary repair parts during the winter.

The Office of Production Management at Washington, D. C., announced yesterday the formation of an advisory committee of 22 members representing the farm machinery industry, including J. L. McCaffrey and King McCord, both of Chicago.

CHICAGOANS GET POSTS IN STOCK EXCHANGE FIRMS

Chicago and other cities were represented yesterday in the selection of officers for the reorganized Association of Stock Exchange Firms, which is to act as a supplementary public relations body for the New York Stock exchange.

James F. Burns Jr. of New York was elected president of the organization which Emil Schram, exchange president, lauded recently as a "strong right arm" of the exchange in revitalizing its business. J. C. Bradford of Nashville, Tenn., was named vice president, and George E. Barnes, of Wayne Hummer & Co., Chicago, was elected second vice president.

Another Chicagoan, Arthur F. Lindley of Clement, Curtis & Co., was elected to the governing board of 30 members, half of them chosen from cities other than New York.

Abbott Senior Stock Falls as Call Is Planned

Tentative plans for the issuance of 30,000 shares of 4 per cent preferred stock were disclosed yesterday by officials of Abbott Laboratories coincident with a precipitate decline in the outstanding preferred which would be replaced by the new issue. Other news of financing during the day included a reduction in the prospective offering of Marshall Field & Co. stock.

Financing for Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago producer of pharmaceutical goods widely in demand in connection with government military operations, was announced as a step in providing for an expanding volume of business.

The outstanding 4½ per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, which had reached a 1941 high of 124, tumbled 13¼ points on the New York Stock exchange, from the last preceding transaction to 110½.

Callable at $107 a Share.

The decline apparently was in anticipation of the company's announcement, which said that all or part of the 12,922 outstanding shares may be redeemed at 107, the price at which the stock is callable on 60 days' notice.

Bankers said they expected to make public offering next week of 135,000 shares of Marshall Field & Co. common stock, instead of the 230,000 shares contemplated originally. The offering, to be made at prices prevailing on the New York Stock exchange at the time of sale, will comprise 122,000 shares from the holdings of Marshall Field III and 13,000 shares from the holdings of his older daughter, Barbara Field Bliss.

Other interests who were to have made up the balance of the 230,000 shares originally scheduled for offering, withdrew because they considered current prices unsatisfactory, and will await improvement in the market, it was said. Since news of the prospective offering was first disclosed Sept. 23, Field common has depreciated in market value along with most other stocks, and closed yesterday at 14⅝.

Vote Champion Paper Bonds.

Champion Paper and Fibre company stockholders, meeting at Hamilton, O., approved plans for the sale of $8,500,000 of 3½ per cent first mortgage bonds and 40,000 shares of cumulative convertible preferred stock. Proceeds are to be used in part for the redemption of outstanding 4¾ per cent debentures.

Charles R. Dunn, fiscal agent for the Federal Intermediate Credit banks, announced at Washington, D. C., the offering of $35,500,000 of bank debentures dated Dec. 1 and maturing in five and nine months, bearing interest at ⅝ and ¾ of 1 per cent.

The Chesapeake & Ohio railway, which two weeks ago sold its entire interest in common stock of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railway, thereby relinquishing control, yesterday sold all of its C. & E. I. general mortgage income bonds. Wertheim & Co. was the sole bidder at the sale, conducted in Cleveland, taking the $495,500 face value of bonds at an undisclosed price.

PRICES TO MOVE UP AGAIN, U. S. ECONOMISTS SAY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Prices of food and farm products will start upward again in the next few months, government economists forecast today as they reported a recent halt in such increases.

The bureau of agricultural economics said that mounting industrial pay rolls under the armament program and the vast government food buying program would bring the higher prices.

"The pressure of improving demand probably will cause the farm and food products again to join the general advance in commodity prices," the economists said, adding that these future increases were "likely to be much more moderate than during most of 1941."

Prices of several farm products have declined since last summer.

USED CAR SALES IN COOK COUNTY DOWN 1 PER CENT

Used car sales in Cook county dipped 1 per cent in October and were 25 per cent below those of October, 1940, the sales and inventory report of the Chicago Automobile Trade association showed yesterday. Stocks of used cars decreased in the month.

Used cars sold by 201 dealers who filed reports totaled 4,870 in October. They had 5,740 cars on hand Nov. 1, enough for a 35.4 days' supply, compared with 38.5 days' supply on Oct. 1 and 41 days' stocks on Nov. 1, 1940.

The survey showed that used car demand was weak and prices steady.

New Allocation Plan Requires Centralization

BY LLOYD NORMAN.

A master plan for all industry determining in advance the monthly allotment of critical materials to each factory and mill in the nation will result from the allocation program being formulated by the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board.

After studying the text of the recent SPAB announcement calling for an overall allocation program, business analysts expressed the opinion that the new setup will differ from the present priorities system mainly in emphasis on centralized planning.

The priorities system, it was explained, is primarily an automatic method of distributing supplies according to the importance of the requirements to the armament program. Priority certificates generally are issued on individual orders for materials according to a graduated scale of importance—the armed services, shipbuilding, and lend-lease work being given top ratings.

Priorities Prove Meaningless.

However, under the present priorities system the issuance of preference ratings is not controled in advance and many holders of the ratings find that they cannot obtain delivery of their requirements because those with higher priority have exhausted available supplies or later orders with higher ratings are continuously sandwiched in ahead. Often, priority ratings are issued for more goods than there are supplies available and those at the end of the line are turned away empty handed.

The criticism most commonly leveled at the priorities system has been the absence of assurance that a priority certificate actually will obtain delivery of materials.

The allocation method, already used for selected materials such as aluminum or neoprene rubber, involves a tremendous planning organization using the industrial branches of OPM and the advisory committees from different industries.

Involves Mass of Detail.

The development of the allocation system will be slow because of the mass of detail which it involves, analysts asserted. The method to be followed is this:

The requirements of the armed services, shipbuilding program, lend-lease, essential industries, public services and other civilian enterprises will be determined.

The program for each industry will be developed in the OPM industrial branch which deals with the finished product made in that industry. The raw materials branches will be consulted to determine the available supply. Then the plan for the specific industry will be fitted into the integrated master plan. The OPM priorities division will administer the overall program thru the issuance of priority ratings or direct allotments to insure that the supply of materials allotted actually will be available.

New Deal Maps a Plan for End of Depressions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Further light on the New Deal's "post-war plans" for revolutionizing the nation's economic and social pattern was shed by the department of agriculture today in a memorandum setting forth a three-point program to prevent depressions.

The department is establishing a nation-wide organization of farmers and agriculture department officials to lay plans for the post-war era. A departmental committee and nine regional committees will draft an agricultural plan for what Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard described as "a postwar world in which we will make full use of our man power and our resources for the benefit of the American people."

In his memorandum Wickard optimistically disagreed with other economists in the administration and elsewhere that the nation faces a severe depression when all the shouting and shooting of the rearmament era has passed.

Spending Forms Basis.

The basis for the dire predictions of a depression to dwarf all past depressions has been the unprecedented government spending and debt and the dislocation of industry thru priorities, closing factories and creating unemployment where a transformation to arms production has not occurred.

"In some quarters there is a fear that a severe economic depression is inevitable when the defense effort ceases," said Wickard. "The department of agriculture does not share this pessimism. We believe the country need never go thru a major economic depression again. We believe it is possible to maintain a national income greater than ever before in the history of the nation.

"If we plan soundly and courageously, if we enlist the help of the greatest possible number of people in making these plans, we can build an economy which will offer everybody a fair chance for work and security. Planning for this kind of future is a part of the defense effort itself."

Formula Set Forth.

"1. A public works program to conserve and build up the nation's national resources—including forestry, soil conservation, flood control, water facilities, range improvement, and similar tasks.

"2. A program to provide services and facilities needed by farm people, such as rural housing, medical care, rural electrification, education, libraries, and marketing facilities.

"3. A study of agricultural-industrial relations in the postdefense period. This would include analyses of such problems as industrial decentralization, distribution of farm products thru methods such as the stamp program, keeping America's share of foreign markets for farm products after the war, and ways of maintaining industrial output and employment at a high level."

Study Output Guarantee.

While this report was being made public it was learned that other government planners were working on a plan which would place industry under controls and guarantees similar to those under which American agriculture operates under the triple A program.

The scheme envisions guarantee by the government of full output and employment in industry by allotting production quotas and promising to buy all goods produced within quotas which the makers could not market otherwise. Distribution of these products would be by some method fashioned after the food stamp system.

It was understood that the national resources planning board hopes to arrive at a definite plan for submission to the President early in 1942.

Bill Would Exempt Arms Work from State Taxes

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Rep. John J. Cochran [D., Mo.] introduced today a bill to exempt the federal government's armament program from sales taxes and similar levies imposed by state and local laws.

'SELL OR SWAP' MARKET TO AID LITTLE BUSINESS

Surplus Materials Are Available.

A new type of market, born of the small business man's acute need for materials and equipment, is being developed by the Illinois division of the National Small Business Mens' association, Frederick A. Virkus, division president, announced yesterday.

Adapting the methods of old world street bazars, the materials clearing house, as it will be named, will permit business men to sell or swap any material or equipment which they cannot use, and to buy what they need to remain in business.

The clearing house will operate a mail order business, Virkus explained. Items offered for sale will be listed in catalog style. The clearing house will act merely as an intermediary to bring buyer and seller together, much like a grain or stock exchange. The seller will be charged a fee of 10 per cent of the sales price.

Seeks to Save Small Industries.

Observing that the Illinois division of the association pioneered in the Chicago area in conducting a clinic to bring armament manufacturers and subcontractors together, Virkus explained that the clearing house was planned in pursuance of the association's program of aiding small industries in their struggle for existence.

"We are concerned about the 68 per cent of the small industries which cannot be adapted to armament production," Virkus said. "Until such time as we can demonstrate that the shortage of materials is largely a myth, and until materials can be made available for civilian production we are planning this clearing house. We believe it will result in the sale or exchange of a great deal of scrap or discarded material and tide over at least some of the small industries for the time being."

Surpluses Are Available.

Virkus said that an investigation had disclosed surpluses of numerous useful materials, tools, and equipment which have accumulated in warehouses, store rooms, and plants, which are not needed, and for which there is no established market.

"Much of such property constitutes remnants from changed models, or stocks established to meet needs which rapid changes have made obsolete, or the gradual accumulation of items which have become unnecessary to the present owner," Virkus said.

The materials clearing house committee of the Illinois division has been assigned to find these stocks and to determine how they can be converted to other uses. The committee itself will not deal in the materials and will not be affiliated with brokers, manufacturers, or scrap dealers, Virkus asserted. It will be staffed with experts who will canvass industry and obtain complete descriptions and specifications of available materials.

LAKE SHORE BANK BUYING BUILDING THRU LEASE DEAL

A nine year lease made by the Lake Shore Safe Deposit company, owner of the bank building at the northeast corner of Michigan and Ohio, and the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, as tenant, was filed for record yesterday. Payments on the lease take care of the interest and principal payments on a $225,000 mortgage dated Nov. 12, 1941, and maturing Dec. 7, 1950, made with the First National Bank of Chicago.

As security the safe deposit company [which is a wholly owned subsidiary of the bank] conveyed title to the property by quitclaim deed to the Lake Shore bank. The lease calls for a term rental of $257,058, and when the final payment is made the bank will own the property clear.

PHILCO PROFITS MOUNT DESPITE GAINS IN TAXES

Yellow Cab Net Earnings Rise This Year.

James T. Buckley.

The company, a large producer of radios and allied equipment with headquarters in Philadelphia, earned $733,939 in the third quarter of 1941, compared with $724,765 a year earlier, equivalent to about 53 cents a share in both periods. The quarter's volume of business, swelled by government orders, rose to $19,68?,520, from $15,417,352 a year earlier.

Figures for Nine Months.

Net earnings for the first nine months were $1,653,047, equal to $1.20 a share, compared with the 1940 period's $1,244,159, or 90 cents a share. Gross sales reached $54,892,800, against $37,433,685 in the 1940 period. State and federal taxes were nearly quadrupled, amounting to $2,475,000. Earnings of the company's Canadian subsidiary were not included in the report.

Increased earnings for the September quarter and the first nine months were reported by Chicago Yellow Cab company. Net profit for the three months was $99,820, equal to 33 cents a share, against $74,636, or 25 cents a share, a year earlier.

Profits for the nine months were $319,734, equivalent to $1.06 a share, compared with $175,548, or 58 cents a share, in the 1940 period. The company deducted $62,524 for federal income taxes from the September quarter's earnings, including an adjustment applying to the preceding six months, and set aside $147,940 for taxes for the nine months.

United Electric Coal Has Gain.

United Electric Coal companies, Chicago, announced net earnings of $230,396 for the three months ended with October, against $89,533 a year earlier, equivalent to 44 and 17 cents a share in the respective periods. Federal income taxes rose to $103,400 in the recent period, from $22,500 a year before.

International Paper company, New York, announced consolidated net earnings of $4,751,008 for the September quarter, against $5,315,118 a year earlier. The earnings included credit for excess tax provisions of $429,118 applying to the first six months of 1941 and $1,377,465 applying to the first half of last year.

Pet Milk company, one of the largest producers of evaporated milk, announced September quarter net earnings of $423,978, as reduced from $511,059 a year earlier. The profits were equal to 96 cents and $1.16 a share in the respective periods.

Flow of Crude Oil Dips; Gasoline Stocks Larger

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The nation's crude oil production averaged 4,086,850 barrels daily during the week ended Nov. 15, a drop of 9,250 barrels under the preceding week's output, the American Petroleum institute reported today. A year earlier the average was 3,576,550 barrels daily. Gasoline stocks rose 635,000 barrels to a total of 83,412,000, compared with 79,340,000 a year earlier.

WICKARD TELLS FARMERS PRICE RULE IS NEEDED

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 18 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard asked farmers today to favor effective price control "for their own protection."

"If our production plans succeed, we'll have little need for it," he told the convention of the National Farmers' union. "Yet, it is a good thing to have in the event of temporary shortages or speculation that drives prices up after commodities are out of the hands of the farmer.

Wickard asserted the best guarantee of abundant production was fair prices and insisted heavy production was necessary to fulfill promises to feed England during the war.

M. W. Thatcher of St. Paul, chairman of the union's legislative committee, asserted the AAA program "is due for a complete breakdown when the taxpayers and the farmers of this nation come to learn the facts." He insisted the national farm program should be revised to give the advantage to the poor farmer with a small acreage, instead of present large payments and loans to large scale "farmers who are prospering."

MILITARY NEEDS TO CONSUME ALL DOMESTIC WOOL

Military needs will take the entire domestic wool supply next year, it was indicated yesterday in a survey of material supplies compiled by the Research Institute of America, a private research organization in New York.

Consumption of raw wool for clothing has been at record levels this year. The National Association of Wool Manufacturers reported that wool consumption in the first nine months this year totaled 375 million pounds, an increase of 85 per cent over that of the corresponding 1940 period and larger than that of any full year since 1918.

The research institute noted that the most serious scarcity is being experienced in aluminum.

COURT FREEZES SURFACE LINES' BOND INTEREST

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday warned holders of $72,718,000 of Chicago Surface Lines first mortgage bonds that they must approve the pending traction unification plan before the court will authorize the continued payment of 5 per cent annual interest.

The court, over the protests of Henry F. Tenney and William J. Friedman, attorneys for the bondholders' committees, held up payment of $1,817,950 semi-annual interest due Aug. 1 on the bonds.

"This court is not arbitrarily holding up the interest payment," Judge Igoe said. "If the bondholders approve the unification program, then there will be no trouble about getting the interest. But if they don't, the train will be pretty late."

U.S. CORN LOANS TO AVERAGE 74.8 CENTS A BUSHEL

Rates Will Vary for First Time This Year.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—The department of agriculture announced today that government loans on this year's corn crop would average 74.8 cents a bushel, or 13.8 cents higher than the 1940 rate.

For the first time, the corn loans will vary by counties from 69 to 79 cents a bushel. Previously corn loans were at a flat rate in all areas.

The Commodity Credit corporation announced that prices on corn it now owns under previous programs would be raised in accordance with the new loan rates.

Reveal County Rates Later.

The department said that the new rates would reflect the normal relationship of corn prices over the commercial corn producing area. Rates will be lowest in counties that normally produce a surplus and highest in areas which normally must ship in corn needed for live stock.

Rates within various counties of the corn belt will be announced by state Agricultural Adjustment administration committees.

Loans thruout the commercial corn area in 15 states will be made only to farmers who complied with the 1941 corn acreage allotment.

Loans to farmers outside the designated commercial area will vary from 50 to 63 cents a bushel.

RECORD WHEAT TRADE

The largest single trade in wheat in history was consummated yesterday when England bought 120 million bushels of wheat futures from the Canadian wheat board. England will exchange the wheat futures for the cash grain as it is needed, it was said.

The big export business fell flat as a market influence in North American markets. Wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade held within a range of about 1 cent and closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Winnipeg futures finished unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

Soy Beans Close Higher.

Traders said the big sale will make only a moderate dent in the Canadian exportable wheat surplus, estimated at 660 million bushels.

Continued dry weather over the central west lowered soy bean and corn futures in the early trading. A forecast for rain or snow in the west starting tomorrow caused large operators to act with caution on the selling side, however, and a strong rally from the bottom followed. Beans gained ⅞ to 1⅛ cents, while corn was off ⅛ to ½ cent. Oats finished unchanged to ⅛ cent higher, and rye ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher.

CASH GRAIN

SHELL LOADING PLANT WALKOUT DELAYED AGAIN

Unions Agree to Attend Conciliation Meeting.

Ravenna, O., Nov. 18 (AP).—At the request of John R. Steelman, director of the United States conciliation service, executives of four unions tonight deferred for the second time a threatened strike of more than 1,000 production, maintenance, and transportation workers at the army's Ravenna shell loading plant.

Heads of the unions accepted Steelman's invitation to meet with representatives of the war and labor departments in Washington Friday, said R. R. Walker, president of the Arsenal Workers of America.

The unions had demanded immediate approval of work contracts.

Seek to Settle Welder Dispute.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—The Office of Production Management renewed efforts today to settle a jurisdictional dispute between welders and the American Federation of Labor which caused the recent strike at west coast shipbuilding yards.

Officers of the newly organized United Brotherhoods of Welders, Cutters, and Helpers of America, which claims a membership of between 45,000 and 50,000, demanded that what they called discrimination by the AFL against the welders be settled at a conference with OPM officials.

The United Brotherhoods, seeking recognition of welding as a craft independent of other AFL unions, told the OPM that national defense was being retarded "not by welders but by those discriminating against welders in refusing to allow them to work."

Avert Tank Arsenal Tieup.

Settlement of a threatened strike at the Chrysler tank arsenal in Detroit, involving 5,000 CIO United Automobile Workers, was announced by John R. Steelman, chief of the United States conciliation service. Steelman said that he had received word from James F. Dewey, a federal conciliator, that the terms of the agreement would not be announced until after a union ratification meeting.

The dispute involved requests for wage increases for categories not found in the automobile industries. Present and requested scales were not disclosed.

AIR LINES EXPECT BIG RISE IN NEXT YEAR'S EXPRESS

Air lines of the United States are preparing to handle 25 to 30 per cent more express next year than in 1941, representatives of the lines and the air division of the Railway Express agency estimated yesterday. Most of the anticipated increase was attributed to the armament program.

All-air shipments are at record levels and combination air and rail shipments account for 35 per cent of the air lines' volume, it was said. Indicative of the increasing use of air express by industries engaged in arms production, it was said the average shipment had increased 33 per cent in weight during the last year.

Direction of a 1942 promotional campaign was placed in charge of E. A. Hecker of Transcontinental and Western Air and Harold Crary of United Air Lines.

BANK RECEIVER LOSES FIGHT ON STOCK LOSSES

Court Reverses Ruling in Broker Case.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18 (AP).—Reversing the Peoria county Circuit court, the Supreme court held today that Receiver Charles H. Albers for the Roanoke, Ill., State bank had no cause for legal action against Lamson Brothers & Co., a brokerage firm, for losses incurred in stock market transactions of the late Benjamin B. Belsley, former president of the bank.

Belsley committed suicide in 1937 and the receiver sought to recover $124,500 in bank funds claimed to have been lost in market transactions. The Supreme court held that the cause of action claimed by the receiver did not survive Belsley's death.

Disputes Gambling Charge.

The basis of the bank's suit against the brokerage firm was that the stock market transactions constituted gambling transactions recoverable under Illinois law. In its appeal the Lamson firm disputed this contention, declaring it had complied with all requirements of federal statutes dealing with securities sales.

The Supreme court upheld the validity of a section of the business corporations act permitting the secretary of state to use his discretion in determining whether a corporation seeking a charter in Illinois bears a name "deceptively similar" to another firm doing business in the state, and to deny a license to such a firm.

Reverses Circuit Court Order.

The high court reversed an order by the Cook county Circuit court granting a mandamus to the Investors' Syndicate of America, Inc., a Minnesota corporation, which would have compelled Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes to issue a charter to the corporation.

Hughes refused to issue a certificate to the firm on the ground that its name was similar to that of its parent corporation, the Investors' syndicate.

CASH FOR Winter Bills

Don't let winter expenses get you head over heels in debt. Ask the Commonwealth manager to help you. He will show you how to arrange small, easy-to-meet payments on any bills you now owe. He will also go over, with you, the numerous extra items of expense that are associated with the winter season and show you how to pay for those things with the very least effort and inconvenience. By providing you with the cash to buy what you need now, he can protect you against rising prices and thus save you much more than the cost of the loan. Why not stop in today, or better yet, phone for complete details.
